Civil Service Used As Shield—Berger

Porter Wrote To His Superior

By JOHN SLINGER

The B.C. government was accused Tuesday of hiding behind the civil service in "the Commonwealth Trust fiasco."

Tom Berger (NDP—Vancouver-Burrard) said the civil service prompted the letter to the Times by E. Alan Porter, the provincial trust company inspector who alleged the government "whitewashed" Commonwealth Trust Co. six years ago.

Porter wrote to the newspaper because he felt the inspecting staff was "being unjustly criticized," said Berger.

It was the only way Porter saw "the integrity and respect of the civil service could be preserved.

FORCED TO DO IT

"He was forced to do it because the government refused" to give the house all the facts in its handling of the operations of Commonwealth and its associated companies.

The failure of the government to reveal all documents in its files concerning Commonwealth "placed the civil service under a cloud."

It was trying to make the civil service "carry the can for its own undeniable . . . negligence in the conduct of this affair."

Meanwhile, Porter confirmed to interviewers Tuesday that his purpose in sending the explosive letter to the Times was to defend himself and fellow civil servants exposed to public condemnation by the government's silence in the legislature on why the supervision machinery failed to prevent the Commonwealth Trust crisis.

He told reporters he was just making it clear that the inspectors at least had done their job.

"I mean, with the mounting censure, some people would be saying what were those S.O.B.s doing — just sitting around all the time?" he explained.

He said he did not know if Premier Bennett ever was informed of his adverse reports in 1963 and 1964 "but I imagine that if the matter was treated properly and if it was put through the right channels, the deputy minister or the acting deputy minister must have received them."

REGRETS TERM

Porter said he regretted using the term "whitewash" in his letter to describe the investigation which followed his reports.

"Abortive would probably have been a better word because some people have drawn the wrong conclusions from the term 'whitewash'," he said.

"I'm not laying the blame at anyone's doorstep."

He said the investigation was not sufficiently prepared or coordinated when six men from three agencies "swooped down" on the company.

The poor preparations resulted in the investigation becoming "just a matter of going through the motions to look important," Porter said.

Replying to a comment by Premier Bennett that he should have revealed at the time his concern that his warnings were not being treated satisfactorily, Porter said he did.

He said he wrote his superior C. A. Perry (who now is with

BIAFRA SEEKS MONTH TRUCE

16 Charged For Sit-in At Dockyard

Charges of mischief have been laid against 16 persons involved in a 2½-hour protest sit-in at HMC Dockyard Sunday.

Esquimalt police chief Earl Sarsiat said today 12 adults and four juveniles have been charged under section 372 of the Criminal Code and will appear in court early next week for their part in closing the main access to Dockyard.

Those charged were part of a group of 30, including four American youths, protesting the Canadian Navy's hospitality to a visiting U.S. Navy submarine over the weekend.

COULD BE DEPORTED

A police official said if the American youths are convicted of the offence — which carries a maximum penalty of 14 years imprisonment — they would be liable to deportation following completion of any sentence they might receive.

One of the protesters, Glen McTaggart who recently conducted an opinion survey of the Canada Manpower Centre, said today if the American youths are convicted and if Canada subsequently tried to deport them, "the fight would really begin."

He added that the demonstrators, who call themselves the "Peace Action Group," will block the Dockyard gates each time an American warship arrives at Esquimalt.

"But next time it will even be better," he said.

SMALL-ARMS BATTLE ERUPTS ALONG SUEZ

TEL AVIV (AP)—Light arms fire broke out along the Suez Canal today and Israeli and Jordanian forces traded fire in the Jordan Valley. (See story on Page 19).

The Israeli army in Tel Aviv said the Egyptians started the new round of hostilities along the canal with sniper fire. Israeli troops fired back, the army said.

Russia Seeks West Support Against China

By DAN MORGAN
The Washington Post

The Soviet Union has launched an unprecedented campaign for Western support in its dispute with Red China and to give the Russian version of the bloody border clash on March 2.

Official sources reported that Soviet Ambassador Valerian Zorin called at the French foreign ministry Tuesday to tell the French government about the clash. Similar meetings were held in Japan and West Germany.

The Soviet Union, in asking West German support in its dispute with Red China confided in the Bonn leaders that the Chinese are following a chauvinistic policy which has resulted in 2,000 border clashes since 1960 and which could endanger "all Asian peoples."

CHINESE THREAT

Moscow's views on the Chinese threat were conveyed in the 55-minute conversation between Soviet Ambassador Semyon Tsarapkin and Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger.

According to reliable sources, last week's Berlin crisis played only a small role in the unprecedented briefing for the chancellor which had been sought by the Soviet emissary.

In this respect, the Chinese problem and its suspected role in reducing Soviet enthusiasm for adventures in Berlin, appeared to be creating new divisions between the East Germans and the Soviets.

In its Tuesday editions, the East German party paper Neues Deutschland suggested that the Chinese Communists had staged the March 2 border clash just before the West German presidential election convention last week to support the Bonn government's "provocations" in West Berlin.

Observers noted even more curiously, that the lead editorial, entitled "Mao Group Helps Imperialists," was written by deputy editor Dr. Guenther Kietzscher, who is considered to be an East German communist with unusually good connections in the Kremlin.

Sources here said that both the harsh tone of the editorial, and its suggestion of a Bonn-Peking conspiracy last week, were out of tune with Tsarapkin's talk here. According to these sources Tsarapkin gave a relatively straightforward report on the Soviet position and made no substantial warnings to Bonn against taking advantage of the Soviet-Chinese dispute.

One Bonn official in Berlin last week said the border clash had come "as if ordered."

One of the long range Soviet policy nightmares has been the possibility of an eventual American-West German-Chinese "axis" aimed at containing the Soviet Union.

This spectre was certainly not eliminated by remarks over the weekend by Foreign Minister Willy Brandt, in which he said that "the great Chinese people will play a role (in the future), not only in Asia but in other parts of the world."

ON VERGE OF PACT

In 1964, West German and Chinese negotiators in Bern, Switzerland, were on the verge of reaching agreement on a trade mission exchange when Chancellor Ludwig Erhard torpedoed the idea at Washington's urging.

Also Peking's relations with East Berlin have deteriorated rapidly.

The Chinese claimed Tuesday that the Soviet Union admitted five years ago that Chenpao Island, site of the March 2 clash, was part of China.

Both nations now claim the island in the Ussuri River.

In Russia, newspapers reported today that 19 of the 31 Soviet troops killed in the island battle would have survived if the Chinese had not knifed, bayonetted or shot them as they lay wounded on the ground.

Tokyo Crippled By Snowstorm

TOKYO (AP) — A snowstorm dumped 11 inches on Tokyo today, stranding more than 1,000,000 commuters and paralysing all land, sea and air transportation in central Japan.

The fall broke a 59-year-old March snow record in the Japanese capital.

Time Shortens At Peace Talks

By CHALMERS M. ROBERTS

PARIS (WP)—The moment of truth is approaching here at the Vietnam peace talks—the moment when the United States has to decide how to proceed.

The question, which the U.S. delegation here has been searching out with Washington, is whether to put forward new ideas and new proposals either in public or in private or to continue to stick to previous positions.

When President Nixon met with Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge and his top aides here on March 2, the president himself filled a yellow pad with his own notes. Once back in Washington he went through all the questions and answers with Secretary of State William P. Rogers and White House national security assistant Henry Kissinger.

The implication, as understood here, is that Mr. Nixon was trying to get a "feel" of Lodge's view of the talks, not that he was advancing detailed specifics on what tack Lodge should take at the Thursday meetings with the two Communist delegations at the four-delegation conference.

Time, it appears, is running out. The Americans know that they must demonstrate, above all to the American public, that the Nixon administration is trying to break the deadlock, that if the blood-letting in South Vietnam continues the fault lies with the Communists.

A first problem has to do with what Mr. Nixon termed an "appropriate response" to the communist rocketing of Saigon, Danang and Hue, the three cities specifically mentioned by the Americans in the "understanding" of last fall which led to the halt in the bombing of North Vietnam.

While it seems evident that the president is most desirous of avoiding escalatory steps, there are good reasons to believe he has considered permitting a strike against North Vietnam in retaliation. Yet he knows, as his envoys here told him, that the effect on the talks would be considerable. It is the judgment here that the communists have been testing the new president, trying to find out how far they can push him short of retaliation. From what information is available here, it appears that the president has yet to decide where the limit may be.

Defence Secretary Melvin Laird's comments before leaving Saigon are taken here as demonstrating the administration's reluctance to make any military move which could or would derail the Paris talks.

The best information here is that as yet there have been no secret talks between the U.S. and North Vietnam which go beyond protests over the rocketing to the substantive issues of how to end the war.

Log Freeze Confirmed

Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston confirmed today that major log exporting firms have agreed to halt shipments to Japan until Sept. 1 because of log shortages at Canadian mills.

Williston identified the firms as Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd., MacMillan Bloedel Ltd., and Pacific Logging Co. Ltd., a subsidiary of Canadian Pacific Railway.

The freeze in exports was announced in Ottawa Tuesday by Federal Forestry Minister Jack Davis. (See story Page 7.)

NIGHT-LONG PROTEST IN FRONT OF EMBASSY

PEKING (AP) — Anti-Soviet demonstrations sparked off by the armed clash on the Sino-Soviet border on March 2 resumed here today as another huge crowd gathered in front of the Soviet embassy.

The demonstrations went on from Monday to Thursday last week and then were resumed Tuesday after a four-day break.

Throughout the night loudspeakers had blared out anti-Soviet slogans in front of the embassy about 100 yards from the buildings where the Soviet diplomats have their quarters.

Florenda Joy In Satisfactory Condition

By ARTHUR MAYSE

Her condition listed as "satisfactory," Florenda Joy Dick remains under intensive care at St. Mary's Hospital of Mayo Clinic today.

She is still receiving oxygen, but the plasma that sustained her through an afternoon and part of her first night after open-heart surgery has been discontinued, and this morning she spoke clearly to her mother.

Her words, muffled by the oxygen tent, were, "Mummy, kiss me."

Mrs. David Dick, who had come to the hospital early after a night of little sleep and much worry, glanced at the nursing sister beside her.

The nurse nodded. Sadie Dick lifted the edge of the plastic tent and kissed the six-year-old's cheek.

MORALE HIGH

Florenda's next request — one that won't be fulfilled for a number of days — was for a wheelchair "so I can go for a walk."

Her morale is high, although she is uncomfortable and still suffering pain that can be alleviated only sparingly.

A slight fever that set in Tuesday night has vanished. Feeding is intravenous, and will be for several days. Also, as a guard against the still-present possibility of a heart block a heart-pacer is taped to her skin.

Its wires lead into a heart that now pumps normally, but they are not connected. The operation has removed dangerous pressure from Florenda's right lung and, barring complications, the period of greatest danger will be over Thursday.

NERVE IN PATH

Among the problems confronting surgeons who operated Tuesday was a nerve which stretched directly across the path of the operation.

In a special report to the Times, Ken McCracken, Rochester Post Bulletin medical correspondent, revealed

De Gaulle Speech Angers Union Heads

From Reuters-AP

PARIS (CP) — Union leaders reacted bitterly today to President de Gaulle's tough speech Tuesday night following nationwide strikes and violent police-student clashes.

Political observers said the country faced increased social political tensions after de Gaulle strongly attacked labor leaders in a radio and television broadcast.

Labor unions felt Tuesday's general strike and a big demonstration in Paris would put pressure on the government into raising its wage increase offer above the four-per-cent limit. The unions are asking for 10 to 12 per cent more.

But de Gaulle stood firm, warning that France is just starting to recover from the crippling effects of last spring's student-labor turmoil. He said strikers would not be allowed to threaten the franc with devaluation and throw the country into chaos again.

The 78-year-old French leader accused the labor leaders of unleashing "a new offensive . . . threatening to bring down the currency the economy and the republic.

"Do I need to declare they will be firmly defended?" he asked.

The wage negotiations deadlocked when the government insisted anything beyond a four-per-cent wage increase would result in inflation and might force devaluation of the franc.

Among the first to reply to de Gaulle was Georges Seguy, leader of the powerful Communist-led Confederation Generale du Travail (CGT), who said that although the unions were still willing to continue wage negotiations with the government "the head of state is hurling ill-willed and gratuitous accusations" against them.

Andre Jeanson, leader of the militant Roman Catholic union grouping, said de Gaulle had "dramatized events to such an outrageous degree as to take away the credibility."

MORE ACTION PLANNED

The militant Catholic unions maintain Tuesday's strikes are only a beginning. And the CGT said further action will be called for but did not specify what form it will take or when.

The 24-hour strikes paralysed almost every branch of industry, reduced public transport to skeleton services and closed many government offices.

There were huge demonstrations for better wages by tens of thousands of workers in provincial cities while in Paris some 200,000 workers marched through the streets to the Place de la Bastille.

The workers dispersed without incident but about 5,000 extremist students then occupied the square and began hurling bottles and stones at riot police.

After a half hour of defending themselves with shields, police charged the students with rubber clubs in a show of violence not seen in Paris since the riots of May and June, 1968.

About two dozen students were pinned to a wall, their hands behind their heads and noses streaming blood. Among them was a middle-aged woman, her face a mass of blood.

De Gaulle devoted much of his speech to stressing the dangers the country faced and linked the present situation with the riots last spring.

All Postal Workers End Wildcat Strikes

By The Canadian Press

A series of wildcat postal strikes ended completely today as the last of the recalcitrant workers returned to their jobs.

The strikes at one time involved 1,100 workers in three provinces. They ended today when 350 members of the Letter Carriers Union of Canada returned to their work in Saskatoon and the Ontario centres of Welland, St. Catharines, Niagara Falls, Stoney Creek, Burlington, Dundas. (See story, Page 3).

City Men Confirm Stand

Mailmen in Greater Victoria confirmed their stand against any unauthorized strike action at a union meeting Tuesday night.

Jack Bell, president of the 178-member Victoria Local of the Letter Carriers of Canada, said today members voted unanimously to follow instructions of their national office.

"Whatever they decide we'll go along with."

In the meantime local postmen will continue to return to the postal stations on company time to wash up and have lunch, he said.

The government maintains that under its new "straight-through" work pattern for letter carriers they must travel to and from lunch on their own time.

the Manitoba government) as the man in charge of trust company inspections.

"I wrote (Perry) expressing my concern and asking what was being done about my reports. This was some time in the summer, after the investigation following my original reports had been set up.

(The annual statutory report on trust company inspections for 1964 never mentioned Commonwealth Trust and, when it was tabled Monday, a memorandum written this week was pinned to the back of it recalling a whole series of investigations that were conducted into Commonwealth affairs that year.)

Porter said Perry replied to his inquiry "in the summer (of 1964) in which he said as far as he was concerned the matter was now closed."

FACTS ACCURATE

He said absence of his adverse reports in the tabled documents proved his letter was accurate.

"Let's face it — silence is consent. I couldn't have taken this stand I have, laying my reputation and career on the line, if my facts had not been accurate," he said.

Porter, who retired Tuesday a day ahead of schedule, said he had not come under any pressure from his superiors as a result of his disclosures.

In the course of the angry debate Tuesday night that followed Berger's statements, New Democrats Gordon Dowding (Burnaby-Edmonds) and David Barrett (Coquitlam) asked what punishment. Porter might be liable to for breaking the oath of secrecy sworn when he entered the civil service.

Berger said he repudiated "any suggestion" that Porter broke his oath. He said the 65-year-old civil servant, retiring today, "fulfilled the highest ideals of public service in this province."

The handling of the near-collapse of the trust company by the government "affected the integrity of this government," said Berger, commending Porter for his courage to speak publicly about his reports on the situation.

IN BACK DOOR

The whole issue came into the legislature Tuesday night through the back door as the house began debate on Provincial Secretary Wesley Black's estimates.

It prompted the session's most intricate procedural wrangle as deputy chairman James Chabot (SC—Columbia River), supported by Attorney-General Leslie Peterson and Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston, attempted to rule the subject out of order for debate under Black's estimates.

In fine, Berger was arguing the subject was in order because the inspectors of trust companies are civil servants and because the Civil Service Commission comes under the provincial secretary's department.

The government and chairman Chabot were arguing that reports by the inspectors, as well as Porter's apparent failure to take the fact the government ignored his negative reports on Commonwealth and present it as a grievance to the civil service commission, were not within the "administrative responsibility of the provincial secretary."

This ruling was finally challenged by Berger and resulted in a formal vote supporting the chair's ruling 28 to 20. The Liberals supported the NDP in the vote.

Berger said the letter to the paper involved the whole relationship between the government and its employees. It indicated the government's failure to support these employees.

"That civil servant was forced to write a letter to the press because this government wouldn't defend him."

Time and again Berger repeated: "I am not discussing the Commonwealth Trust fiasco as such."

PROCEDURES

Williston said any civil servant who "feels he has been unjustly dealt with at any time" has established procedures for taking his grievance to the commission.

The minister said "it would be perfectly okay to deal with this" had Porter followed proper procedure and received no satisfaction.

"You're passing the buck," called Dowding.

"I'm not passing the buck," said Williston. Porter was "not in my department."

Chairman Chabot said "a letter to the newspaper has nothing to do with the administrative responsibility of the provincial secretary."

"It has everything to do with the administration of this government," replied Berger.

"The civil service has been obliged to bear the blame for things that have been done by this government and I think the house is entitled to consider" the letter to the Times.

"The letter," said Berger, "indicated the failure of this government to come to the defence of the civil service."

UNDER CARPET

Said Dowding to the government benches, "you're trying to sweep it under the carpet."

Williston replied that the whole matter of Commonwealth had been referred to a royal commission for a study of "the whole matter of procedure so far as trust companies are concerned.

"The matter is not being swept under any rug."

Premier Bennett, out of the chamber until shortly before the vote on the chairman's ruling was called, did not join the debate.

But the vote didn't end opposition pressure.

When Barrett rose to speak after the vote he asked whether the civil service oath is considered broken when a civil servant writes a letter to a newspaper saying he filed certain reports with the government and the reports were never made public.

"Will the government take disciplinary action against this civil servant?"

DIFFERENT ISSUE

Herb Bruch had resumed his seat as chairman when the member began his speech and immediately ruled him out of order on the basis of the earlier ruling.

Barrett refused to accept this, saying his point covered a different issue and asked, generally, what procedures are taken with a civil servant breaks his oath.

Barrett did not ever mention Porter by name, but kept attempting to give the minister what he described as "an example" of a civil servant breaking his oath.

Barrett: "May I ask what procedure is taken to discipline a civil servant if, in the minister's opinion, he breaks his civil service oath?"

Bruch: "You can ask that question."

Barrett: "Can I give an example?"

No, he could not.

Suddenly, the minister was on his feet offering to give an answer, but Bruch gavelled him to silence, saying if it is out of order to ask a question, it is out of order to answer it.

Barrett, laughing, said: "Let's go back to Alice in Wonderland."

Dowding: "Why can't we debate Alice in Wonderland?"

Bruch: "Because it's not under the administrative responsibility of the minister."

Dowding: "It sounds like it is."

This last was accompanied by an unidentified oppostion member saying: "Curiouser and curiouser and curiouser."

Court Delays Decision On Fund Plan

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mr. Justice Gordon Rae reserved decision Tuesday in British Columbia Supreme Court on an application by two Vancouver men to set up an alternative fund for shareholders in a company that is a member of the financially - troubled Commonwealth group.

The case involves the two investment funds of Diversified Income Shares Ltd. Some 4,500 shareholders are involved.

R. W. Stevenson, counsel for DIS, opposed the application by investment dealer John Richardson and Gordon K. Allan, treasurer of Dynasty Explorations Ltd.

Other opposition came from Howard MacIntosh, former controller of Evergreen Estates, a company linked to DIS and a member of the Commonwealth group which will soon be investigated by a provincial royal commission.

DIRECTORS LEFT OUT

Mr. MacIntosh, who recently launched a damage suit against A. D. Peter Stanley, Crown-appointed receiver of the Commonwealth group, said the court should reject the plan because it makes no provision for the rights and compensations due Evergreen and DIS directors.

Mr. Stevenson argued that court approval of the plan would put Mr. Richardson and Mr. Allan in a preferred position and suggested Mr. Stanley call for competitive bids from investment dealers.

He said the court has no way of knowing that the alternate fund offer is in the best interests of shareholders.

Earlier, Frank Low-Beer, lawyer for the fund proponnents, said his clients' offer was the only real one made. Other investment dealers had the same opportunity but did not take it.

Mr. Justice Rae said he was concerned that approval of the plan might be wrongly construed as an endorsation of the proposed fund by the Supreme Court.

Extra Orbit To Avoid Big Storm

HOUSTON (AP) — Although eager to come home, the Apollo 9 astronauts today enthusiastically approved staying in space an extra orbit Thursday to escape a rough landing in storm-lashed seas southwest of Bermuda.

Excellent weather was forecast in the new landing area near Grand Turk Island in the Bahamas. That is 480 miles south of the wind-whipped original splashdown zone where the astronauts would have had a rough reception.

The extra circuit of the globe will extend their time in space by about 100 minutes and increase the total length of the mission to just over 10 days.

The new landing time will be 12:01 p.m. EST.

This was the second time that a U.S. man-in-space landing has been altered by bad weather. In 1965, Gemini 5 pilots L. Gordon Cooper and Charles Conrad Jr. landed one orbit early to avoid an Atlantic hurricane.

Nixon Defers Decision On Missiles

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon Tuesday deferred until later this week an announcement on the fate of the Sentinel anti-ballistic missile system as its opponents stepped up efforts to influence his decision.

Nixon said last week his decision would be announced the first of this week. But the White House said Tuesday the announcement will not come before Thursday.

Senate Democratic Whip Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, a leading critic of the missile system, made an eleventh-hour appeal on the Senate floor, meanwhile, for Nixon to delay deployment of the $5,000,000 Sentinel system.

The White House quickly agreed to listen to three prominent scientists who contend the missile system would heighten the U.S.-Soviet arms race.

Find Body of Skier

LONGMIRE, Wash. (AP)—An avalanche caught Seattle skier John Aigars on Mt. Rainier Sunday not long after he set out from Paradise Valley for Camp Muir. His body was found Tuesday under five feet of snow. Aigars, 31, was the first adventurer to meet death on the 14,410-foot mountain this year. Eight died on Rainier in 1968.

that only one of three heart abnormalities required correction.

"One of the defects — an improperly functioning heart valve — was not serious enough to warrant either repair or replacement.

"The other congenital defect is a total reversal of Florenda Joy's heart pumping chambers, the pulmonary artery and the aorta — commonly known as the great vessels leading to the heart.

The surgeons said there was no need to correct this condition because everying was uniformally reversed and working normally, a Mayo spokesmand revealed.

However, the hole between the heart's pumping chambers — a condition usually associated with reversed pumping chambers and great vessels — had to be repaired to allow Florenda Joy to live a normal life.

Usually a child who has undergone this type of open heart surgery can expect to be hospitalized about two weeks, followed by a few days as a Mayo outpatient in Rochester so heart surgeons can monitor her recovery.

Decrease of Cong Attacks Suspected as Just a Lull

SAIGON (AP) — The Viet Cong's rocket and mortar attacks dropped off sharply today, but American officers said it might be only a pause in the Communist-led spring offensive, now in its 18th day.

U.S. sources said a new wave of attacks could come any day and that the rest of this week is a critical period.

Spokesmen reported 20 Viet Cong rocket and mortar attacks on bases and towns during the night, compared to about 60 the night before. U.S. headquarters said casualties were light.

Five more ground fights Tuesday were reported, resulting in the deaths of 126 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese and 10 Americans.

U.S. headquarters reported 76 North Vietnamese killed in an abortive ambush of a 50-truck convoy 43 miles northwest of Saigon. Spokesmen said the only American casualties were eight men wounded.

PLANS AWRY

The North Vietnamese battalion, about 400 troops, apparently tried to spring the trap too soon or too late.

"We were laying for them," said a spokesman for the U.S. 25th Infantry Division.

The guerrillas attacked the convoy with machine-guns and rocket grenades but were beaten back by escorting armored personnel carriers.

The convoy was moving food and ammunition along dusty roads about 10 miles from the border and 11 miles southeast of Tay Ninh City—scene of recent heavy fighting.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

About 5,000 years ago, the people who inhabited the area of Europe that lies between Lithuania and the southern Russian Steppes probably all spoke the same language. It is referred to by linguistic detectives as the Indo-European language, probably because it was the source of language today in both the European countries and the southeastern countries of Iran and India, among others.

Those people learned to cope with the weather and so they progressed from being simple food gatherers to become farmers and warriors. They developed an organized society and a religion. Then they spread out from their home, cleaving their people into two groups, one that migrated south and eastward and another that migrated south and westward.

The eastern people found really warm weather. It is thought that one of the many effects of that weather affected their speech so some word sounds were sibilant and softer. The western people formed the Hellenic, Celtic, Italic and Germanic language communities and their speech sounds became relatively hard. Thus, a single language became many, all of them thought to have been affected in some degree by the weather.

Kierans Hits At Critics

Minister Defends Decision To Change Postal Regulations

OTTAWA (CP)—Postmaster-General Eric Kierans breathed easier Tuesday night after surviving a New Democratic Party attempt to force his resignation, an opposition barrage against his threat to prosecute striking letter carriers and two days of Commons' criticism of his handling of the post office department.

A sparse House Tuesday night finally approved the section of the government re-organization bill establishing a communications department, which includes the post office, and moved on to the section which brings the industry department under the wing of the trade and commerce department.

Opposition pressure on Mr. Kierans has been heavy since his statement Friday that he would seek authority from the public service staff relations board to prosecute letter carriers who staged wildcat strikes in nine cities Friday.

Heath Macquarrie (PC—Hillsborough) launched the attack Monday with a motion for a special debate on the postal crisis.

Bitter Attack by Opposition

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux turned it down with the suggestion that MPs would be able to discuss the situation during committee-of-the-whole study of the section of the re-organization bill setting up a communications department with Mr. Kierans as the cabinet miniser in charge.

The opposition took him at his word and for two days tore into Mr. Kierans on a wide range of postal matters, some of them resurrecting questions approved in the postal-rate legislation passed last fall.

At the opening of Tuesday's sitting, David Orlikow (NDP—Winnipeg North) called for an emergency debate and for the removal of Mr. Kierans as postmaster-general.

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux ruled the motion out of order because the required two hours notice had not been given.

Outside the Commons, Mr. Orlikow said the minister has lost the confidence of postal employees and should resign.

Mr. Kierans commented: "It's not the first time it has happened. It's good politics."

He said prosecutions will be inevitable if "illegal strikes" continue.

Later in the Commons, Mr. Orlikow said that if Mr. Kierans persists in prosecuting letter carriers "he will be faced with a work stoppage that will make earlier work stoppages look like a pink tea party."

Douglas Asks PM to Intervene

NDP Leader T. C. Douglas noted some union leaders have been ordered to report to Ottawa March 17 in connection with the prosecutions and asked Prime Minister Trudeau to intervene.

Mr. Trudeau said they were only subpoenas to appear before the public service staff relations board so the board could establish whether the strikes were illegal.

Opposition Leader Stanfield asked whether Mr. Kierans would try to get some third-party mediation into the root causes of the dispute, sparked by new working procedures associated with the five-day-a-week delivery system.

Mr. Kierans said the post office department has waived all the preliminary steps in grievance procedure so adjudication could take place. He said he would abide by arbitration rulings.

Liberal MPs shouted down a suggestion by George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) that the matter be turned over to Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey.

French Boycott Of European Pact Continues

LONDON (AP) — For the fourth time in a month, France boycotted a meeting in London today of the permanent council of the Western European Union, which links Britain with the six European Common Market countries.

The ambassadors of Belgium, West Germany, Italy, Luxembourg and The Netherlands attended and Britain was represented by a foreign office official.

A WEU spokesman declined to give details of the agenda, but sources said Greece was expected to be one of the items.

President de Gaulle withdrew France from the council indefinitely after the other six WEU members met here last month to discuss the Middle East crisis despite a Paris protest.

The French opposed any broadening of WEU's scope because to them this represented an attempt by Britain to get around the French veto on British membership in the Common Market.

Floor Revolt Highlights Tory Parley

OTTAWA (CP) — A floor revolt led by a western MP at the Conservative annual meeting here has undermined a carefully-planned move to give the party association the right to review the leader's tenure every two years.

Jack Horner, the fiery Commons member for Crowfoot, led the attack Tuesday night on the change proposed by the association's constitutional committee after more than a year of study.

Mr. Horner proposed his own amendment to the association constitution on leadership review. It was far more limited than the committee proposal which would have each general meeting vote automatically on whether to have a leadership convention within a year.

General meetings would be held every two years. Delegates will choose today by secret ballot between the two options. The association presidency will also be decided from among four contenders.

An attempt to decide the leadership review issue at Tuesday night's session died when one of the scrutineers said he was unsure of his count in a standing vote on the Horner amendment.

Confusion reigned as people moved in and out of the hotel convention hall. Others stood in doorways, making it difficult to know whether they were voting or not.

It was finally agreed to defer the vote to today because of its closeness. Results of the invalid vote were not disclosed but from the press table it appeared the Horner forces had won.

From a floor microphone during the hectic fight over the leadership review, Mr. Horner said that under certain circumstances the committee proposal could result in the party fighting an election with a substantial minority on record as opposed to the leader.

The proposal from the constitutional committee, headed by Heath Macquarrie, MP for Hillsboro, could cripple party candidates in the field, Mr. Horner said.

"Don't blame me if we stay in the opposition for the rest of your livelong days," he told the delegates, whose numbers gradually dwindled through the long evening.

The Horner proposal suggested the first general meeting after an election could vote on whether to have a leadership convention, but not if the party had increased its Commons seats by more than 20 per cent.

Nor would the provision apply when the party was in power. In that event any general meeting could deal with a resolution for a leadership convention only when the office is vacant or the leader has lost the confidence of the party's parliamentary group.

There was much support also for the Macquarrie committee proposal. David Macdonald, MP for Egmont, said "a straightforward and simple device" was needed to give the association the right to review leadership tenure.

The debate occurred in the same room where party delegates voted in November of 1966 to hold the leadership convention that replaced John Diefenbaker with Robert Stanfield.

The constitutional committee suffered another defeat when the session rejected the proposal to end the practice of allowing some of the delegates to party conventions to be appointed by conservative officials.

The committee suggestion to expand the number of delegates elected by riding associations was accepted, but the party session kept delegates-at-large by a vote of 159 to 86.

Maritimes Unveil Major Road Plan

HALIFAX (CP) — A 10-year, $833,000,000 arterial highway building and upgrading program has been recommended by the premiers of the four Atlantic provinces.

The premiers, in a report to Transport Minister Hellyer on Atlantic transportation needs released today, say the long-term program should be preceded by a detailed statistical study of which highways merit up-grading and in what priority.

They call for the federal government to pay 90 per cent of the cost of the first five years of the program, with further costs to be negotiated later.

In the meantime, while priorities are set for the long-term highways program, the premiers say that the federal government should go ahead with an immediate two-year building program costing $66,600,000.

Of that figure, $20,000,000 each would go to Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and Newfoundland, while Prince Edward Island would get $6,600,000.

The premiers' report also recommends changes in highway regulations aimed at improving road transportation in the Atlantic area.

URGES CONSISTENCY

It says there should be consistency, where possible, between federal and provincial motor carrier regulations, and uniformity in these regulations within the four Atlantic provinces.

It also says federal or provincial authorities should establish and improve regulations requiring highway carriers to provide adequate and suitable accommodations and equipment for the handling of all traffic offered for carriage.

Provincial taxation policies as they affect the motor carrier industry should be reviewed "with the objective of providing a greater degree of uniformity in practices to encourage the growth of the industry," the report says.

Question

THE STORY OF THE SEVEN-year operations of the Commonwealth Trust and its associated companies is also the story of conscientious, expert public employees becoming more and more concerned over what they recognized as unsafe financial procedures and departures from legal requirements. Their descriptions and warnings were sent in to the Premier of British Columbia and his attorney general each year couched in terms of growing alarm and perturbation. There can be no doubt that the information was received on the cabinet level and that its import must have been clear.

Yet no steps were taken to halt the dangerous career of the Commonwealth management, which continued to accept money from the public, extend loans, transfer funds from one company to another in its maze of some 60 associated firms, and finally reach a point at which it could no longer continue. It was only in the final stage that the government stepped in, ordered the RCMP to seize the records, and placed its own appointee in charge of the trust company's affairs. Now, with hardly a pause for breath, Mr. Bennett proposes to advance the bankrupt companies a loan of up to $3 millions, to rescue the people whose savings are at stake and to avoid damage to the good financial name of the province.

Surely no financial organization has lurched to the brink of disaster with clearer warnings from the men whose job it is to examine and report on trust company finances and procedures. Surely no more unreceptive ears have been turned to such warnings at the highest government level. Surely no plainer point-by-point written record has been kept of a company's march to destruction. Yet nothing was done by the Social Credit government which had given the trust company its charter and sponsored it for federal insurance of deposits.

Why?

The documents and letters that have been forced into the Legislature under opposition demands are revealing much. Yet they are not the full file amassed by the government over the past seven years. One can only speculate on what may yet be revealed as the case develops. But as the details become public, as questions are answered as to what happened and who did or did not cause such happenings, the big question still remains cloaked in silence. It is: Why?

Why did the government not heed the warnings its expert inspectors gave it? Why did the government not act on the annual reports of its senior officials? Why did the federal insurance agency proceed to guarantee the company's depositors up to the usual $20,000 limit even though for 16 months, until the collapse, the company failed to act on 15 criticisms of its financing and procedures which the agency said must be rectified without delay? Why did Premier Bennett, who had personally written the federal agency regarding the trust company, rest quietly under such a situation?

Critics in the Legislature, whose utterances are privileged, are using sharper and sharper language. There is still much to be found out regarding the details of the case, which appears to be taking its place among the most lurid episodes in British Columbia's political history. Obviously the government must do more at this stage than deny opposition demands for further information. But sooner or later the key question will have to be answered: Why?

Trying to keep the balloon up

Holding Down the Lid

IT IS ALWAYS A GOOD IDEA for new leaders to take a hard look at old policies. That is what Prime Minister Trudeau has been doing in regard to Canada's external affairs, and President Nixon is engaged in a similar assessment for the United States, although on a different level. Mr. Nixon has not publicly questioned basic foreign policy as Mr. Trudeau has done, but is as concerned about the specifics.

Included in the list of subjects up for review is the chain of U.S. military bases around the world, some of which have been made obsolete by the build-up of long-range missiles. One of the most difficult questions facing Mr. Nixon is whether to renew a treaty with Spain on air force and rocket bases. He must make a decision by the end of this month.

The Franco government asked last September that the present agreement be scrapped and has been seeking higher rentals for the base properties and other benefits. But apart from the military necessity of the bases Mr. Nixon must also consider the political factors involved.

During the last two years there were signs that Franco intended to ease some of the restrictions long imposed by his tight dictatorship. When the Spanish people were given a taste of freedom however, including newspapers at least partly uncensored for the first time, they hungered for more. Students and workers took up the cry and Franco panicked. In January he declared a national state of emergency which is still in effect and imposes more stringent conditions than before.

Revenue from the U.S. bases is important to Franco. They have contributed some $300 millions annually to the national income and have been an invaluable prop to the regime. So Mr. Nixon must decide whether he wants to pay even more to Franco for the privilege of maintaining military bases that may have become superfluous.

If he does, he runs the risk of unfavorable outside reaction which will picture the United States in the role of Franco's supporter, prolonging a situation that denies democratic privileges to the Spanish people. He would not endear himself either to those Spaniards who are struggling for something better. The President may decide the best course is to get out altogether and leave Franco to try and hold down the lid by himself.

The Fort Victoria

THE HOTEL - APARTMENT complex revealed yesterday as a major project in the Wharf Street urban renewal program is a stimulating concept that would revitalize the whole area. If it is indicative of the type of development which is planned for the Causeway-to-Johnson Street district then Victoria is certainly in line for some breath-taking changes.

As portrayed and sited, this would be one of the very few local development ideas to exploit the waterfront to full advantage. Although Victoria is a seaport with an unexcelled waterfront, the shoreline has rarely been treated imaginatively so as to obtain the best for the immediate construction and for the environment as a whole. With view, marina, promenade and other features, the Fort Victoria—most appropriately named—complex would make the most of its waterfront location while adding an attractive segment to the harbor front.

With such a project to set the pace, other promotional ideas may now be encouraged, and what Mayor Stephen has predicted as perhaps the greatest integrated improvement in the city's appearance —the 50-acre rehabilitation program —will be well under way.

FROM WASHINGTON — BY JOSEPH ALSOP

Does Race Determine Intelligence?

THE unspeakable has been spoken. The unmentionable has been mentioned. And this reporter would like to enter a qualified but vigorous dissent.

Alsop

Arthur R. Jensen, professor of educational psychology at Berkeley and vice president of the American Educational Research Association, is the man who has mentioned the unmentionable. In a formidable paper in the Harvard Educational Review, he has said that intelligence depends far more upon heredity than upon environment.

Thus he has frontally attacked the general belief that the ghetto environment is the sole cause of poor performance of the children in the ghetto schools. Nor has he stopped there.

He has gone on to say, with a vast mass of figures seeming to prove his claim, that on average, the IQs of black Americans are about 15 points lower than the IQs of white Americans. In part, this is merely an assertion that on average, unsuccessful Americans are less intelligent than successful Americans.

In other words, children of white families of low social-economic status have substantially lower average IQs than children from white families of higher status, as is also true of black children of differing backgrounds, yet Dr. Jensen insists that even after making allowance for this poor-rich differential there is also a clearly detectable racial difference.

Comparisons

For example, he prints comparative figures obtained by Professor Rick Heber of the University of Wisconsin, on percentages of children with IQs below 75 (or near to mental retardation) in white and black families at five levels of social-economic status. At the highest status-level, there was already a difference, 'though a trifling difference, between the whites and the blacks.

But at level two, the low-IQ children were only eight-tenths of one per cent of the white sample, against 14.5 per cent of the black sample. And this divergence was found all down the line, so that in the lowest level group, there were 7.8 per cent of low-IQ children among the whites, against 42.9 per cent of low-IQ black children.

This makes grim reading, unless someone can disprove Dr. Jensen, Dr. Heber, and all the other factual data Dr. Jensen quotes. It must above all be noted, of course, that Dr. Jensen is dealing in percentages.

Hence his figures also mean that there are great numbers of very able, indeed brilliant black Americans, far above the white average and fully as intelligent as the very ablest whites. Otherwise, this gap between black and white average IQs would be much greater.

Yet there is no use being mealy-mouthed about it. Dr. Jensen is really saying that in addition to the handicaps wickedly imposed by prejudice and discrimination, the average black American begins the race of life with a detectable genetic handicap. And for the unduly large group of black Americans with IQs below 75, this handicap is grave enough to constitute a really massive problem of a high-technical society.

Genetic Role

If Dr. Jensen's data cannot be successfully challenged (which seems unlikely), what then is one to say about his thesis? The first thing to say is that Dr. Jensen has failed to stress the crucial genetic role of both culture and history. This means, quite simply, that any human-breeding population's culture and history can greatly influence the group's heredity, by biasing the selective process in one direction or the other.

Thus both Chinese and Jewish cultures and histories have in different ways biased selection in favor of intelligence, and Chinese and Jewish children have substantially higher average IQs than other children. The same, one may be sure, is true of Biafra's wretched Ibos. Ibo culture has always placed an enormous premium on achievement and on status. Selection has therefore fovered high achievers. Hence the Ibos have regularly and quite vastly out-performed other Nigerians; and this is the real root of the Biafran tragedy.

Duty Underlined

Viewed in this light, Dr. Jensen's findings only underline the solemn duty of the white majority to aid the black minority to escape from exclusion into equal opportunity. For slavery, discrimination and injustices have been the history of America's black minority, by no fault of theirs; and these experiences, too, have mainly shaped their culture — not without having an effect, one may be sure, on all the data Dr. Jensen has collected.

Yet the central fault of Dr. Jensen's remarkable, deeply disturbing paper is something else again. Quite simply, it is the bland dismissal of the only lever we can use, to enable the black minority to compete on equal terms with all other Americans. But Dr. Jensen's treatment of "compensatory education" must be examined in a second report.

FROM NEW YORK — By JAMES RESTON

No Peace Without U.S. Pledge to Leave

IN a few weeks at the present casualty rate, more Americans will have been killed in Vietnam than in any other conflict in U.S. history except the Civil War and the two world wars. Last week, 453 Americans were killed in Vietnam and 2,593 wounded. This brought the total U.S. combat dead to 32,376 — very close to the 33,629 total for the entire Korean War.

Reston

In the face of this terrible waste and killing, the urgent need for a new and creative effort to end the fighting is manifest. The negotiators are stuck in Paris. The new government in Washington is following the same old policies. The language of the war is lower but the cost is higher.

In fact, 9,425 Americans have been killed in Vietnam since the preliminary peace talks began in Paris last May 13, and 2,319 of these have died since South Vietnam joined the enlarged talks last Dec. 7.

The carnage among the Vietnamese meanwhile is almost beyond comprehension. On the enemy side alone, according to the official U.S. command in Saigon, at least 457,132 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese soldiers have been killed since the beginning of 1961 when the United States entered the war, and nobody has the heart to estimate the dead among the civilian population, north and south.

Casual Reaction

The reaction to all this is remarkably casual. Even expressions of pity are now seldom heard. The enemy continues his rocket attacks on Saigon. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge says in Paris that "the consequences of these attacks" are the enemy's responsibility. President Nixon says that if the attacks go on, he will make "some response that is appropriate." And Secretary of Defense Laird says in Saigon: "We will not tolerate any enemy escalation of the war."

There is not even any agreement on the terms of the Paris peace talks or on whether the enemy was first to step up the military pressure, or vice versa. Washington says it had an "understanding" that there would be no enemy attacks on the cities if it stopped the bombing of North Vietnam. Hanoi says there was no such understanding. Hanoi says the U.S. kept up the bombing pressure and the search and destroy raids early this year. Washington says it did so in reponse to the enemy's increasing pressure.

Halt in Peace Efforts

Meanwhile, despite all the recent expressions of mutual understanding between President Nixon and officials of the Soviet Union and the Western European countries, the efforts of London, Paris, Moscow and even the United Nations to bring about a cease-fire have virtually ceased.

In this situation, it is fairly clear that President Nixon is not going to get a settlement without a shift in policy. He has apparently been hoping that by sounding reasonable toward both Saigon and Hanoi, the enemy will come forward with the compromise President Johnson could not get, but this is not forthcoming.

The sticking point for the enemy is his doubt that the United States intends to withdraw from that peninsula. Hanoi simply cannot believe that the United States would sacrifice over 32,000 lives and spend over $30 billion a year in defence of a principal, and then make peace and take its men back home.

In actual fact, there is reason for believing that if Nixon could get a negotiated peace, he would be willing to do precisely that, but he has not made the point clear, and so long as the enemy is in doubt about his critical point, the chances are that the war will go on indefinitely.

Emphasis Needed

If this intention were emphatically stated instead of merely being discussed around the White House as a likely objective of U.S. policy, then it might be possible to bring the influence of the world community, including the Soviet Union, to bear on the Paris talks.

But the President hesitates. He is still hoping the old policy will work simply because it is in new hands and is being expressed in different language. He is back on the brink again of one more military response to the enemy's attacks, though there is no evidence that the enemy, having lost over 450,000 men, will hesitate to keep on sacrificing until it is sure American power will definitely be removed as part of any settlement.

Sooner or later, Nixon will probably have to come to this decision and the longer he waits, the harder it will be to make the switch, the greater the danger of one more round of escalation, and the higher the dead tolls.

The school board last night held a short sitting. The city superintendent stated it gave trouble all day long. City council will be informed of the matter.

Trailers and School Taxes

A misconception appears to exist in some areas of thinking relating to school attendance and school taxes paid by residents of trailer parks.

A survey carried out in the Langford and Colwood area showed that the seven trailer parks located there paid a total annual school tax of $1,689 in 1968. There were 110 trailer residences involved with only 18 students attending school.

Tenants of trailer parks pay rent but do not qualify for the home owner grant. It is interesting to note that trailer parks and mobile homes do not attract people with families and in practically every instance trailer park management is not in favor of renting to people with children.

Finally, attention should be drawn to the fact that, while mobile home living does not accommodate the larger families it is living accommodation for the small family of a high standard and is becoming recognized as of great importance in solving the housing shortage. — Jack Block, 314 Goldstream.

Private School Alternative

I heartily agree with Mr. Vipond's report on a tense and bewildering moment at a recent public forum when he says that educators who believe there are established truths and those who say there are no absolutes are on a collision course.

Parents have a right to object to their children being influenced by teachers whose philosophy of life is in direct opposition to their own. May I suggest that the only logical solution is the private school with parents free to decide what kind of education their children shall receive. — E. Bone, 1738 Leighton.

Seal Hunt

We understand that Mr. Jack Davis, Minister of Fisheries, has now made personal inspection tour of the area of the annual seal hunt in the Gulf of St. Lawrence to hear from those who would suffer financially from a complete ban on the killing of the baby whitecoats. We earnestly hope, however, that he will not allow himself to be deflected from his reported view that "Pressure for cessation of sealing operations continues to a degree which I consider to be serious."

This pressure has been building up from humane world opinion for some years now and we feel confident it will not cease until a ban on the killing is achieved.

But Canada is not the only guilty party in this tragic business. Any country which imports the pelts is equally involved in the suffering of the seals—and Britain is no exception. Pressure is building up — as in other countries — that Britain should ban the import of the pelts on the grounds of humaneness.

As the killing goes on this year, we make our appeal yet, again to the Canadian government to ban once and for all the annual seal slaughter. — Margaret Cooper (Miss), Secretary, Crusade Against All Cruelty to Animals, London.

Man, Ape, Logic

Why accept the premise that Man evolved from Ape? Simply reverse the idea. The theory immediately becomes logical.

Professor Leakey's discoveries in Africa show Man as a distinct species from the oldest remains exhumed. Why deny the obvious? Apes may have been a mutation of original man or, as the other mammals, merely a distant kin. Trace Man back through the ages. Primitive, yes; limited in brain, admitted. However, that infinitesimal spark of intelligence has increased and grown to such magnitude that it has worked miracles in scientific research, medical and surgical advances. The "Missing Link" has never been found. Perhaps it never existed. Ape and Man evolved together but were separate beings. Otherwise, why have Apes remained Apes while Man has reached the moon?—A. M. Spencer, Ganges.

Efforts to reform automobile insurance are dragging along. The Senate anti-trust subcommittee, led by Philip Hart of Michigan, held one set of hearings last summer and is about to begin another.

The Transportation Department is in the midst of a two-year study of the insurance system.

The insurance companies are plunged into an internecine warfare over what to do about the government. Companies in the American Insurance Association, which writes 35 per cent of the business, aren't opposed to federal regulation in principle, and they are for changing around the business to make it more efficient and fairer.

But the mutuals and big independent firms, State Farm and Allstate, so far are against government interference.

The lawyers are banked solid against any change whatever: they stand to lose money.

The agents, represented in Washington by President Nixon's former law firm, are fearful they will be sacrificed in a reform. In fact, there isn't much prospect of any change soon.

While a B.C. Legislature committee debates the merits of a government-sponsored, 'no-fault' automobile insurance plan as proposed by the Wootton Royal Comission Report, similar studies are under way in the United States. This article suggests that action should be taken quickly because of the changing financial structure of the insurance companies and their attitude toward the premium-paying motorist.

Are drivers getting worse?

Opposed Reform

The new Secretary of Transportation, John Volpe, opposed reform of auto insurance while he was governor of Massachusetts, and the possibility of an anti-industry study emerging from the department is dubious.

President Nixon himself has maintained close ties with the insurance people, most recently as a director of Mutual of New York and over the years through a friendship with the Kemper family, which runs Lumberman's Mutual, a prominent auto insurer.

Yet the reasons for a change in this industry are pretty compelling. The companies, which do about $10 billion in business a year, are charging higher and higher rates, while at the same time refusing to insure a growing number of people they deem to be poor risks.

The insurance companies maintain their only consideration in issuing policies is whether a person has a bad driving record. They deny accusations of discrimination by color and class.

Watch Risks

J. Victor Herd, chairman, Continental Insurance Companies of New York, gave the subcommittee a copy of his firm's underwriting manual.

It warns the underwriter to watch out for bad risks, including merchant seamen, oil field employees, farm workers, waiters, janitors, painters, bellhops, unemployed persons and taxicab drivers.

The manual goes on to tell the agents to be on the look out for different sorts of bad risks: "The divorced or separated male is, in our opinion, more undesirable than the man who has never married. The same is true in comparing the divorcee and the unmarried female. Some divorced persons are the innocent victims of circumstances. Others . . . because they are emotionally unstable. That is almost sure to be the situation with the person who has been divorced twice. We should leave them alone."

The manual says, "Also stay away from the exhibitionist who overdecorates his car with fox tails, fender fins, mud flaps, boxing gloves, baby shoes, spot lights and other ornaments. He is not likely to be a very conservative or considerate driver."

Narrow Market

The insurance companies make this sort of arbitrary judgment about whom they sell to in order to narrow the market to those "preferred risks" who have not had an accident and aren't likely to have one.

So while the population generally increases and the need for insurance mounts, the industry works to narrow its market.

While the companies skim the preferred risks, they are forever asking the state insurance commissions for higher rates.

They claim drivers are getting worse all the time and inflation is running costs up with the result that they are losing money and in some cases are on the verge of going out of business.

The companies are able to make these claims for several reasons. For one, the insurance commissions have been allowing them to mix methods of accounting, shifting off in midstream from accrual to cash—which gives the impression of a loss when in fact there is a profit.

Moreover, the companies have not taken into account investment income in setting rates. In addition, they play a political charade with the commissions.

Inefficient companies make a plea for higher rates through a rating bureau. The big companies support the request. Once granted, the big companies undercut the ceiling, creating the impression of a bargain.

Senator Hart introduced figures at the hearings which showed that in 1967 the 10 largest stock property and casualty companies reported an underwriting loss of $273 million.

But when the accounting method was changed to the type generally accepted by corporations, the loss turned into a profit of $55 million. Neither of these figures included net income from investment of the same 10 companies. That came to $1.7 billion.

Earning More

Richard Norgaard of the University of Southern California, testified before the subcommittee that casualty insurance companies are earning greater rates of profits than 90 per cent of some 640 leading American corporations.

For instance, his study showed that Allstate, an industry leader, had a 24.6 per cent profit. (However, a study by Arthur D. Little Co., commissioned by the industry, claimed that over a 10-year period the return was only 4.4 per cent.)

In the past couple of years, a few commissioners and small groups of lawyers have opposed the industry's demand for higher rates in Virginia, Maryland, Kentucky, New Jersey and a handful of other states. But it's a losing battle.

Retaliation

When Charles Howell, the New Jersey commissioner, disapproved a proposed 20.6 per cent rate increase last year, the industry retaliated.

William T. Cahill, a New Jersey congressman who wants to reform the industry, says 50,000 cancellation notices were sent motorists, business people and homeowners in the first few months after the decision.

Agents' commissions throughout the state were slashed and the agents were denied binding authority to write insurance. Cahill quotes a letter from a major insurance company to an agent that says: "It is required that you not bind us on any new private passenger-automobile risks . . . after receipt of this letter . . . you may submit applications without binders for new family automobile policies when we are, in your judgment, the logical carrier because of other lines that we now have for the applicant."

Flow of Cash

In other words, the only way to get auto insurance was to take out home, fire and life insurance along with it.

The object of perfecting techniques to exploit the "preferred risk" market is to assure the insurance companies a steady flow of cash that can be plowed into investments.

Insurance companies are really disguised investment trusts. The investment side of the business is the most interesting and profitable line of work, and in recognition of the possibilities the entire industry has been on the move to reorganize itself so as to take better advantage of the insurance company as investment bank.

In some cases this has meant merging with an industrial conglomerate; in others shifting the stock of the insurance company to a holding company, which then buys other types of businesses, and in effect, turns the business into a conglomerate.

Banks and insurance companies are moving from opposite directions toward the recreation of the old fashioned investment trust.

As Congressman Wright Patman's long study of banks indicates, insurance companies already own a considerable amount of bank stock, and the two businesses are intimately connected through a series of interlocking directorates.

Interlocking

Patman's study shows 81 people holding interlocking positions among six New York commercial banks and various insurance companies.

The point is that while the Transportation Department works on studies of insurance systems, the entire industry is changing.

In all likelihood any study of the insurance business will turn out to be irrelevant, unless it is accompanied by some effort to come to grips with the new investment conglomerates.

A moderate reform of automobile insurance probably would require devising a more "efficient" system —removal of lawyers who argue the cases and run the prices up, or getting rid of agents whose commissions jack up the price.

The government might also assume general supervisory powers over insurance, and through a corporation modelled on the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., check books, make sure the companies stay solvent, that they don't discriminate against blacks or Mexicans and that there is competition in the industry, which, in turn, will bring about reduced rates.

VOLPE

Proposals along these lines are now coming from within Congress as well as from the more progressive sector of the industry.

Milk Drivers

But such reforms won't change the insurance industry's ability to fix rates. The object of the game will stay the same; milk the driver to feed the investment trust.

Congressman Cahill suggests removing small auto insurance claims, which constitute the bulk of the business, to a federal agency that would compensate victims of accidents regardless of fault for out-of-pocket expenses to a maximum of $2,500.

The simplest and most expeditious way to provide automobile insurance is for the government to run the business, perhaps through the social security system.

Everyone in the nation should be covered by automobile, life and accident and health insurance.

You Can Take It or Leave It

By RICHARD J. NEEDHAM
The Globe and Mail

All of us (said the man at the bar) are addicted to something. Many poor souls, alas, are addicted to drink; others to tobacco, and others to reading the labels on tubes and bottles. I hear tell that the students have all manner of weird addictions; such as smoking catnip, sniffing nail-polish remover, and mixing white port with lemon juice. My own addiction is (I hope, was) a specially insidious one, which caused me only this evening to join RA.

Needham

You don't know what RA is? Good heavens, let me explain. It's the shortened name of an organization called Romantics Anonymous, which tries to cure men who are addicted to women and women who are addicted to men.

No, we don't touch any of that in-between stuff.

RA recognizes that the only people who can beat this terrible addiction are those who really want to beat it, and are willing to help others do the same.

People like me, in short; for I must tell you that my infatuation with women has broken my health, dissipated my life savings, and caused the collapse of my seven marriages.

That's why I went to the church basement tonight, signed up with RA and attended the subsequent meeting.

•

The chairman, a genial fellow named Bill, explained how RA works. When a man feels the uncontrollable desire for female companionship, he phones RA, and they send one of the fellows over to play chess with him, or discuss the latest speech by Richard Nixon, or get him stoned to the point where the only thing in the world he wants is another drink.

In the case of a woman overcome with the desire for male companionship, RA sends two other women over to play bridge, compare detergents, swap recipes for chocolate chip cookies, or pop their minds with domestic sherry.

The speaker of the evening came next, a fellow named Jack. He told us that he once held a high position in advertising, but then started taking women out for lunch — you know, half-hour lunches at first, then an hour, then two hours.

He'd come back to the office around three, and waste the rest of the afternoon writing letters to them and doodling their names on bits of paper.

•

Pretty soon, his mornings were shot, too; he would spend them going to see women in their offices, and taking them flowers and desktop dolls and all such hogwash.

After he was fired, he went all the way downhill and wound up being supported by an airline stewardess who locked him in her apartment when she took off for High Dudgeon, Sask., or Lower East Uptight, N.B.

A blonde woman in the front row listened intently as Jack spoke, occasionally dabbing at her eyes. It turned out that her name was Mary and she was the other speaker of the evening.

Mary said, "What RA has done for me can be summed up in one sentence. I haven't been with a man for two years," which brought a great burst of applause from the men and women RA members both.

•

Mary told us how she started off just going out with one man, then there were two, and in the end she had them by the dozen.

Her standards kept slipping too, from bookmakers and bootleggers at first, then all the way down to lawyers, politicians and newspapermen.

Mary's desperate craving (so she told us) led her to take up with men who dyed their hair, men who smoked between courses, men who told jokes about people who stammered.

She went out with men who said "God bless" and "Mamma mia" and "sit ye doon" and "Don't take any wooden nickels" and "You'd better believe it" and "You've gotta be kidding."

She went out with men who saved their pennies for tipping; who got amorous on one beer; who described in detail the terrific putt they made on the 14th green.

•

She went out with men who used the swizzle stick to clean their nails; with men who dug her in the ribs; with men who liked to run their fingers through her wig; with men who wept before, during and after.

She went out with a man who could neither read nor write, so had to support himself by teaching English at a community college.

Mary concluded, "But that's all in the past. I know now that I've kicked the habit; never again will I touch another man."

There was a solid five minutes of hand-clapping, the meeting was over, and I wandered over to this bar, where I have so far had eight double Scotches.

Don't worry, old boy, I can take it or leave it, and I really do need just one more to make up for that disgusting sight at the table next to us.

Don't look now, but he's holding her hand and occasionally patting her cheek. He's writing silly notes and giving them to her folded up, and then she opens them and smiles and writes one back.

He's lighting cigarets for her and letting her blow out the match. The filth, the rottenness, I'd like to smash their stupid heads together.

But I can't very well, in fact they're looking over at us, and I'd better speak a civil word to them. Hello, Jack; hello, Mary.

Awaiting the Redwing To Tell Us It's Spring

By ART STOTT

At half-tide the offshore rocks are black as evening draws color from the waterfront, concentrating it in a smear of molten red in the west over the purple Sooke Hills. The honest blue of the sky overhead is washed with an indefinite green and the Olympics, softened in outline, submerge gradually into indigo that creeps upward over the sun-tinted snowfields. The sea turns from green to steel grey, darkening where random breezes scuff its surface. The month of March is an artist using a familiar palette to work the early spring transformation over the bay.

In the lee of the rocks a male butterball, meticulous in the white and black of his formal wear, cuts an arrowhead as he swims, followed respectfully by his two female attendants, over the surface of sheltered water. Closer inshore a small hell diver, with a gesture of supreme impudence, exposes his rump briefly as he digs down to the eel grass seeking small fish. The gulls, after their raucously quarrelsome day, have lifted quietly from the reef and, on wings no longer soaring, have beaten their way in rhythmic flight to roosting grounds at Trial. The cormorants we call shags have followed them, moved by some signal unknown to humans that sloughs off the dignity of their sentinel stands on the wet rocks and sends them, first in ungainly flapping and then in whistling, swerving unison, around the point to the island cliffsides.

High over the Strait an airborne squadron of ducks swings in pattern against the closing dusk. Shorebirds, with shrill, sharp cries, lift and wheel at the line where small waves flow up and recede in sibilance over the wet sand. Out by the kelp beds harlequins, bright in spring dress, paddle in busy progress, and further away, individualists that have left their flocks, rest and forage in the strong run of the tide.

These are the waterfowl remaining from the big conventions of ducks that wintered in the bay, crowding in close formation in sheltered areas away from storms and disputing with the natives the rights of food and protection in our locality.

Last week there were scores of bluebills and scoters lending color and action to the scene. Almost overnight they have departed, seeking nesting grounds in the north.

Reconnoitring now, come a pair of mallards, almost human in their throaty talk as they seek out a home site, checking on the food supply, the easy access to water, the degree of safety they may expect from predators.

We watch them as they move, self-importantly, over the bay, wondering how long the locality will be appealing to them as more and more of the brush and trees are cleared away in the tidy development of private lots and housing. And as we watch we think of the black cat and the bobbed-tailed tabby that saunter up our walk from the waterfront, looking well-fed and dangerous to any fowl nesting on the ground.

We note the thrust of daffodil spears following the blossoming of the crocus, and the early unfolding of red currant bloom, still weak as an infant's hands.

The season is on the way, the time of resurgence and the familiar cycle of germination, the panorama of spring. But the clarion call proclaiming the throbbing, thrusting upsurge of life is still lacking. We listen and wait for it—the ringing song of the redwing from the thinning copse above Woody Bay. Without that signal, spring has not really arrived.

Versafood Services Ltd. said it has bought a 50 per cent interest in the airline catering operation of E. S. Campbell Co. Ltd. in the Caribbean.

The price was about $1.6 million, payable in 73,000 Versafood Class A common shares.

Allan D. Baker, Versafood president, said the purchase was made under a share-exchange arrangement that gives Versafood half the common stock of Universal Caterers Ltd., holding company for Campbell.

Exporters Ignorant Of Log Pact

VANCOUVER (CP) — Spokesmen for major log exporters said Tuesday they know nothing of an "understanding," reported by Forestry Minister Jack Davis that they will halt log exports to Japan until Sept. 1.

Mr. Davis said in the Commons Tuesday the understanding had been given jointly to him and the British Columbia lands and forests department because of log shortages at domestic mills.

Two major companies said they have voluntarily curtailed exports but neither they, other firms, nor the Pacific Coast Log Exporters' Association had any knowledge of the reported understanding.

The International Woodworkers of America proposed a six-month ban on exports as one of several moves to build up log inventories and employment, reduced during a severe winter in B.C.

Robert Wood, of the logging division of the Council of Forest Industries, said here Tuesday the issue is political and the log shortage cannot be blamed on log exports.

"The total amount of log exports from B.C. is only about two to three per cent of the annual production. The basic reason for the domestic shortage has been the weather conditions."

Thousands of men were laid off and small mills closed during the B.C. winter. Wood said logging now is running at 60 to 70 per cent of capacity and should hit 100 again in a few weeks.

Denison Chief Sees New Era In Boring Rig

TORONTO (CP) — You can't blame a miner for taking another job so long as Canadian mines are wet, noisy and out-of-date in their mining methods, says John Kostuik, newly-elected president of the Mining Association of Canada.

A mining man for 40 of his 58 years, Mr. Kostuik, who became president of Denison Mines Ltd. early this year, says Canada must jack up its mining production methods if it is to stay abreast of the world-wide industry.

"In most cases we are still drilling a hole, filling it with explosives and pumping vast quantities of air underground," he says. "I'm looking forward to the time when boring machines and other techniques will replace drilling and blasting."

If production methods and working conditions do not change, he foresees a chronic shortage of miners. Mining wages already are competitive with other industries, he says. But the job must be made more attractive if men are to stay in it.

Mr. Kostuik is chairman of a federal subcommittee on mining research, which aims to increase Canadian productivity and retain skilled workers. He says the boring machine offers the greatest immediate potential for changing hard-rock mining methods.

Already used in some soft-rock mining, the boring machine is being employed in a limited way in hard-rock operations.

Mr. Kostuik says it may be possible to broaden its applications if enough thrust can be generated. However the diameter of the section cut must be more than doubled from its present dimensions to make this possible.

Mr. Kostuik came to Canada with his family from Poland in 1911.

Kostuik spent 18 years as manager for various companies in northern Ontario and Quebec.

He spent four years in Algeria with the Newmont Mining Corp. of New York before joining Denison as mine manager in 1955.

Although Denison —which holds the largest uranium oxide reserves of any company in the world — today has interests in petroleum, cement and real estate, its president says it will continue to be primarily a mining company.

The United States will need an additional 30,000 tons of uranium oxide annually, which is not available in the U.S., in order to meet the demands of utility companies by 1980, Mr. Kostuik says. He sees no prospect of a price decrease in uranium, at least until that time.

Jr. Mines Toscin

TORONTO (CP) — A panel of speakers Tuesday forecast the death of Ontario's junior mining industry unless small companies get more help in raising funds to explore for orebodies.

The panel was sponsored by the Prospectors and Developers Association at its annual meeting. But it resulted in no firm plans on how to meet the situation, which some claim could deal Canadian mining an irreparable blow.

Speakers blamed recent TSE requirements for greater working capital, more detailed filing statements, and limits on brokers' profits on underwritings for a sharp drop in junior mining company listings.

"The mining scene has shifted to British Columbia, because of its good tax climate and reasonable laws," said R. J. Campbell, vice-president of the association.

Gordon Langille, a Toronto lawyer who acts for a number of mining firms, said new financing through the TSE from dropped to $12,000,000 in 1968 $90,000,000 the previous year.

Mining to Seek Improved Image

TORONTO (CP) — A panel of Canada's top mining men agreed Monday their industry must improve its image with both the government and the public if it is to escape crippling taxes.

"Government taxes can mean the difference between bringing marginal mines into production or not," said B. O. Brynelsen, president of Brenda Mines Ltd.

"But too few of our elected representatives understand the problems of bringing in a mine. The situation is largely our fault."

He spoke on the opening day of the Prospectors and Developers Association annual meeting.

He said his company, which is to start copper production in British Columbia next fall, got the financing it needed only after federal government assurances that mining-tax exemptions and depletion allowances would not be ended at least until 1974.

But he predicted "some major low-grade mining properties" in B.C. will not get financing until other tax uncertainties are ended.

J. R. Smith, vice-president of Falconbridge Mines Ltd., told the meeting the mining industry "feels like a rabbit in the hunting season" when tax policies are planned.

"We have to talk more to governments — from ministers down — and to the press," he said. "The industry doesn't try hard enough for good press notices."

March 29 Ballot Set On Money for Schools

DUNCAN — Property owners in the Cowichan school district will vote March 29 on part of their school board's operating budget.

Trustees set the date for the vote on their controversial money bylaw Tuesday night but not before board chairman Bruce Devitt told Trustee Margaret Whittaker he was "sick and tired of your sarcastic comments."

OUT OF ORDER

She cast the only dissenting vote and was ruled out of order when she asked if it was wise to put a bylaw to the taxpayers "for more money than was needed to run the school system."

Devitt said Mrs. Whittaker was interested only in taxpayers, not students.

Trustee Terry Taylor, a school teacher, said "trustees exist solely to facilitate the work that goes on in the classroom."

The school board's operating budget for this year is a working one which has been cut to the bone, said trustee Jack Efford. There will be drastic curtailment of the school program if it is not ratified.

NEW FORMULA

The issue which has pitted Mrs. Whittaker against her fellow trustees arises from the provincial government's new formula for calculating grants towards school board operating budgets.

The school board can levy taxes to cover 110 per cent of a basic education program set by the government without further authority from anyone. But if it wants to spend beyond the 110 per cent ceiling it must get the blessing of the municipal councils involved or pass a money bylaw.

100 PETITIONERS

The new government legislation provides for the money bylaw (which applies to just that portion of the budget above the government ceiling) being forced to a public vote if 100 or more ratepayers petition for it.

Mrs. Whittaker has been prominent in the successful campaing to gather the necessary signatures.

The board's operating budget this year is $4,366,572 and ratepayers will be voting for or against spending the $366,073 above the ceiling.

Hovercraft Back In Service

NANAIMO — Hovercraft service between Nanaimo and Vancouver resumed this morning after a three-day stoppage to permit modifications in the craft's fuel and electrical systems.

Pacific Hovercraft Ltd. vice-president Byng Heeney said today the hovercraft had been experiencing some minor fuel problems.

"Stopping the service was an elective thing," he said. "We were going to wait until our new machines arrived in May before we made the modifications, but we're doing such a heavy business we couldn't afford to wait."

Nugatory? Worthless In 8 Letters

Has Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell been insulted by the Sooke school board?

He may not be sure unless he has a dictionary at his elbow.

"It would seem nugatory for this board to make any further submissions on zoning matters . . ." the board wrote the minister recently in a sharp criticism of Campbell's decision in favor of allowing more trailer courts in the school district.

Nugatory? Good grief!

It's not as bad as it sounds. Webster says it means having little or no consequence; worthless.

TARGET: Youth's Problems

By ED GOULD

DUNCAN — First steps were taken Tuesday night to co-ordinate community interest in forming an information centre to study the social problems of Cowichan Valley youngsters.

A committee was formed from a cross-section of the 50 persons who attended from church, civic, youth and service groups at the meeting called by Cowichan District Teachers' Association.

Chairman Tom Stanko said, "We must co-ordinate our efforts to attempt solutions to these youth problems—one of which is the increased use of drugs—rather than all rushing off in different directions after the same thing."

Participants in the lively discussion that followed lamented the lack of facts available about effects of drugs, the apparent double standard of convicting young persons while ignoring its use among adults, and other aspects.

Teacher A. D. MacLeod of Cowichan senior secondary school said he had attended a recent seminar on drugs and felt it was difficult to justify the cost of the trip because there was little factual information available.

One woman asked if it is true 50 per cent of the students at junior and high schools in the Cowichan Valley had tried drugs. She was told there were no figures available.

School counsellor Art Bellis said he "found it strange that a drug charge had never been laid in the Cowichan Valley.

"In fact I have never even heard a sermon raised against it. Yet, students in class claim they can get drugs from three pushers downtown or right outside junior high schools."

Mayor Jim Quaife assured the meeting the city had a drug problem and "the city fathers are concerned."

He said he was just as concerned about the 50 per cent of youngsters who aren't taking drugs. Who are they? What makes them different? Maybe there is a partial answer there."

Housewife Ann Holden said there is no use trying to pass the buck when there was so little communication between adults and youngsters. She said the police should have been represented at the meeting.

Bill Murray, information officer of the CDTA, initiators of the committee concept, said, "This is not a witch hunt.

"We are not interested in prosecuting or bringing anyone to court. This is a social problem which involves every one of us."

He said the RCMP had been invited but it had been jointly decided to avoid legal complications at this time.

Loggers Return After Up-Island Wildcat Strikes

By MORGAN MacGREGOR

CAMPBELL RIVER—Loggers returned to work this morning at two MacMillan and Bloedel operations after wildcat strikes which started Friday.

Settlement came Tuesday afternoon after talks arranged by industrial relations officer Jack Sherlock.

The walkout at Menzies Bay division involved 165 loggers who stopped work to protest the six-day suspension of a second loader.

He was suspended for leaving a power saw on top of a truck. The saw fell off and was smashed.

THREE DAYS

Sherlock recommended the suspension be reduced to three days.

A total of 110 men took part in the strike at the company's Kelsey Bay division. They walked off in a dispute over travel time payments.

A company spokesman said grievances were discussed and the men agreed to return to work.

No details of the settlement were released.

EMERGENCY REPAIRS create odd sights on Lasqueti Island. Ferry relief skipper Sandy Gillispie carries his exhaust pipe mounted on the front fender of his car. He swears he has the best cooling system in existence—a wet-down from the store's hose when needed—which doubles as a car wash.

WHO CAN FIGURE THE ISLANDERS?

A VISIT TO LASQUETI

Coming . . . Computer Come-Uppance

By Pat Dufour

A University of B.C. computer team is trying to predict the future of the Gulf Islands.

Pity the computers.

The betting is that the unpredictability of the islanders — they've been described in harsher terms — will foul up the statistic jugglers.

The 70 persons on Lasqueti Island, for example, are a breed that defies classification.

City slickers get a hint of what's ahead when they board the Captain Vancouver, a former logging crew boat that now serves as a ferry between the island's False Bay and French Creek, just north of Parksville.

What she lacks in paint (and it's plenty) is made up in character. Her rusted decks bear witness that skipper Ian Cole is a man who believes in fundamentals.

●

Her main salon, if short on frills, suits her passengers.

There's an old chesterfield (probably cast out from someone's rumpus room), three rows of metal chairs and plastic buckets for those whose stomachs might rebel crossing the Strait of Georgia.

A slight tilt to starboard was evident during a recent crossing, no doubt caused by one of two stabilizers that were still being trailed. The one-man crew hadn't hauled it in "since we had the big blow in December."

The ferry usually leaves on time but sometimes there are delays that nobody seems to mind.

One was caused when passengers were pressed into becoming longshoremen to deliver a piano to one of the islander's homes!

Car-testing is unknown on Lasqueti. This is just as well. Few of the island's cars would pass muster.

Typical of Lasqueti cars is an oldtimer driven by Shirley, a happy-go-lucky mother of 12.

She's handy with a knife . . . she has to be. She gets her car under way by doing devious contortions with a tangle of wires and the knife she keeps at the ready on the dashboard.

Bodywork, if done at all, is swift and inexpensive for Lasqueti car-owners.

Our last return trip from Lasqueti was slightly delayed because relief skipper Sandy Gillespie decided to straighten a car bumper before sailing. This was done by backing the car up and strategically connecting with one of the jetty's supports.

Licence plates don't loom too large among islanders.

The island's "mayor," Lorne McKelvey, is one of those who hasn't yet come around to attaching his new ones. He keeps them clean by perching them on the dashboard behind the wheel.

The mayor, as in many a well-run Gulf Island, is owner of the store around which much of the island pivots. He has his own unique plans for municipal improvement.

"A pal and I know where there are traffic lights for sale. We're thinking of getting one and setting it up one night. It would be worth the hoop and holler in the morning."

●

If you're lucky he'll show you some of the toques he knits during the island's quiet hours.

He's careful where he does his knitting when he's off-island.

"You get some darned funny looks from guys when you start knitting on a train!"

About that UBC computer team. Its members apparently are concerned about the influence of outsiders who invade the islands, either as summer residents or on casual trips. They shouldn't be.

If Lasqueti Island is a fair sample, Vancouverites shed their city skins the minute they board the Captain Vancouver. By the time they reach False Bay they're conditioned for the lusty life ahead.

Even easterners have been known to take to island life with the zest of natives.

One of the islanders' foremost citizens is Peter Geddes, a Toronto newspaperman who fell under the island's spell and settled there with his wife and five young children.

The natives and "adopted" islanders are at the ready when it's decided to throw a party. These are rarely of the finger-crooking, cookie-munching variety.

During a tour in the mayor's car, I was shown where 20 guests were dunked in the lake when the ferry skipper decided to turn truck driver after a party.

The water was shallow, the temperature kind, and everyone agreed it was an appropriate finale.

A couple of the islanders when told about the UBC probe were unafraid that a mainland influx might menace their way of life.

●

Their reasoning: "It would be more to the point to worry about what would happen if we ever decided to go to town. It isn't everyone who has the stamina to keep up with a Gulf Islander."

Seals Deal Okay

NEW YORK (CP)—Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, announced Tuesday that the transfer of ownership of Oakland Seals has been approved by the NHL board of governors.

Campbell said the final step to complete the switch from San Francisco Seals Ltd. to Niagara Frontier Hockey Inc. will be March 21 when formal papers are signed. The team will remain in Oakland.

Eighty per cent of the stock of Niagara Frontier Hockey, Inc., is owned by Trans-National Communications. TNC is headed by its board chairman Ellis E. Erdman. The TNC board also includes Edward C. (Whitey) Ford, former New York Yankee pitching star; and Pat Summerall and Dick Lynch, former New York Giant football standouts.

CREASY PRESIDENT

William N. Creasy Jr., who serves as president of TNC Networks Inc., a subsidiary of Trans National Communications, will serve as president of the Seals and will represent Oakland on the NHL board of governors.

The remaining 20 per cent of Niagara Frontier Hockey Inc., is owned by Seymour H. Knox III and Northrup R. Knox of Buffalo. Seymour H. Knox III will serve as alternate governor on the NHL Board.

The Knox brothers had hoped to get NHL approval to transfer the franchise to Buffalo. When the NHL turned down the transfer, the Knox family agreed to sell to Trans National Communications 80 per cent of the ownership of the Seals and the franchise.

LOOK - ALIKES

Although looking alike, no brotherly love will be lost between Chicago Cubs manager Leo Durocher (left) and California Angels' coach Dolph Camilli if their teams ever meet at World Series time. Laughing it up before exhibition game at Palm Springs, they were once National Baseball League playing opponents before Camilli switched to American circuit.

Esposito, Orr, Grant Continue To Maul Big League Scoring Marks

By The Canadian Press

Fans might be wise to throw their copies of the 1968-69 National Hockey League Guide into the nearest garbage pail—the book rapidly is becoming outdated.

NHL players, not the book's editors, are to blame. Many of the records listed in the guide already have been broken and several more may fall before the season ends March 30.

The latest assault on the record book took place in Minneapolis Tuesday night when Phil Esposito extended his points total—every time he gets a point he breaks a record—Danny Grant set a record for rookies, and Bobby Orr tied a record as Boston Bruins and Minnesota North Stars played a 3-3 tie.

Meanwhile, Montreal Canadiens defeated St. Louis Blues 3-0—the Blues are winless in 14 starts against the Canadiens since entering the NHL last year.

HAS 68 ASSISTS

Esposito collected two assists for Boston, he now has 68, the previous mark was 62, and he has 109 points, 12 more than the previous single-season high.

The Boston centre's 68 assists shattered the record of 67 held jointly by Stan Mikita of Chicago Black Hawks and Dickie Moore when he was with Montreal Canadiens. Their totals included playoffs.

Grant scored two goals for Minnesota, his 30th and 31st of the season, to become the highest scoring rookie in NHL history, breaking Bernie Geoffrion's record of 30 set in the 1951-52 season.

Orr scored one goal and assisted on another for Boston to bring his season point total to 59, tying the mark for most points by a defenceman in one season. Pierre Pilote, then with Chicago, collected 59 in 1964-65.

Orr is just a goal shy of tying the record of 20 set by Flash Hollett with Detroit Red Wings in 1944-45.

DEFLECTION DID IT

Centre Ray Cullen had the other Minnesota goal Tuesday night and left winger Ron Murphy picked up two Boston goals.

Minnesota earned the tie when a shot by defenceman Bob McCord bounced into the Boston net off Cullen at 13:47 of the final period.

The tie left the second-place Bruins two points behind first-place Montreal in the Eastern Division, but with two games in hand. Minnesota trails the fourth-place Philadelphia Flyers by three points in the struggle for the final playoff berth in the Western Division.

Yvan Cournoyer and Henri Richard started Montreal off with first-period goals on power plays. Rookie Mickey Redmond added a second period goal for the Canadiens and Gump Worsley gained his fifth shutout of the season.

Cournoyer opened the scoring at 5:04 on a long, bouncing shot which skipped past St. Louis goaltender Glenn Hall, with Blues' defenceman Bob Plager in the penalty box. It was Cournoyer's 40th goal of the season.

MAPLETTES START AGAINST N.B. CLUB

Victoria Maplettes, the Western Canada champions, will face the University of New Brunswick in the opening round of the Canadian senior "A" women's basketball tournament.

The national finals, a four-team, double-knockout tournament, will be staged in Victoria at the weekend.

Winnipeg has been drawn against Windsor in the other first-round game.

Opening games will be played Friday at the University of Victoria gymnasium. The Winnipeg-Windsor game is scheduled to start at 7:30 p.m., followed by the New Brunswick-Victoria match at 9.

Two games Saturday morning will shift to Oak Bay High and the balance of the tournament will be completed at Uvic. Friday's two losers tangle in Saturday's first game at Oak Bay, at 9 a.m., while the winners meet at 10:30 a.m.

Additional games will be played at Uvic at 8 p.m. Saturday night and 1 p.m. Sunday. If a seventh game is required, it will be played at 3 p.m. Sunday.

ESQUIMALT PLAYDOWNS CONTINUE

All teams in the Vancouver Island Hockey League best-of-three series face the same task tonight at Esquimalt Sports Centre— to break a deadlock.

University of Victoria Vikings face Queen's Own Rifles at 8 p.m. with both attempting to step ahead following a 2-2 tie in the series' opener last Friday.

In the second game, at 9:30, league-champion Stockers North Americans battle Butler Brothers after they also tied the opening game, 3-3.

Newfies Create Mixed Reaction

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — A funny thing is happening on the way to the 10th round of the Canadian mixed curling championship, scheduled for Thursday evening.

An Alberta rink is in the lead but Newfoundland, never a winner in national curling competition, is close on the heels of Don Anderson and his Edmonton rink.

Alberta was on top with four consecutive victories going into today's sixth round at 9:30 a.m. Len Kalichak and his Newfoundland rink from Goose Bay followed at 4-1.

But the Newfoundland rink is not composed of native curlers. Kalichak, with his wife Kay playing third and Bill and Lynne Taylor playing second and lead respectively, are all natives of Saskatchewan working with the department of transport in Goose Bay.

MOVES INTO THIRD

Wes Brigham of Nipawin, Sask. skipped his rink into third place with a 3-1 record in the 11-rink, round-robin tournament after the fifth round Tuesday, and Earl Carson and his Quebec rink from Bagotville followed at 3-2.

Rinks skipped by Terry Patton of Brantford, Ont., and Austin Steeves of Halifax were tied for fifth at 2-2. Clarence Doucet of Bathurst, N.B., and Wayne Petch of Kirkland Lake, representing Northern Ontario were 2-3.

Jack Hume and his Manitoba rink from Oak River had a victory in four starts and Barry Naimark of Vancouver and Alan McCurdy of Charlottetown trailed with a win in five games.

Newfoundland came out of a 1-1 opening-day split by walloping previously unbeaten Quebec 12-4 in the third round Tuesday morning before trouncing Manitoba 11-7 in the afternoon and winning 7-6 on the final-shot miss by New Brunswick in the evening.

Meanwhile, Alberta romped to 10-6 victory over British Columbia and a 10-2 win over Ontario.

Brentwood Breezes To Island Rugby Final

Brentwood College crushed visiting Campbell River 25-5 Tuesday and won the right to battle Claremont for the Vancouver Island high school rugby crown Friday at Centennial Stadium.

Philip Ross and Dean Sawyer connected for two trys each while Barry Smith contributed a penalty goal and two converts to pace the smooth-working Brentwood XV. Leading 10-0 at intermission, Brentwood also gained trys from Maurice Stanley and Philip Anoldi.

Tom Conti's try, converted by John Smith, accounted for Campbell River's points.

Claremont meets Brentwood on Friday at 2:30 p.m.

Baseball's Favor Annoys Chargers

SAN DIEGO (AP) — San Diego Chargers of the American Football League contend the city discriminated in favor of San Diego Padres' National League baseball team.

The Chargers filed a cross complaint Tuesday in answer to the city's Superior Court suit for $214,000 in rent for use of the stadium last year. The football team has withheld the rent, contending it is entitled to equal treatment given the Padres, an expansion team.

The Chargers claim that their contract for use of San Diego Stadium allows them the right to modify the agreement if a baseball team becomes a tenant.

The Chargers contend that the city's $306,000 annual payment to a management company operated by the Padres for seven years is, in effect, a subsidy to the baseball team.

The football team has asked for rent-free use of the stadium for seven years.

The cross complaint contends the Chargers' liability to the city is $19,444, less county taxes of $23,813, which leaves the city owing the Chargers $4,371.

FITNESS COUNCIL ENDS BAN ON BOXING GRANTS

OTTAWA (CP) — The national fitness council has announced it will resume financial assistance to amateur boxing in Canada.

In 1966 the council suspended grants to boxing on the grounds that its rules encouraged brain injuries. It ordered Dr. William Orban of the University of Ottawa to conduct a one-man investigation of boxing in Canada.

His report, releases in part last week, said that while there is the possibility of permanent brain damage in the sport, "it cannot be said that in the present context it is greater or less than any other contact sport."

The council said that as a result of this it will lift its ban.

Astro Manager Raps Giles, New Ball Boss

COCOA, Fla. (AP) — H. B. (Spec) Richardson, general manager of Houston Astros, has charged the baseball commissioner and the president of the National League may be withholding information on the retirement of Donn Clendenon.

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said last week that Rusty Staub should report to Montreal Expos and Jesus Alou to Houston Astros for spring training. Warren Giles, National League president, said he was not accepting the request for voluntary retirement from Clendenon, who was traded to Houston with Alou in exchange for Staub.

"This is probably the worst decision ever handed down in the history of baseball," Richardson said.

"They based their decision last week on information they said they had that Clendenon was willing to play," Richardson said. "If they had information on his willingness to play they should have given it to me . . . before making their ruling.

"Either Giles and the commissioner are withholding information or they don't have information.

"The Houston club's position is that Clendenon has expressed a willingness to play to Giles and the commissioner of baseball, why isn't he here in Cocoa working out with the Astros?"

Protection Promise Tendered by Campbell

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, says he will squash any trades involving the return of Western Division players to Eastern Division teams where they originally played.

"There is no way such deals can be transacted if they exist," Campbell told the Minneapolis Star in a telephone interview.

The Star says it has "heard of alleged arrangements involving Minnesota's Claude Larose and Danny Grant, Oakland's Carol Vadnais and Pittsburgh's Jean Pronovost."

Montreal dealt Larose and Grant to the North Stars and Vadnais to the Seals. Pronovost was sent from Boston to Pittsburgh.

"I have heard stories that those players will find their ways back to the clubs from where they came," Campbell said.

"I would think that any transfer sending a player back to a club from which he was obtained would be highly suspect. I just simply would not allow any such transfers."

Jessie Kinneard's Esquimalt rink squeezed victory out of the final end Tuesday and captured the Lalecheur trophy, symbolic of Victoria women's curling supremacy, at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Mrs. Kinneard, calling the shots for third Laurel Eby, second Ollie Reid and lead Linda Paterson, edged Victoria Curling Club's Dorothy Fukuyama, 11-10.

Behind 10-9 going into the 10th and final end, Mrs. Kinneard's foursome was faced with four opposition rocks in the house before Mrs. Eby caught the four-footer with a biter on her last rock.

Mrs. Fukuyama's takeout attempt of the shot-rock went wide but Mrs. Kinneard handed the VCC representative a last chance when her stab at putting on a guard pulled over and left the shot-rock exposed.

Mrs. Fukuyama missed on the takeout attempt and Mrs. Kinneard drew into the four-foot ring to count two for the victory.

Third Betty Stubbs, second Laura Foster and lead Daisy Campbell rounded out Mrs. Fukuyama's rink.

Gullniks Quite Satisfied With Product on Hand . . .

SAN DIEGO (AP) — At a time when most people are yelling for major league status, the officials and fans of San Diego Gulls are different. They don't seem to really care about the National Hockey League.

Screams to go big league, says Gull publicist Reed Nessel, "degrade what you've got."

And the Gulls have it—a product supported by fans who call themselves Gullnicks.

The Gulls, of the Western Hockey League, have been San Diego's sports darling since International Sports Arena and acquired the franchise in 1965.

They didn't win many games that first season but managed to lead the WHL in attendance, as they have ever since.

In fact, the Gulls outdrew the NHL Oakland Seals last season, averaging 9,370 a game to the Seals' 5,716.

Attendance after 32 home games this season is 285,447, an average of 8,920, compared to the NHL Los Angeles Kings' 277,029 at the 31-game mark.

Hockey experts don't expect the NHL to expand again for at least two years.

"San Diego, based on attendance, is one of the logical places for the National League to expand," says Nessel. "Vancouver's out to get a franchise and Buffalo and Baltimore are good hockey towns.

"In another couple of years we may hear talk about it," said Nessel, who in the meantime concurs with his boss.

"The Western Hockey League is a fine league," Breitbard says. "I feel that if and when the NHL would like to invite San Diego to come in, we would have to certainly discuss it."

O.J.'s PRICE . . . . . . MORE THAN TEAM'S

Instant Poverty Feeling

DETROIT (AP) — Ralph Wilson, owner of Buffalo Bills of the American Football League, says he's willing to give O. J. Simpson $1,000,000 —but there's a catch.

"The Bills' player budget is $1,000,000," Wilson said at his Detroit home. "I'm willing to give the $1,000,000 to Simpson or his agents and let him take out what he's worth and pay the rest of the players who give him the ball and block for him."

Wilson, who made enough money selling insurance to finance his venture into professional sports, says he's feeling poor as a result of the O. J. Simpson dealings.

Simpson was placed in Wilson's sphere of influence because:

1. Simpson was considered the best college football player this year in the professional draft.

2. Buffalo Bills were the worst of the several professional teams participating in the draft. In the professional football draft, the worst gets the best. At least the worst gets to negotiate with the best.

Negotiations have apparently stalled over Simpson's flirtation with the $600,000 figure along with what Wilson described as "a very, very substantial fringe benefits," which Simpson asked.

He declined to describe the fringe benefits, but Simpson's agent asked for an attractive business loan.

"I'm not an investment banker," said Wilson.

Comeback Hopes Soar With Conigliaro's Hit

By The Associated Press

A grand-slam home run snapped Boston's winning spring season but Red Sox manager Dick Williams was smiling. His thoughts were on bigger things — like a crashing double by Tony Conigliaro.

Minnesota Twins, aided by Ted Uhlaender's second-inning home run with the bases full, stopped Boston 7-6 Tuesday after the Red Sox had taken their first three spring baseball exhibitions.

In the top of the inning, Conigliaro smashed a pitch by lefthander Jim Ollum off the fence in left centre field for a stand-up double. A strong wind helped cut down what looked like a sure home run.

"He's looked very, very good," said Williams of 24-year-old Tony Conigliaro, who is trying to come back after a near-disastrous beaning by California pitcher Jack Hamilton which fractured his cheekbone on Aug. 18, 1967.

Conigliaro's hit was his first of the spring.

THIS GUY NOT HAPPY

Meanwhile, another fellow named Williams—Ted—wasn't doing much smiling.

The new manager of Washington Senators had seen his team lose five straight times although they did end a scoreless string at 19 innings.

Baltimore Orioles nipped Washington 2-1, helped by 14 bases on balls by Senator pitching. Tim Cullen's run-scoring single in the eighth inning got Washington its run.

In other Florida exhibition games, Atlanta Braves nipped Houston Astros 5-3, Detroit Tigers nipped Pittsburgh Pirates 5-4, Cincinnati Reds topped Kansas City 6-1, New York Mets crushed the Philadelphia Phillies B team 15-7, New York Yankees whipped Chicago White Sox 5-3, St. Louis Cardinals mauled the Phillies 8-1 and Los Angeles Dodgers got by Montreal Expos 4-1.

In Arizona, Oakland crushed San Francisco Giants 11-5, Cleveland Indians nudged San Diego 5-3 and California Angels downed Chicago Cubs 7-4.

In the Los Angeles-Montreal game, Len Gabrielson, ending his holdout shortly before game time, knocked in the Dodgers' winning run in a three-run sixth-inning rally with a ground out. Mack Jones cracked a home run for the Expos.

Another Conigliaro On Scene

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (AP) — A few months ago it looked doubtful that there would be one Conigliaro on the 1969 Boston Red Sox. Now there's a good chance there may be two.

Tony, whose career was feared ended by an eye injury, is hitting the ball hard in exhibition games and giving every indication he can resume his old right field position.

And his young brother Billy, ticketed for more seasoning in the minors, is forcing his way into the picture with a .400 Grapefruit League batting average.

Each brother got a hit and drove in a run in Tuesday's 7-6 loss to Minnesota Twins, and manager Dick Williams was high in his praise of both.

"There isn't a gutsier player in the American League," he said of Tony. "He doesn't complain at all. He's out there doing the job."

Tony got his first hit in six tries Tuesday with a long double against the fence in left centre.

Billy, 21, hit only .238 for Pittsfield in the Class AA Eastern League last season and despite his demonstrated outfield skill he was not really thought to be ready.

"Billy has come into the picture," Williams said. "We always knew he could field, throw and run, and now he's showing us something at the bat."

Billy slammed homers in two games and hit a run-scoring single Tuesday.

Troubled Jerry Releases Eagles

BALTIMORE (AP)—A federal bankruptcy referee Tuesday approved the conditional sale of the Philadelphia Eagles football team for $16,055,000 to Leonard H. Tose, a Norristown, Pa., trucking executive.

Tose won the right to purchase the National Football League team with a last-ditch offer that topped by $5,000 a bid submitted by Thomas D. McCloskey of Philadelphia.

Under terms outlined by Joseph O. Kaiser, federal bankruptcy referee, Tose has 10 days to complete purchase details with Eagle owners Jerry Wolman and Earl Foreman and with creditors owed money by Wolman.

Actual sale of the team would take place on or before May 1, and Wolman will have until Aug. 1 to raise money to reclaim the Eagles.

At the United States District Court hearing, Tose gained approval to buy the club after increasing his original offer by $455,000.

OWED $12,000,000

The hearing was called to consider any bids submitted for the Eagles, whose sale is being forced by creditors who are owed nearly $12,000,000 by Wolman.

Under the terms of the sale, Tose actually could take control of the team anytime before May 1, but Wolman said after the hearing he does not plan to turn over the Eagles before this deadline.

The final sales contract must be approved by the secured creditors, one of which is McCloskey and Co. Inc., headed by the unsuccessful bidder.

Wolman said he will continue to run the Eagles' affairs until the sale is finalized and said he hopes to have a decision on the future of head coach Joe Kuharich "within 30 days."

Tose, 54, is preparing to purchase a team that compiled a 2-12 record last year.

PRAGUE (CP) — The team that will represent the United States in the world hockey championship in Stockholm next week played together for the first time Tuesday and absorbed an 11-0 exhibition shellacking from the Czechoslovakian national team.

But it was Mike Curran, slightly-built goalie from Green Bay Bobcats of the U.S. Hockey League, who drew the cheers from the capacity crowd of 18,000

Curran kept the team—which took the ice after 26 hours in transit without sleep—in the game in the early stages. He was nearly asleep in the dressing room afterwards.

"They don't shoot all that hard, but they tire you out," he said. "They work in so close and they keep coming at you.

"And mostly it's wrist stuff snapped right off a pass. They don't often wait, wind up and slap shoot. They showed us a lot, the score proves that."

John Van Essen, owner of the Bobcats and assistant manager of the U.S. team, said the Bobcats form the nucleus of the U.S. team "because we were way out ahead in our league."

The rest of the club is made up of players from Rochester and Minneapolis, welded together by playing-coach John Mayasich.

Canada's team also arrived in Prague Tuesday en route to Stockholm. The Canadians play Czechoslovakia's first team tonight.

Uranium Pact Set in Europe

LONDON (AP) — Britain, West Germany and The Netherlands are reported ready to push forward with plans for producing enriched uranium that could lead to an industrial bonanza—or to atom bombs.

Representatives of the three countries met Tuesday to discuss the gas centrifuge method of producing enriched uranium, the fuel for the world's expanding nuclear power industry. It also is the stuff from which A-bombs are made.

Scientists and diplomats have prepared a series of studies on the feasibility of building a pilot centrifuge plant in Europe. The goal is to break American near monopoly on enriched uranium.

This would give the European nations a flying start into a market likely to expand tenfold by 1980.

Britain's technology minister, Anthony Wedgwood Benn, is leading the conference here. The other delegates are West Germany's scientific research minister, Gerhard Stoltenberg, and Dutch Foreign Minister Joseph Luns.

The gas centrifuge is relatively inexpensive means of separating fissionable atoms from unusable particles by spinning gaseous uranium at high speed.

The only enrichment method in industrial use today, is gaseous diffusion. There are three diffusion plants in the United States and two smaller ones in Britain and France.

Wins 15th Term

NEW YORK (AP) — Joseph Curran, first and only president of the National Maritime Union since it was founded in 1937, has been re-elected to his 15th term. Returns made public Tuesday gave Curran 17,395 votes to 3,747 for Richard J. Haake, the next highest candidate.

TORIES VOTE CONFIDENCE IN QUEEN

OTTAWA (CP)—The Queen won a vote of confidence at the Progressive Conservative party's general meeting Tuesday.

The meeting voted 166 to 46 to retain in the party constitution a reference to loyalty to the Queen.

The constitution committee headed by Heath Macquarrie, MP for Hillsborough, had recommended that the reference be eliminated.

Pot luck today, and for a start, here's a mystery story.

It dates back to July of last year when the G. R. Pearkes Clinic for Handicapped Children was still many months away from the longed-for move into fine new quarters off Arbutus Road.

A letter arrived in the mail one sunny day. It contained a $20 bill and this message:

"God bless you in your very fine work."

The note was unsigned, and carried no return address. Neither did the envelope in which it arrived.

Since then, at least once each month and several times twice, similar blessings have turned up in the Clinic's mail. Each was accompanied by a $20 bill.

Sendings now total 11, and clinic directors who will take possession of a new $650,000 unit on Friday still haven't the slightest clue to the secret benefactor's identity.

However, I have been asked by board president Fred Tanner to pass on a message from Clinic staff and directorate.

It runs like this:

"We don't know who you are, but we greatly appreciate yor help, and wish to express our sincere gratitude."

(You got that, mystery person? Thanks and gratitude to one who deserves 'em!)

Here's a highly significant 'Help Wanted' ad, culled from a recent issue of 'Bio Science' and forwarded by Enqual, which translates into British Columbia Association for Environmental Quality.

"A West Coast state college," it reads, "is founding a cluster college for the study of environmental science." Then it goes on to request applications for the position of dean.

This, I'm assured, is but one of many moves aimed at counteracting present misuse of North American resources and bringing about an improved balance between man and the nautral world on which he depends for his very existence.

The proposed new college setup is described as "typical of the growing interest in inter-disciplinary studies of man's environment. Departments, faculties and institutes of environmental studies, environmental science, resource management, regional planning and resource development have been formed at various institutions."

This does seem to indicate that in some quarters at least, thoughtful men and women are probing an area in which the answers to future human existence on our globe may lie.

The conservationist used to walk alone as a figure more derided than heeded. I think that time is passing, but whether pollution, misuse of resources and massive spoilage will be checked this side of the point of no return, I'm less sure.

The telephone that sits on my desk is both friend and enemy.

On Tuesday morning, as deadline edged closer, I waited for it to bring in a long distance call from Rochester, Minn.

If you have followed Florenda Joy Dick's story since I passed it on to you halfway through our meanest January, I'm sure you will understand how hard that waiting was.

The message, when it did come, would be literally one of life or death.

Then the phone rang; and as you know, it brought good news.

I had expected the caller to be Florenda's uncle, Neil Tenner of Morden, Man., Mr. Tenner had gone down to Rochester so that Mrs. David Dick wouldn't have to worry out a tense day alone.

Instead, the voice at the other end was Sadie Dick's. We talked for no longer than a minute ... but that was long enough.

The little blonde snooks on whose behalf you stirred up such a money-storm is not out of the woods yet.

But she is resting easy, the hours of open-heart surgery survived. If all continues to go well, she'll come home to Victoria, and a new life, in early April.

Canadian Firms Urged to Widen Their Horizons

Canadian companies that continue to manufacture primarily for the domestic market are "for the high jump," said industrialist Leonard Hynes today in Victoria.

Hynes, president of Canadian Industries Ltd. and of the Canadian council of the International Chamber of Commerce, said there must be more development in Canadian industry to enable it to compete internationally.

TOO CONTENT

"We are too content to be provincial," he said in an interview before addressing a Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce luncheon. There is too much emphasis on raw exports, he said.

British Columbia would have a greater appreciation of the primary export role than the rest of the country, he said, since forestry and mining are based on foreign markets.

But domestic secondary industry must also thrive.

"Plants to supply the domestic market are no good any more. If we go on doing what we have been doing we're for the high jump. We are just not competitive unless our plants are as big as those in Germany, the U.S. and Japan."

TALENTS

Hynes said there is Canadian talent for this development, but it must be put to work.

As president of the Canadian council on the international chamber Hynes said he had been trying to revive the Canadian role. During May and June he will lead a delegation of some 35 top businessmen to the ICC biennial congress in Istanbul, which will discuss the role, rights and responsibilities of the international corporation.

'No Patient to Feel Cut Off' In Modern, Airy Mental Clinic

By PETE LOUDON

The "most modern, up-to-date, psychiatric building in the world" was the way former provincial health minister Eric Martin today described the building which bears his name.

Due to open in late spring, the Eric Martin Institute of Psychiatry will do more than administer to the mentally ill.

It will have an economic impact on Victoria like the opening of another major shipyard or manufacturing plant in the community payroll it will represent.

This became evident in a preview of the new facility granted the Times and the former minister who came out of retirement for an inspection on the $7 million, six-storey institution east of Royal Jubilee Hospital.

The institution, to be administered by Royal Jubilee will employ a minimum of 400 persons with an estimated payroll of $3 million in caring for 170 bed patients and untold hundreds of day patients and outpatients.

Martin, who retired from politics in 1966, was a guiding force in creating the new mental hospital which will serve all of Vancouver Island.

He said that he and former deputy minister of mental health, Dr. Allen Davidson, now of Ottawa, went to the University of Southern California and to the Clark Institution in Toronto to examine the finest facilities then existent—and they believe they surpassed them in their planning.

IMPOSING new mental hospital peers over Oak Bay through tinted glass. No windows are barred and emphasis in design is on space and light. Building is air conditioned. Each floor has a dining area and each residential area of 25 persons will function as a group. Single, double and four-bed rooms augment larger wards. Site is bounded by Fort, Lee and Trent. Wide drive enters from Trent Street.

Armored Glass, No Bars

Nothing in the new institute is reminiscent of mental hospitals previously seen in this province. There are no bars and the whole emphasis is on light and airy surroundings.

Huge windows of armoured glass which can withstand the running body of a 150-pound man without strain, make the entire unit a part of the community. On every side are views of homes and gardens and people in their normal pursuits.

"No patient," said the inspecting officials, "need ever feel cut off."

There is a roof garden open to the sun above a two-storey wing and another open exercise area on the sixth floor. There is a second floor balcony surrounding the 400 by 400 by 100 foot perimeter of the building. (Eight laps is a mile of exercise.)

The hospital features four-bed wards, and some larger, the beds separated by closets and thus becoming private cubicles. There are spacious activity and therapy areas—some of them with sliding dividing walls which can be opened for dances or closed for intimate dining.

Each floor has dining spaces and distribution kitchens served by mobile steam tables which return to the main lower floor kitchens. Tubs for trees and shrubs decorate all outdoor areas.

The present Mental Health Centre on the Fort Street end of the building will be moved into the institute and then that building will be demolished, said project inspector Ralph Lindblad of the department of public works. The new building was designed and supervised entirely by the department.

Difficult to Find Staff

Official opening will be announced by the present Health Minister Ralph Loffmark or his deputy Dr. F. G. Tucker. Before then, furnishing must be completed and staff recruited.

There will be three shifts each day of staff and attendants.

At one point Mr. Martin said "It's going to be a job getting staff."

Later a department spokesman said there will be an active recruitment and already there have been many enquiries from persons who wish to work there.

It is anticipated that although nursing staff will be drawn from the Riverview Training School, many ward positions will be filled locally and a measure of staff training will be undertaken here.

Twenty of the new beds are reserved for children who are acutely psychotic—who have lost contact with their surroundings and emotionally disturbed children also will be treated.

Those who require physical care and extended treatment will be treated mainly at the $4.9 million Glendale Hospital for which a contract was recently awarded. It will rise near the Wilkinson Road Institute and will contain 300 beds.

The emphasis on the Eric Martin Institute will be on short, intensive treatment.

The whole building is of reinforced concrete construction using materials equal to those of 300 homes. The reinforcing steel would have been sufficient to build 425 cars. The building is air conditioned throughout.

Tender Call Soon On Widening Job

Tenders will be called for widening Patricia Bay Highway "as soon as we possibly can," Highways Minister Wesley Black said Tuesday.

He was replying to a question from John Tisdalle, member of the legislature for Saanich and The Islands constituency.

A delay in starting work resulted from bad winter weather which slowed survey work.

Announcement of the widening program, which will see four lanes built almost all the way from Patricia Bay Airport to Town and Country Shopping Centre, was made late last year. Cost was estimated at $5 million.

Work has started on several stretches of the highway where the department is using day labor.

Stretches which are to go to tender are between Telegraph Bay Road and Ardwell Road, 6.8 miles, and Chesterlea subdivision to Viewmont, 1.5 miles.

Day labor will be used between Carey Road and Chesterlea, 1.75 miles, and Viewmont to Telepgraph Bay Road, five miles.

Specific plans have not been announced for the junction of Trans-Canada Highway and Pat Bay near Town and Counctry Shopping Centre.

QUADRA WIDENING

Tisdalle also asked whether the department had plans to widen Quadra Street since the route will be "an important detour" when work on the highway begins.

"The answer is yes," said Black.

However, Saanich engineer Nevill Life said this morning he knows of no plans beyond the presently-contemplated work.

Quadra has already been widened to four lanes from MacKenzie Avenue to Kenneth and the strip from Kenneth to Nicholson is expected to be added soon. The total distance for this combined strip on Quadra is half a mile.

From there to the junction with Patricia Bay Highway, about one mile, is two lanes.

"We don't have the money or the intention to go further this year," said Life.

TWO YEARS

Asked if he thinks Quadra Street will become an alternative entrance to Pay Bay for Victoria, he said "our view has always been that Quadra will become a very important street. We are thinking in terms of at least a two-year program for the balance. It's (action) is up to next year's council."

Cost of four-laning Quadra right to Pat Bay, with all the extras like curbs and gutters and storm drainage, would be over $200,000.

Life said it could be four-laned for "a great deal less" without the extras.

"I think the next stage should be two lanes with two gravel shoulders as the next economical stage," he said.

Saanich to Save Some Trees Along Separated Shelbourne

Saanich intends to preserve at least some of the memorial trees lining Shelbourne Street in the face of demands by increasing traffic.

The trees were planted after the First World War as a memorial to those who were killed.

The municipal public works committee recommended Tuesday night that Saanich buy a 25-foot strip on the west side of Shelbourne to permit a dual carriageway for the last half mile from Kenmore to Mount Douglas Park, leaving a line of trees on the central median.

There would be four lanes of traffic, two on each side.

Engineer Neville Life pointed out the proposal at this time, which requires council approval, is to buy the land. There was no intention to do the work for five years or so.

South of Kenmore will eventually see the memorial trees go.

"I would assume that traffic will demand a four-lane highway and then regrettably the trees will have to go," said Life.

But small trees Saanich has planted behind the memorial trees would remain.

Tourist Men Breathing Easier As American Travel Unhampered

Travel bureau and hotelmen here were relieved today by assurances the new administration in the U.S. will not impede foreign travel.

They said an anticipated bumper year for tourism here is almost certain.

U.S. Secretary of Commerce Maurice H. Stans said in Washington Tuesday the Nixon administration "will not tax or propose any other inhibitions on travel by American citizens in foreign countries."

Former president Lyndon B. Johnson had proposed a tax on foreign travel and overseas spending. While the tax was never effected and countries in the western hemisphere were exempted, some travel authorities feared the idea might gain strength.

Local travel bureau operator C. E. Blaney said, "This removes all doubt." He said he participates in arrangements for tour groups and individuals coming here from the U.S. on vacation trips. The service is increasing every year.

At the Empress Hotel where most U.S. tour groups register during the peak three-month tour season, manager Louis Finamore said, "We are expecting the best summer since the hotel opened.

"Tour groups have been holding up very well indeed."

He agreed the assurance from Washington was comforting to the hotel's long-range planning.

Word Soon On Second New Hotel

Nordal Group Modifies Big Waterfront Project

The announcement of a $25 million Reid Centre development on Wharf Street has revitalized plans for a comparable project just across the street.

Architect John Wade, who unveiled a $10 million hotel-convention centre project last Aug. 2, said the Reid proposal should provide the impetus to get his client's plans off the ground in the near future.

Wade designed the 34-storey hotel and convention centre building on the instructions of the Nordal family and a group of local businessmen.

The project appeared doomed to failure after Victoria city council failed to come to terms with the Nordals on the detailed plans for the convention centre and a clear-cut financing proposal.

But Wade said Tuesday afternoon that the $25 million Reid Centre project was the "best thing that could have happened" for his clients.

"We have known about the Reid development for some time," he said. "It just confirmed our faith in the area. Within the next few weeks we shall be announcing a comparable project on our original site."

OPPOSITE

The first Wade proposal would have located the multi-storey hotel and convention centre between Government and Wharf and Broughton and Courtney Streets, roughly opposite the Reid project which will be located directly on the waterfront.

Wade declined to reveal details of the new plan but said it would be the original proposal "modified." He offered no elaboration on the term, but it is understood that the new proposal will not include a convention centre.

Wade also declined to state where the financing for the new venture would come from other than to say "we have a group keenly interested, very keenly interested and they will be prepared to make an announcement in the near future."

AMERICAN GROUP

He added the interested group was American.

At least two primarily American hotel groups — Western International and Holiday Inn—have been showing recent interest in acquiring hotel sites in Victoria.

Neither have made any public disclosures on their plans although Western did at one time intend to join with the CPR in the hotel operational field in Victoria. The proposed partnership has since fallen by the wayside.

To date the CPR-Empress Hotel convention centre proposal, also to be unveiled in detail within the next few weeks, has a clear field in the city.

Tuesday J. A. Reid, president of Reid Properties Ltd., prime developers of the $25 million project, gave his blessing to the convention centre on the Empress parking lot site.

Privately he said his company could not compete with the CPR's offer to pick up 25 per cent of all operating losses once such a convention centre was built.

BALLROOM

In the plans for the Fort Victoria Inn, a 25-storey 320 room hotel to be built on the Wharf Street waterfront site, there is, however, provision for an 800 seat ballroom and a 500 to 600 seat theatre.

Combined the two could handle the majority of large conventions coming to Victoria.

"But," said Reid, "it is not our intention to compete with a convention centre. We feel the (CPR) proposal is a good one and are delighted to see it moving ahead."

CONTEST WINNER in the provincial Cancer Fund essay competition is Sheri Robertson, a 12-year-old Grade 7 student at Macaulay School, who received $25 and a plaque from campaign chairman Stan Moore this morning. Campaign officially gets under way April 1.

Protester To Become Gift-Giver

Glen McTaggart has found himself a job.

McTaggart, the 22-year-old unemployed student, met with Canada Manpower officials Tuesday for a second interview on the findings of an outdoor survey he made, primed by Manpower's inability to place him in employment.

He now says that "they (Manpower officials) are good people but need more power."

He reports that he will not need Manpower's help.

"I'm going to help start a 'free shop' where customers will be given gifts.

"There's no giving in the world today. We've got to start somewhere. I do carving, lots of the girls are making purses, beaded things, vests and attractive clothes."

McTaggart has no qualms about financing.

"My wife is working. As long as I and my friends have something to give we'll be in business."

Q. I would like to know what became of Della Street and Paul Drake of the Perry Mason show, now that the shows are all repeats. I do not remember their real names.—J. R.

A. Barbara Hale (Della Street in the show) is now a housewife, living in Los Angeles with her ex-actor husband, Bill Williams. William Hopper, better known as Paul Drake, is appearing in stock shows.

Q. On June 14 of this year my parents will celebrate the 50th anniversary of their wedding. How do I arrange to have a telegram of congratulations sent to them from Her Majesty the Queen and also the Prime Minister of Canada?—R. W. C.

A. Congratulatory telegrams can be arranged by contacting Cmdr. Garfield Dixon, secretary to the Lieutenant-Governor, at Government House, Victoria. If your parents live in Victoria they would receive telegrams from Prime Minister Trudeau, the lieutenant-governor, Premier W. A. C. Bennett and Mayor Hugh Stephen. Congratulatory messages from the Queen are only received on the occasion of a 60th wedding anniversary.

Bennett Wants Indian Affairs

'They Must First Approach Ottawa to Withdraw:' Premier

Premier Bennett Tuesday offered to set up a British Columbia department of Indian affairs if the Indians themselves approach Ottawa and get the federal government to withdraw from the field.

The announcement came shortly before the 11:30 p.m. conclusion of a tense house sitting and prompted an angry Opposition Leader Robert Strachan to hurl a charge of "cheap politician" at the premier.

Bennett had risen to tell Frank Calder (NDP—Atlin) the labor department would begin an investigation into the Indian MLA's charges that trade unions in the province are discriminating against Indians.

He said his government does not discriminate against Indians and said the time had come "for a completely new approach" to Indian problems.

If the Indians came to the province and agreed to hold their land in perpetuity — so that no person "of any other racial origin" can take it away — and undertake to set up municipal governments — the province was willing to take over all matters relating to Indians.

SPECIAL BENEFITS

Then he added that if the federal government agreed, B.C. will set up a provincial department of Indian affairs and make all provincial services available to the Indian population "plus special benefits which must go to our native people forever because this was their land before any other racial origins came."

Calling his government a government of reform, Bennett said the "greatest reform we want is to help the Indian brotherhood of this province."

The first thing they are entitled to is jobs.

The premier then silenced opposition reply by withdrawing the Indian advisory commission vote under debate.

This prompted Strachan to shout: "You're a cheap politician. You're playing cheap politics with the native Indians of this province."

"You're on your way out," Bennett called back. "You're finished."

Chairman Herb Bruch (SC—Esquimalt) ordered Strachan to withdraw his statement and the New Democrat said, "All right, you're an expensive politician — too expensive for this province and that's why you're heading for defeat at the next election."

RED WITH RAGE

"You're a has-been," Bennett and Attorney-General Leslie Peterson shouted together.

"And you're the worst premier this province has ever had," concluded Strachan, his face red with rage.

Interviewed outside the house, Bennett said the Indians themselves must take the initiative.

With Ottawa's approval, the Indian municipalities would have access to all services including schools, highways, sewerage and welfare.

Bennett's statement to the house followed a speech by Tom Berger (NDP — Vancouver-Burrard) in which the government was challenged to extend full services to Indians on reservations.

Berger accused the government of allowing discrimination against native Indians in prosecuting them under the provincial Wildlife Act for exercising their ancient hunting and fishing rights.

He added that in some parts of the province Indians are not selected for jury duty.

There were no constitutional barriers keeping the government from allowing the Indian people the same social and economic benefits as non-Indians.

"The situation on the reserves in B.C. ought to concern this government," said Berger.

The federal Indian affairs department had failed to adequately provide for Indians during "100 years of colonial bureaucracy."

Never a Queen For Oak Bay

Premier Bennett called the shots Tuesday while Highways Minister Wesley Black rejected a plea for a new ferry to be named after Oak Bay.

The relayed argument involved Allan Cox (L—Oak Bay) during debate on Black's salary estimates in the legislature.

The Liberal MLA noted that Black had expressed a desire to see the B.C. ferry service expand to keep pace with growing traffic.

"I hope that means I'll be able to tell my constituents that the government is going to christen a new ferry the Queen of Oak Bay," observed Cox.

Premier Bennett swivelling his chair to face Black and showing only his back to Cox, said quietly to the highways minister: "No."

"No," said Black over the premier's head to Cox.

"How about just a small ferry then?" asked Cox over Bennett's head to Black.

"The answer is no," said Bennett to Black.

"The answer is no," said Black to Cox.

"A lifeboat perhaps?" asked Cox.

Premier Bennett spun his chair around and jumped up in front of Black.

"My honorable friend needs a canoe," he shouted gleefully.

"And you need a paddle," David Barret (NDP—Coquitlam) shouted at Bennett.

Enlightened Society Can Use a Speed-Up

Speed up, says John Tisdalle.

The Social Credit member for Saanich and The Islands suggested Monday Victoria's late-afternoon traffic tie-up would be untied faster if drivers were permitted to drive faster.

During debate on highways department estimates, Tisdalle recommended speed limits be raised on highways and said the limits on downtown one-way streets could stand going up five miles an hour to 35.

It would be "most in keeping with an enlightened society."

As things now stand, "30 miles an hour on main streets in our cities is as outmoded as bicycles."

Tisdalle recalled following a police cruiser down Government Street the other day at a handy 40 miles an hour. The road was clear and the higher speed seemed reasonable for "intelligent people behind the wheels — like policemen and politicians," he added with a grin.

Tisdalle called Interurban Road past the under-construction vocational school "one of the most dangerous bits of road in the territory."

Twists and sharp rock outcrops along narrow sections warranted reconstruction through to the highway to avert traffic congestion at Royal Oak and to provide easier school access.

But Black said improvements to the road are not as necessary now as they might be in a year.

Questioned by Tisdalle about road construction in the Gulf Islands, the minister said more paving is planned on Galiano Island this summer and said plans are under way to pave the East Point Road on Saturna Island.

Robert Williams (NDP—Vancouver East) said privately owned roads "should not be tolerated" on Vancouver Island or in any of the major valleys in the province.

Four Face Bad Trip Over Flights

Three of British Columbia's four ministers without portfolio face a bad trip over flight time when their paycheques come up for legislative scrutiny.

As the house Tuesday discussed flight logs of provincial government aircraft tabled by Highways Minister Wesley Black, the minister said he has never questioned the desire of any cabinet minister "to go from here to there" aboard the three planes.

David Barrett (NDP—Coquitlam) was asking about the administrative procedure for getting a ride on the planes which "seem to be tied up mostly by ministers without portfolio."

Black said he assumed the ministers are all quite capable of answering for themselves whether they were on government business when they used the planes.

Barrett noted the logs showed:

Phil Gaglardi flew into or out of Kamloops, his home constituency, 46 times in the 10 months after he lost his highways portfolio in March, 1968. At the time, the minister was under heavy criticism for using a department-leased Lear jet for non-government purposes;

Meanwhile, Grace McCarthy flew into or out of Vancouver 72 times. Most of those trips were to or from Victoria. Mrs. McCarthy is the member for Vancouver-Little Mountain;

And Patricia Jordan was into or out of Kelowna, near her home in Vernon, 32 times;

Barrett said most of these flights tied up pilots' time on weekends. He asked who decided whether the business warranted this expenditure.

ON GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

Black said the first criterion of using the aircraft is that passengers must be on government business.

Asked whether the ministers apply to Black for a seat on the planes, Black said they can go directly to "a young lady in the highways department" who acts as booking agent.

Barrett asked whether the department is encouraging use of commercial flights in the province.

Liberal Leader Pat McGeer expressed surprise at the number of these flights over routes covered by commercial flights.

There is jet service to the interior and a regular service between Vancouver and Victoria.

McGeer said these flights would be better "in view of the shocking overlap of government aircraft taking ministers back and forth between Vancouver, Victoria and Kelowna."

Commercial bookings would be cheaper than having the government plane make a special trip from their home base in Victoria.

Black said the use of commercial flights is encouraged.

It was the last major question before the house passed the $137.9 million highways department estimates at 9:25 p.m. after some nine hours of debate.

'Nowhere Elderly Can Go to From Boarding Homes'

By PETE LOUDON

Greater Victoria health and welfare officials are concerned with complaints that elderly persons who are ill are being kept in boarding homes when they should be in nursing homes.

But although this is contrary to the Welfare Institutions Licencing Act, the officials are hampered in correcting the situation—there just aren't enough private hospitals to meet the demand.

Senior Metro Health Officer, Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread said "The whole problem is, we haven't enough beds in private hospitals or hospitals operated by non-profit groups or by the regional board."

Victoria welfare administrator Alex Davidson stated that when his department becomes aware that a boarding home inmate has become a bed patient every attempt is made to move him.

REST HOMES

"We try to get the patient out and into a private hospital or into one of the rest homes where there is a nurse on staff.

"But in some cases you can't remove them because a hospital bed is not available."

Davidson said it was not the fault of the private nursing homes or that they were refusing to take patients whose care is paid by welfare. They have waiting lists of both privately paying and welfare patients.

A side effect of the situation according to some authorities is that where a boarding home must care for bedbound patients, costs of care rise.

In some cases this brings about economies in operation which give rise to complaints about food and general care.

A recent spate of complaints to the Times, difficult to pin down, have been discussed with local authorities who are responsible for inspections of boarding homes.

ENFORCEMENT NOT EASY

Dr. Whitbread replied, "If there are any such reports we'd like to hear of them."

Welfare administrator Davidson said his department's placement centre for persons seeking boarding homes has been recently augmented by a new inspector but enforcement of the act is not always easy.

A B.C. government welfare department official admitted problems exist with overcrowding. Until recently the relative lack of boarding homes in up-Island centres resulted in Victoria being a focal point for elderly residents from rural areas as well as the urban district.

He said the provincial department has been studying the act and regulations for four years. But enforcement is difficult when boarding homes are faced with caring for elderly people who go there healthy and then take sick and no other place is open to them.

TOO COSTLY

It becomes costly for the operator who has to increase his complement of staff above the level of one attendant per five lodgers, or if he must bring in nursing staff.

All officials agree the greatest hope for the future is that with the approaching provision of new extended care hospitals here, private hospitals and boarding homes will find some relief. A recent referendum provides for about 600 beds of which the first 150 will be built at Gorge Hospital.

"It is hard to make it tougher for the operator" or make him raise his standards, until we can remove some of these nursing cases.

GOOD RULE

He said a good rule of thumb is that no one should be accepted for boarding home care unless he is able to make his own way to a place of safety in an emergency.

The official added that perhaps the greatest need is for relatives and visitors to assume greater responsibility in seeing that boarding home guests are comfortable.

"Often old people are afraid to open their mouths to inspectors."

He could see a definite need for a higher grade type of boarding home where occupational therapy was used to a greater extent to restore flagging patients and avoid as long as possible the necessity to move them to nursing care.

Bertrand Plans Mineral Rights Talks

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand said Tuesday, Quebec, Ontario and Manitoba plan to hold talks aimed at reaching agreement concerning the division of offshore mineral rights in Hudson Bay and James Bay.

Mr. Bertrand made the announcement in the national assembly after tabling a letter received from Prime Minister Trudeau Feb. 27 regarding the administration of mineral resources in those regions.

Mr. Bertrand last week tabled a letter to the prime minister in which he restated the Quebec view that provinces have exclusive ownership of natural resources, including those offshore.

Ottawa has offered coastal provinces administration over and revenue from mineral rights close to shore. The federal government is willing to share revenue from the federally-administered zone farther off shore.

Resources Minister Paul Allard told the assembly a meeting of provincial resources ministers in Halifax last July dealt with the division of mineral rights.

He also said Quebec, Ontario and Manitoba had reached the verbal agreement on the division of mineral rights in Hudson Bay and James Bay and this agreement should be ratified in writing.

Mr. Allard recalled that Quebec, Prince Edward Island New Brunswick and Newfoundland had reached agreement at the Halifax meeting on the division of mineral rights in the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

HE'S MUM OVER TV BILL

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand declined comment Tuesday night on the federal government's education television bill, which received first reading in the Commons Monday.

He told reporters the Quebec position in educational and cultural matters has been explained often enough.

He referred to a speech last November in which he said that "in broadcasting, including television, it is evident that Quebec must reserve its exclusive role in formal eduation matters and a necessary role in cultural and educational matters in the broadest sense."

The federal bill makes it possible for provincial governments to broadcast educational programs using federal facilities operated by a special agency.

The agency is to finance, build and run broadcasting stations in the provinces for educational purposes. Programs are subject to provincial approval.

MEALS-ON-WHEELS

They Dished It Out Quickly But Carefully

By ELIZABETH FORBES

I stood in a corner of the spotlessly clean kitchen at Goodwill Enterprises on Monday morning and watched 34 meals assembled, packed and taken off to shut-ins in various parts of the city of Victoria.

Forbes

Being the first day in this latest Meals-on-Wheels project, a few gremlins did creep in. But even at that, the complete run-through was accomplished and the meals were on the road in little over a half-hour.

In charge of cooking and assembling the food is Pat Hannon, Goodwill Enterprises cafeteria chef. He's a Scot with more than 30 years' experience.

His assistant, Stan Chernish, can chalk up just about as many years in the business.

When the food was cooked to Pat's satisfaction, he and Stan formed an assembly line with three Goodwill Enterprise food trainees (two men and a young woman).

TV trays were passed along this line to be filled with a breaded pork chop, brown gravy, creamed potatoes, creamed carrots and a small container of apple sauce. At the end of the line they were covered with heavy foil, pricked once with a fork to let any steam escape, then loaded on a serving truck and trundled to the other side of the kitchen.

★ ★ ★

There, under the watchful eyes of Miss Bess Riddell, volunteer drivers and helpers loaded these trays into neat wooden boxes, each partitioned to hold eight of the dinners.

While this was going on, a trainee was filling cardboard containers with enough cellophane-wrapped dinner rolls, pats of butter and cartons of dessert to go with the boxes of hot foods.

Working in teams of two, drivers and their assistants picked up the hot boxes, gathered in a companion one of desserts and rolls, and before you could say "scat" were on their way to make deliveries.

★ ★ ★

It all looked like a mighty smooth production. But Bess Riddell, who has been busy for weeks organizing and briefing volunteer drivers and assistants, is sure that by Friday it will be even better.

On Monday one of the tray boxes didn't arrive (something to do with glue not setting properly). This meant that in the crucial half-hour while meals were being assembled, trays that were to go in the missing box had to be divided among the others.

Drivers had to be briefed that they had an extra tray aboard and addresses had to be added to their original lists.

★ ★ ★

"It all increased our opening morning jitters," Bess said, "but we managed to get through it."

Indeed they did "get through it." Those meals were delivered and drivers and assistants were returning empty containers to the Goodwill kitchen within an hour.

Wooden boxes for the TV trays, all insulated with foam rubber and with carrying handles, were made by members at the Silver Threads Centre in Centennial Square. A group of women in the same centre are now working on padded sleeves (much like oven mitts) to slip over the TV trays for added warmth, before they go in the boxes.

★ ★ ★

Meals-on-wheels will be available in Victoria Monday to Friday inclusive each week. Menus are changed every day.

Six teams each made up of a volunteer driver and assistant will deliver the meals each day. A captain has been named for every group of six teams, to draw in alternate volunteers when needed and to keep the address lists up-to-date.

On the initial list there were 50 applications for meals, mainly from shut-ins, handicapped persons and from people living alone and convalescing from illnesses. These, when checked out were reduced to 34 "for a start". It's expected many more will soon be added.

Besides Victoria, the Meals-on-Wheels project includes four shut-ins in Esquimalt, five in Oak Bay and 24 in Saanich. These municipalities have their own delivery systems.

Trailer Court 'Ignores' Board

The Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health voted Tuesday to seek legal advice in a health-sewage dispute over a new trailer court on the Songhees Indian reserve on Craigflower Road.

The board will also write to the federal minister responsible for Indian affairs.

Board chairman Roy Elphick, an Esquimalt alderman, said the trailer park is not supposed to be occupied until health board approval is given.

17 TRAILERS

As of late last week, there were 17 trailers. Sewerage had not been approved by the health board, the provincial government or Esquimalt municipality, he said.

"We did receive a blunt letter that the lessee (Glenkey Mobile Homes Limited) would proceed regardless, which perhaps indicates they have no consideration for rules and regulations," he said.

The board had contacted the regional supervisor of Indian affairs and "it doesn't seem that even that department is concerned about health regulations for this particular park."

Asked about board jurisdiction over Indian lands, senior medical health officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread said there have been cases elsewhere where lessees of Indian land have been taken to court by health boards and the case won.

"The Victoria prosecutor is quite prepared to take action," he added.

Elphick said in addition to not complying with provincial health regulations, there was a threat the project will overload sewage facilities on Craigflower Road which could backup sewage in basements.

He said the development is in the process of connecting sewers to existing trailers which in turn feed into the Esquimalt sewage system.

Existing sewer facilities were designed for 40 persons and at present there are 40 trailers or about 80 persons plus nearby houses plus the new trailers.

Elphick also said Songhees Chief John Albany is "very anxious" that the project be done properly.

"He has a three-year agreement and doesn't want to be stuck with a white elephant when the lease is up," he said.

Police to End Safe-Driving Showings

The Saanich police safe-driving show will end this months.

Sgt. William Chisholm said Monday that crowds have dropped at recent showings and police feel that after two years and more than 14,000 spectators the show has just about run out of audience.

A program Wednesday and another on March 25 will be the last.

The 90-minute free program is built around two movies, Mechanized Death and The David Hall Story. W. C. Fields stars in a short film called Hurry, Hurry, Hurry.

Anyone interested in seeing either of the last two showings is asked to phone 388-4321 and reserve a seat. The program is held at the Saanich Police and Fire building, Vernon Avenue at Douglas. Wednesday's show begins at 8 p.m.

Hasp, Padlock Knocked Off Door

Thieves who attacked an iron door with a wrecking bar stole $15 from McMaster's Clothing, 1012 Fort Street overnight Monday.

Police said a hasp and padlock were broken from the door, measuring 34 inches by 14 and a half inches. The door was at the rear of the premises and was used for fuel deliveries.

The money, in bills and silver, was taken from a till but thieves missed a similar amount in another till.

They left the way they came in after an unsuccessful attempt to pry open another rear door.

Seven Areas Back College Construction

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Ratepayers in seven British Columbia lower mainland school districts voted overwhelmingly in favor over the weekend of establishing Fraser Valley West Regional College.

A light turnout of 12.02 per cent of the 176,000 eligible voters approved the plebiscite by 70.23 per cent. A simple majority was required.

All seven districts voted in favor of the plebiscite which will establish the seventh of a slowly developing chain of junior colleges which were first proposed by the Macdonald report on higher education in 1962.

The over-all vote approved the college by 14,847 to 6,294.

Langley had the highest percentage of yes votes — 75.2 per cent — and New Westminster the lowest with 66 per cent.

Burnaby recorded a 66;9 per cent vote. Coquitlam voted 73.2 per cent, Delta 70.4, Richmond 67 and Surrey 70 per cent in favor.

The participating districts will share an annual cost estimated at $500,000 a year. The college will cost an estimated $2,000,000 to operate in its initial year, 60 per cent of which will come from the provincial government.

Second Man Charged In Burnaby Shooting

BURNABY (CP) — Two men were charged Monday with non-capital murder after shooting deaths occurred in two different Vancouver suburbs Saturday.

Ronald Lawrence Swanson, 24, was charged here in the death of Ernest Reddeman, 37, a bystander hit by a bullet during a shooting affray at the Burnaby hotel.

James Lawrence Cummings, 21, was charged in New Westminster with the death of Stanford Roy Settee, 27, who was shot four times in a home in New Westminster.

Police said Swanson and Cummings both live at the same address in New Westminster.

Two men were wounded in the hotel shooting. They were James Sauve, 20, of New Westminster, who was shot in the lower back, and Joseph Diagle, 25, shot in the abdomen as he ran out of the beer parlor.

Police have so far revealed no motives in the shootings.

Cummings appeared in New Westminster court and was remanded without bail to March 17, Swanson was due to appear later.

Suez Canal Quiet, But Israelis Fear Egyptian Invasion

TEL AVIV (AP) — The Suez Canal was reported quiet today, but Arab and Israeli forces traded fire in the Jordan Valley and Israeli soldiers fired in the air to quell a schoolboys' riot in the occupied Gaza Strip.

Three artillery duels along the 103-mile canal—two last weekend and a four-hour exchange Tuesday—cost the Israelis five soldiers killed and 25 wounded, the army said. It denied Egyptian claims that Arab forces inflicted "enormous damage" on the Israeli side of the canal.

But Israeli sources feared the Egyptians really believe their own propaganda and might try to cross into the Sinai Desert in force.

"The Egyptians are really in deep mud on the other side of the canal and who knows what they may try to do," said one highly-placed military informant.

UN observers blamed the Arabs for starting all three artillery battles. The duels Saturday and Sunday cost Egypt the life of its army chief of staff and extensive damage to its oil refinery in Port Suez.

SAY SHIPS SUNK

Today, Israel claimed destruction of two Egyptian ships in Tuesday's battle, a merchantman and a tanker anchored at the southern end of the canal, plus three tanks, a dozen anti-aircraft guns, three anti-tank guns, 22 bunkers, a jeep, a tractor and an observation post.

The army said the firing started when Egyptian machine-gunners opened up on Israeli soldiers building fortifications along the canal's east bank.

Cairo newspapers admitted Egyptian gunners fired first when they noticed a "troop and heavy weaponry buildup" on the Israeli side.

The semi-official newspaper Al Ahram said Egyptian artillery "concentrated its fire on Israeli armor massing in the Mitla Pass and destroyed a large number of them." The Mitla Pass is in Israeli-held Sinai, eight miles from Suez.

Egyptian military communiques claimed 22 Israeli tanks and 15 armored vehicles were destroyed.

In Amman, a Jordanian military spokesman said Jordanian and Israeli forces clashed for 15 minutes in the northern Jordan valley today. He said the Israelis opened up machine-gun and mortar fire on Jordanian forces in the Khirbet Alkattaf area, the fire was returned and one Israeli soldier was hit. The spokesman said there were no Jordanian losses.

Share the Wealth Urged for Retired

OTTAWA (CP) — NDP House Leader Stanley Knowles called on the government Tuesday night to let retired people share in a richer society by tying pensions to wage and salary increases and the country's growing productive capacity.

"People who have retired have a right to share in the growing affluence of society," he said in a Commons adjournment debate.

Otto E. Lang, minister without portfolio, agreed that there is great pressure on "unprotected segments" of society who have no control over their income.

The government is attempting to protect people on fixed incomes by controlling inflation, he said.

But he suggested Mr. Knowles help protect them by asking his "friends in the labor movement" to direct some of their power to demanding decreased prices instead of increased wages.

Mr. Knowles' plea was one-half of an extraordinary double bill on what is known as the Commons "late show," the brief pocket debates at adjournment time on specific complaints.

FAVORITE TOPIC

Both of Mr. Knowles's complaints dealt with pensions, one of his favorite topics.

In the first he repeated his pleas for an increase in the pensions of retired public servants. He noted that amendments to the Public Service Superannuation Act will be up for debate Friday and said he still hopes the government will announce increases then.

Mr. Lang gave the usual government reply to the request, that the matter is under consideration.

He complimented Mr. Knowles on his persistence in a good cause, but added that there are a selection of good causes, some more and some less meritorious than the one he raised.

Mr. Knowles retorted that with a Liberal government in power, "there are lots of good things to fight for."

Suicide Bid By Lawyer Stops Trial

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — A mistrial was ordered in a murder hearing Tuesday after authorities said the defence lawyer apparently tried to commit suicide in the courtroom.

Marie Gardner, the district court clerk, said she found Benton S. Clark lying on the courtroom floor when she came in just before the trial was to resume.

Court officials said a plastic bag was over the lawyer's face, tied loosely with a rope.

Mrs. Gardner said Clark was unconscious when she found him. He was reported in satisfactory condition in hospital.

The plastic bag appeared to be one offered in evidence Monday.

The mistrial was declared in the case of Josefa Rosa Meis, charged with murder in the fatal shooting of a friend, Stanley M. Trinjastic, 47, of Colorado Springs.

THE LAST BEATLE to become married, Paul McCartney, 26, today became a husband and stepfather as he leaves in a car from a grimy London register office with bride Linda Eastman, 27, a New York photographer, and her daughter, Heather, 6, from a previous marriage. A wailing crowd of girl teeny-boppers broke the police cordon outside the office and mobbed the couple. (AP Wirephoto).

FLU MAY BE RETURNING TO HONG KONG ORIGIN

HONG KONG (AP)—Hong Kong flu, which officials in this British colony say originated in China, may have returned there. Hong Kong residents returning from China reported seeing long lines of Chinese outside most hospitals in Canton, southern China's largest city.

The travellers said the illness had reached epidemic proportions and there were not enough doctors in the city to treat the sick.

Sirhan's Mental Ability Stunted, Doctor Says

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Had Sirhan Bishara Sirhan been examined before the assassination of Senator Robert F. Kennedy, a defence psychologist says, he probably would have been spotted as a potential murderer.

Yet, Sirhan's mental capacity was so stunted that he could not form a meaningful, mature plot against the senator, Dr. Martin Schorr testified Tuesday in Sirhan's murder trial.

That point is crucial to Sirhan's defence. His lawyers hope to save him from a death sentence by convincing the jury the shooting of Kennedy was the result of a sick, obsessed mind.

Could Sirhan have acted with malice aforethought? "No," said Schorr.

Under cross-examination by prosecutor John E. Howard, the psychologist was asked whether he could have predicted Kennedy's assassination if Sirhan had been tested earlier.

"With a reasonable degree of certainty, murder is predictable," Schorr said. He added that of 100 people chosen at random, three or four would be shown by psychological tests as having the potential for murder under stress.

"Sirhan would have been one of these three or four," he said. "If I had to live with one of these three or four I would be very fearful.

"I'm not saying I could have predicted Sirhan would kill the senator," Schorr said, "but tests would have pointed to Sirhan as an odds-on favorite who would do something like this."

The 24-year-old Jordanian listened with obvious fascination as the psychologist described him as a Jekyll-Hyde personality.

Youth 'Unsure' Of Future Goals

By PAT DUFOUR

Youth of today doesn't like the values of society but has no idea what it does want, Victoria Youth Council worker Charles Barber said Tuesday night.

One of a three-man panel discussing "Youthism" at a meeting of the Victoria Liberal Association at The Inn Tuesday evening, Barber said:

"Youth is essentially reactionary, with no well-directed vision of a better world. They only react to things that hurt them dreadfully."

Barber, 19, said his generation had no clean-cut solutions but is fighting back with counter institutions such as Cool-Aid (an emergency youth centre), free schools and the VYC.

He disagreed there is a communication gap between adults and youth as claimed by panelists David Brousson, Liberal MLA for North Vancouver-Capilano, and Steven Stark, a first-year law student at the University of B.C. and president of the B.C. Young Liberals' Association.

AT GUT-LEVEL

Said Barber, "The older generation knows perfectly well what their kids are up to. We communicate at a gut-level. When you see a guy walking towards you dressed in baubles, bangles and a beard there's no doubt that he's telling you he repudiates what your society stands for."

Brousson and Stark said the change of values needed in society should be achieved through present political and social institutions.

"You have to decide whether you want to work within the society or without it," said Stark. "Youth finds lots of things wrong with the stystem but we can't get away from the political set-up. We have to be prepared to do something about it."

GIVEN FREEDOMS

Brousson said the freedom to rebel enjoyed by Barber and others had been made possible through the affluent society in which they live.

"Parents who are the product of the society you reject are the ones who have given you the freedom to become drop-outs."

Barber had his own definition of drop-outs.

"Adults are mistaken when they define drop-outs as living in hippie hovels, whiling away the days with dope and enjoying sex at night.

"Drop-outs are the ones who refuse to accept society as it has been handed us. We are coming up with our own solutions."

Brousson defined youth's search as a wish for the "dignity of man, and a sense of community among men."

The quotation, he sad, was taken from a speech by Minister of Justice John Turner.

TV PANELLIST ACCUSED OF BAD TASTE

OTTAWA (CP) — CBC president George Davidson said Tuesday panellist Gordon Sinclair was guilty of "a deplorable lapse from good taste" when he talked to Olympic swimmer Elaine Tanner on the television program Front Page Challenge a few weeks ago.

Ray Perrault (L—Burnaby-Seymour) told the Commons broadcasting committee he received "an unprecedented number of protests" in his mail about "the totally improper line of questioning" pursued by Sinclair on the program.

Sinclair asked Tanner whether women swam during menstruation.

"We have received an unprecedented number of complaints too," said Davidson, adding that CBC management considered it a highly regrettable incident.

He said Sinclair "has been made very much aware" of the displeasure of CBC headquarters.

Popovers

Stir one cup of flour and one teaspoon salt together. Make a well in the centre and add three eggs, one cup milk and two tbsps. whipping cream. Beat for three minutes. Cover batter, chill thoroughly about two hours. Heat iron popover pan or muffin tin thoroughly in a very hot oven (450°F), grease quickly with oil. After filling cups almost to brim, return to the oven. Bake for 22 minutes, reduce temperature to 375°F and bake 13 minutes longer. Loosen popovers from pan and serve immediately. This recipe makes eight popovers.

'Dear Queen' Letters Include Invitations to Birthday Parties

By GLORIA EMERSON

LONDON — "Dear Queen, I hope this letter is read by you and not handed to a lady-in-waiting."

The reproach was in a letter sent to Buckingham Palace by a small English boy who hoped Queen Elizabeth would answer him although he had his doubts.

A prompt reply came back signed by a lady-in-waiting, for the Queen never signs letters or gives her autograph to anyone she does not know. It was typed on thick, white, plain-edged paper with the royal arms and Buckingham Palace engraved on it in red.

The answer is one of thousands sent every year to people all over the world who write the British sovereign. Some letters ask for photographs. But the Queen does not send pictures of herself, Prince Philip, their four children, her four dogs, her great-great-grandmother, Queen Victoria, her horses or any of her four palatial residences in Britain.

She is unable to attend birthday parties although many British children continue to invite her. She does not accept gifts for herself, or on behalf of her children, of mice, newly born kittens or dogs, even if some of her young subjects regard these as splendid presents.

Replies to even a very splotchy, misspelled letter are always gentle and very polite.

A typical answer to one small girl reads:

"Dear Kathleen,

"I am commanded by the Queen to thank you for your letter and to tell you that although Her Majesty is not able to accept Trevor's birthday party (invitation), the Queen thinks it was very nice of you to ask her and I have to thank you once again."

The letter was signed "Yours Sincerely" (Buckingham Palace prefers this complimentary close).

The ladies-in-waiting, who work in shifts of two weeks, usually handle letters from the public that require a standard acknowledgement. The answers are typed by a clerk.

Leslie Butters, Court Postmaster of the Palace's own little post office, delivers the morning mail in a big wicker basket to the study of the Queen. She glances at the letters by 9 a.m.

Algae Soup Delicious

VANCOUVER (CP) — By the year 2000, says food expert Elmer T. Banting, you may be telling your hostess her algae soup is delicious and the sawdust pudding superb.

Elmer T. Banting, general manager of the Canadian Food Processers Association, made the prediction while outlining achievements in nutrition and food technology during a recent luncheon meeting of the Vancouver Board of Trade.

He said the Japanese have developed a substantial algae industry.

"Algea are by far the most efficient converters of solar energy into foods."

"Algae are by far the most foods and food value would be a decisive political and economic fact in future years.

"The modern housewife has become aware of the fact she can no longer compete with pre-prepared products," said Mr. Banting. "This is especially true if she puts any value on her time. Let's face it, the modern housewife can think of many things she would rather do than peel potatoes or dice carrots."

He said extensive use would be made in future years of fungus, moulds and yeasts to produce protein. This would help meet the food requirements of the world's rapidly expanding population.

Irish Anecdotes and Fashions Combined in Fast-Paced Show

By ELIZABETH BENNETT

Two elderly men stepped gingerly into the half-filled Newcombe auditorium of the provincial museum Tuesday afternoon.

"Say," cried one suddenly. "This is a fashion show we've come to. You got me into this!"

A fashion show it was, but the gentlemen in the audience (all six or eight of them) had no time to be bored. The fast-paced commentary by Anne Tolan dealt as much with Ireland as with fashion.

The show was called "Swing around Ireland." The fashions were made with Irish fabrics, and, with one exception, designed by Irish fashion houses. Each fashion shown was named after a county in Ireland, giving Miss Tolan a chance to reminisce on that area.

DANCERS

The show was opened by His Excellency William Warnock, ambassador for Ireland. The Vi Moore Dancers, eight young girls in costumes of white and green performed.

Miss Tolan welcomed the audience with "a hundred thousand welcomes." There were two reasons for calling the show "Swing around Ireland," she said: First, because the Irish wanted to prove they were a swinging people; and secondly, because Ireland was a "golfer's paradise," with all due apologies to Victoria.

She then launched into the fashions, with the help of her corps of Victoria models.

The outfits themselves covered a range of tastes, but as Miss Tolan pointed out, were all geared to everyday life.

Many of the outfits displayed the maxi length. Miss Tolan told the audience that all the fashions shown were available in five lengths to suit all tastes, often with a maxi coat or cape over a mini skirt or dress, combining warmth with fashion.

The colors were all bright and youthful. "Many people have said," commented Miss Tolan, "that Irish weavers must work with their eyes on the countryside to get such colors. My father has another explanation which I like better. He says that our ancestors led such exciting lives that their clothes had to be colored like the countryside so that they would blend in."

The afternoon and evening shows were sponsored by the Victoria Symphony Society.

Gallery Needs More Space

The Art Gallery of Greater Victoria would need 10 times its existing display area to show its complete collection, Archie F. Key told a meeting of the Local Council of Women recently.

The editor of Canadian Museums and Related Institutions said that "The Art Gallery of Greater Victoria has built up a highly significant collection totalling 2,000 pieces during the past 20 years."

He said that thousands of the tourists who come to Victoria each year are attracted by the vast concentration of antiques and that citizens are losing a golden opportunity of capitalize on this interest.

"The Art Gallery of Greater Victoria is far more than a tourist attraction however," he emphasized. "It is a museum of decorative arts and is holding in trust for all Canadians a wealth of historical and artistic treasures which appreciate in value each year."

He mentioned that museum director Colin Graham and his board are exploring the possibilities of temporary exhibition quarters in the downtown area where items can be displayed until the gallery can be expanded on its present site.

A Beauty Hint

Margaret Merril advises that it is quite simple for every woman to promote an English countryside complexion. Her hint to gain a peaches-and-cream loveliness is to damp a cloth with cold water from your refrigerator and press it over your face for a few minutes once or twice a day. Then, to hold the good of the complexion-beautifying cold water, smooth on tropical oil of Olay. This oil is rather scarce and expensive, but your drug store should be able to get you a supply.

Discontented Keys Elude Mathilda

By PENNY SAVER

"I search them here, I search them there, Mathilda searches everywhere . . ." I broke in on my aunt at this point because I too have read "The Scarlet Pimpernel" and I was sure she couldn't finish her little verse without using unlady-like language. "Lost something?" I interjected innocently. "It's my demmed elusive keys," Mathilda exploded with Chauvelin-like ungrace. "Honestly, Penny. I never use them to pry up lids or open cigarette lighters; I try to keep my keys clean and tidy; I gave them a home of their own in an expensive leather case—What more could a self-respecting key want? Well, I'll tell you—nothing! Yet they have the ingratitude to get lost on me." At this point I rose and rescued Mathilda's keys from the centre of the coffee table. "Couldn't help noticin'," I said in my best Whimsey manner.

Mathilda's problem might be solved by a special key-rack. Of course, a key rack would only help if she put her keys on it after she had used them, but it is always much easier to put things away when they have a distinctive place to go. The key racks I found are $1.50 each. Made of wood, they are shaped like rolling pins that have been cut in half so they will lie flat against the wall. They are painted dark green with a floral pattern and have four brass-colored hooks for keys. From the shape, I would assume that the manufacturer thinks of these as hanging in the kitchen where they would be handy for keys that everyone in the family uses or spare keys.

Drip Fighters: Unite

I have discovered a new and more attractive weapon in my never-ending battle against dripping tea-pot spouts. One of the best things about this new weapon is that attractive as it is it costs only 39c cents. Basically this weapon is a round of foam attached to a loop of elastic which in turn is attached to a metal hook. The hook slips around the handle of the tea-pot and the elastic is stretched over the lid, holding it securely in place, until the roll of foam hooks under the lip of the spout, where it catches any wayward drips. What makes the drip-stoppers I found so attractive is that each is threaded through a tiny ceramic bird or animal. Among the animals represented are frogs, bluebirds, chickens, rabbits and dogs. The foam and elastic come in red, blue, yellow or green, depending on the main color of the ceramic animal, which, incidentally, perches on the lid of the tea-pot once the drip-stopper is in place. These drip-stoppers are made in Germany.

I found just the gift for an "everything nice" type of little girl the other day. It is a vanity set consisting of brush, comb and mirror. Made of plastic, these sets come in a variety of pastel colors. The back of the mirror is what makes these sets just a little bit special: Each is made up to look like the face of a little girl. These sets cost only $2 each.

Please call 382-3131 between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. if you would like to know where to find these items.

'I'LL END UP IN CALGARY'

Woman Taxi Driver's Biggest Problem: Getting Lost

By LILLIAN NEWBERY

EDMONTON (CP) — Laverne Merz and Shirley Miller can hardly wait for the summer tourist season when the big tippers come out of hiding.

Laverne and Shirley drive taxis. In a fleet of 600 cars owned by Yellow Cab Ltd. here, one in 12 drivers is a woman.

"Occasionally you get some fellow just off the (oil) rigs and he's throwing money around, but mostly we wait for summer visitors," said blonde Laverne, a former bank teller.

She and her husband started driving taxis two years ago to pay off debts for a business venture that failed. Laverne drives from 6 a.m. to noon. Her husband take over in the afternoon and gets home at midnight.

"When I have to take the kids to the dentist or organize a tea for my guide group I just take off for the day."

Laverne and her husband figure they take home about 60 per cent of the fare after paying about $220 monthly to the company, plus gas and car upkeep.

Shirley has been driving since December after quitting her work as a nurse's aide "to get a break from sick people." She drives from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. The company owns her car and she keeps about 45 per cent of what shows on the meter.

A brunette with glasses and a wide grin, she says her biggest problem isn't rude customers— it's getting lost.

"In heavy traffic I don't like people who yakkety-yak but in a straight stretch on the south side of the city they can talk all they want. I'm lost anyway. One of these days I'm going to end up in Calgary."

She relaxes by doing deep breathing exercises.

The girls get the occasional funny look from a customer who appears to expect his cabbie to get him a girl or a bottle. Ralph Wiedman, general manager of the company, discourages women from driving at night because "they're on their own if a customer gets nasty."

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

It is surprising how much a woman's posture and walk influence the impression she gives. A slumping carriage can add years to her appearance whereas a beautifully poised head, a straight back and a graceful walk add an aura of youthfulness at any age.

Lowman

Lovely posture not only makes you look younger but it makes you feel more vibrant. Internal organs are not crowded and you can breathe more deeply. Muscles and ligaments are not subjected to the strain which poor posture impose on them and which leads to fatigue.

There is a psychological impact too. You just naturally feel peppier if you look up instead of down and if your back is erect rather than caved in. You feel younger if you move with zest. Today let me give you a couple of corrective exercises in case you have become careless.

Here are two for round shoulders. This is one of the most usual defects in posture. It not only spoils the figure but also the neckline.

1. Stand tall with your feet comfortably separated. Raise your arms sideward, shoulder height, palms facing forward. With straight elbows pull the arms backward. Return them to position. Continue. Move them back and forth for six times and then return arms to sides. Relax and repeat another six times. Gradually increase until you are doing this exercise 25 to 30 times daily.

2. Stand erect. Bend your elbows and place your hands behind your head. Keep your hands in this position while you make circles with your elbows. Circle backward. Do not allow your head to protrude forward while doing either of these exercises.

A straight back and graceful carriage can subtract years from a woman's age. The model demonstrates the second of two exercises which Mrs. Lowman prescribes for youthful posture.

It is important to be posture-conscious. Check yourself many times a day. It is easy to slip into poor posture without realizing it.

If you would like a copy of Josephine Lowman's free leaflet "Spinal Exercises or Back Talk" send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Who Should Decide What Is Filth?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: In response to all those people who are disgusted with the unsolicited filth they receive in the mails:

Why are they so shook over pornography when the learned men on our Supreme Court are clearly in favor of it?

You may print this and use my name, and I hope you send a copy of it to Congress. Very truly yours,

RALPH J. STURTRIDEGE, Kansas City, Kas.

DEAR MR. STURTRIDGE: The Supreme Court is not "clearly in favor" of pornography. They are understandably concerned with the kind of censorship which would deny the individual the right to decide for himself what he may or many not read. And in a free society who shall make those decisions? It is not as simple as it appears. The "medicine"—however well-intended—is sometime worse than the disease.

DEAR ABBY: Last year I gave Cindy an engagement ring, and later on we decided that marriage was not for us, so we called the whole thing off. Both Cindy and I are over 25, and I can honestly say that there are no broken hearts.

Cindy and I picked out the ring together. She likes it very much and wants to keep it as she has another boy friend who is willing to take over the payments.

My question: Would it be ungentlemanly of me to suggest that he also reimburse me for the down payment?

GERRY.

DEAR GERRY: No. Go ahead and ask him. All you have to lose is the down payment.

DEAR ABBY: My husband pointed out a letter in your column from the man who wanted his wife to doll up and put on something sexy, revealing and provocative once in a while—just for him.

I didn't need to read that in your column, Abby. I've been doing it for years.

It's a well-known fact that a woman with nothing on isn't nearly as sexy as one who wears a flimsy little something. If a man sees the whole show at once, what's left for guessing?

Maybe you ought to let men in on that secret. Believe me, there's nothing sexy about a 51-year-old fat boy in the nude. So sock it to 'em, Abby, and tell husbands to cover up a little, too.

FIFTY-ONE AND STILL SEXY.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

COOKING CAN BE FUN — By MARY MOORE

Almond Cookies Keep Well in Freezer

What I have sitting before me is a serving plate full of what look like little snow-capped Rocky Mountains. Fittingly the recipe comes from my Vancouver friend Isabel.

They are really Almond Cookies and I want every one of my column friends to have this recipe in her super cookie file.

ALMOND COOKIES (40 to 50, will freeze).

NOTES: (1) If you remove the butter from the refrigerator one-half hour before mixing these cookies it will be medium soft but not so soft that they require long chilling before baking. (2) My almonds were buzzed in the blender. If you do not have one you can buy ground almonds. OR of course chop them very finely by hand.

One cup not-too-soft butter, ¼ cup granulated sugar, 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour, 1½ cups (two 3-oz. packages) ground or blender-buzzed almonds (not packed), 2 teaspoons vanilla, icing sugar for powdering cookies.

In beater bowl combine all ingredients EXCEPT icing sugar. Beat until thoroughly blended and plastic enough to hold shape. Chill 15 minutes.

Shape into one-inch or one-and-one-quarter-inch balls, rolling between your palms. Place 1½" apart on ungreased cookie sheets. They spread just a little. Bake at 350 deg. F. One-inch balls require 20 to 22 minutes. One-and-one-quarter-inch balls, 25 to 27 minutes. Test one before removing all from oven.

Let remain on cookie sheets for 2 or 3 minutes before removing to cake rack which should be over a large sheet of paper towelling. Sprinkle icing sugar over them by shaking through sifter. Later when cool remove from rack and transfer to icing-sugar-sprinkled paper towelling underneath to powder the bottoms.

These freeze to perfection but must be stored in single layers.

If desired almonds may be delicately toasted before buzzing in blender but this takes away from their virgin whiteness.

Spring these beauties on your contemporary cook friends at a special tea.

Reserve Forces to Gain If Regulars Cut Back

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — A plan to reduce the regular armed forces to mainly a training corps and build up the reserves to 100,000 men has been discussed within the defence department, informants said Monday.

A staff officer said the radical plan was based on the assumption that the armed forces — regulars and reserves — would in future have little more to do than control the flow of refugees from U.S. racial riots.

It is understood the plan was discussed by seven officials but never reached the defence council or the cabinet. Who drew up the plan is not known.

The scheme would have retained an air transport command and a small coast guard-type naval service. But it would have eliminated Air Defence Command, the Canadian brigade and air division in Europe and Mobile Command, except for the air transport element.

The regular forces would be reduced to a training corps of 5,000 officers and non-commissioned officers while the reserves would be expanded to 100,000 personnel.

In effect, the armed forces would revert to their pre-Second World War composition. Savings under such a plan were estimated at $1,000,000,000 or more. The 1969-70 defence budget is $1,800,000,000.

'Must Move Fast On Sewer Line'

A "double your money" investment in a sewer line will be recommended to Saanich council.

The idea came from engineer Neville Life and was supported Tuesday night by public works committee.

The sewer line will run from two major provincial projects near the Wilkinson Road jail to the northwest sewer main in the Tillicum area.

The projects are the $2.3 million vocational school and the $4.9 million Glendale Hospital, on which more than $1 million already has been spent for clearing, erection of a laundry and heating plant and foundations.

Life disclosed that the vocational school is scheduled to open in October. The Glendale building contract was let last week and the five-storey 300-bed hospital will take more than a year to construct.

Two years ago, the provincial government agreed to pay the full cost of a sewer line from the projects, which are in an unsewered area, to the main trunk sewer.

Life told the committee the estimated cost of the line is $148,000 but it would serve only one purpose and would have no future.

He outlined an alternative sewer route using a pump which could serve future sewer expansions in the area, including the Northridge subdivision which at present disposes of sewage via a treatment plant and into Colquitz Creek.

This route would cost $240,000, putting the balance over the $148,000 figure at $92,000.

Life said "we have got to move" because of the vocational school expected to open in October.

Collector Saves Week, Saanich Told

A Saanich resident complained Tuesday night that the municipality's private garbage collector is dropping one day off each week in the weekly collection service which started this year.

D. G. Laughren, 3861 Carey, told the municipal public works committee "we are paying for weekly collection and we are not receiving it and I want to know why.

"It's still going on, until last week. It's being picked up one day later each week, so the collector saves one week after seven weeks. It's a breach of contract."

Development engineer Joseph Barber-Starkey said there were delays during the heavy snow in January but he thought the private collector was caught up "and everyone seemed to be on weekly collection."

His department was running a survey in which a number of Saanich residents are contacted to see when their garbage is picked up. It was agreed to add Laughren to the list of names.

The municipality will enter the garbage collection business itself next January and this month called for tenders for new equipment.

Car Flip Fatal

SURREY (CP) — William David Lynds, 35, Vancouver, was killed Tuesday night when the car in which he was a passenger flipped over several times on Highway 499, about 17 miles southeast of Vancouver.

U.K. Dignitary To Visit City

British high commissioner to Canada, Sir Colin Crowe, will make his first visit to Victoria March 19, 20 and 21.

Guests of Lieutenant-Governor John R. Nicholson at Government House during their stay, Sir Colin and Lady Crowe will arrive at Patricia Bay Airport at 4:35 p.m. March 19.

Sir Colin was appointed last October, after holding the post of chief of administration in the diplomatic service.

Mr. and Mrs. John Saunders will give a reception on the evening of March 19 in the Governor's Suite of Executive House in honor of the visitors.

The high commissioner will pay an official call on Premier W. A. C. Bennett the next day. Later he will be the luncheon guest of Col. K. E. Lewis, commandant of Royal Roads Military College.

That evening Sir Colin and Lady Crowe will be guests of honor at a dinner in Government House.

On March 21, Sir Colin will be host to a small private luncheon in the Union Club after making an official call on Attorney-General Leslie Peterson.

Accident Time Loss Grows

More than one million working days were lost during 1968 in British Columbia because of industrial injuries.

The exact figure, disclosed in the annual report of the Workmen's Compensation Board tabled in the B.C. legislature, was 1,146,125 days.

This compares with 1,134,581 days lost from work in 1967. The figures do not include workers disabled for less than four working days nor do they include permanent disability and fatal accidents.

A total of 90,103 injuries were reported to the board during the year, down from the 93,659 reported in 1967. Fatal accidents claimed 211 lives, the same number as the previous year.

The number of time-loss cases (those involving more than three days off work) amountd to 27,334 compared with 27,436 in the previous year.

The forest products industry had the largest number of work injuries, accounting for 23.3 per cent of the total. Trade and service industries had 18.1 per cent, general manufacturing 17.2 per cent and construction industry and allied trades 15.4 per cent.

The increase in benefits provided for injured workers raised total compensation costs to an all-time high of $32,011,543.

A total of 18,044 inspections were carried out resulting in an increase of 4,400 safety orders to a total of 25,906.

Airmen Released

PHNOM PENH (Reuters) — Four U.S. airmen, imprisoned in Cambodia for a month, were released Tuesday, apparently following a note from President Nixon to head of State Prince Norodom Sihanouk. The Cambodian government said the men were captured when their plane was shot down after violating Cambodian air space over Svayrieng province Feb. 12.

Wider Choice Of Courses In High School

Senior high school students taking the academic-technical program will have a wider choice of courses next September.

The number of specialty courses in that program will be expanded from three to six in a province-wide change which will begin in Grade 11.

At the moment, the specialty courses are humanities, science and technical. Community services, commerce and fine arts will be added.

The academic-technical program is the only one leading to university. In a five-stream curriculum program high school students can take it or the commercial, industrial, community services or fine arts programs.

B.C. Teachers' Federation officials have been among critics contending the system is too rigid, locking students to their specialties.

A student taking the fine arts program, for example, has not been able to enter the University of Victoria which has a school of fine arts.

"The word today is 'flexibility,' and this is a move in that direction," Victor Thomson, director of secondary education for the Greater Victoria school board, said Monday of the department of education change.

Texaco Law Suit To Be Heard

A law suit against Oak Bay council by Texaco of Canada Ltd. will be heard in judge's chamber Friday at 10:30 a.m.

The company is attempting to get a judgment against council for blocking a gas station at a site at Windsor and Newport in the municipality.

Texaco owned a lot on the corner which now houses a closed-down service station, and a second lot beside it zoned for a store. The company applied for a building permit for a large service station early last fall but council passed a bylaw which made service stations separate from commercial use.

Through lawyer H. L. Henderson the company has charged in meetings with council that discrimination was shown and that the bylaw was passed to prevent the company's application from being approved.

Local Man Wins Draw In Lottery

James Stothard, 3000 Mallard, was one of eight B.C. contestants chosen Monday at the February draw of Montreal's voluntary tax scheme, becoming eligible for prizes ranging from $250 to $100,000.

The retired Central Saanich man was unaware of his win when phoned by the Times Tuesday morning.

Asked if he would be going to Montreal for the second draw, which will take place Sunday, Mr. Stothard said he and his wife, Lavinia, would be too busy moving into another Victoria home.

British Columbia led the out-of-town provinces. The other seven B.C. winners are Morna S. Knutson, Port Kells; Mrs. Angele Maleszewski, North Burnaby; A. G. Horton, Vancouver; Stephen P. Lum Min, Vancouver; Sharon D. Sambrook, Campbell River; Mrs. Eva Legreeley, Port Coquitlam; and Mrs. Mary Rodger, White Rock.

Man in Love Whooped It Up, Landing in Jail

"Sometimes the patience of police officers is unlimited," Magistrate William Ostler told an accused man Monday.

Leslie J. Renals, 1157 Johnson, had pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance.

The white-haired, middle-aged man explained to the magistrate he was in love with a woman in the Interior and after receiving a letter expressing her love for him had gone out for a few drinks to celebrate.

However, prosecutor Peter Birkett said Renals had stepped out into the road at Government and Yates and was nearly struck by a police car which had to jam on its brakes to avoid him.

Renals immediately responded by threatening to punch the officer.

He was sentenced to 10 days in jail after Magistrate Ostler heard he had been fined $25 on the same charge a week ago.

Renals said he hadn't paid the fine yet and had told the police he couldn't.

VATICAN ENVOY IDEA DRAWS LESS PROTEST

By WILLIAM R. MACKAYE

WASHINGTON (WP) — President Nixon's flirtation with the idea of appointing an emmissary to the Vatican has aroused noticeable Protestant protest in recent days. So far, however, the reaction is a lullaby compared with the uproar that ensued when President Truman nominated Gen. Mark W. Clark to be ambassador to the Vatican in 1951.

First to man the mimeograph-machine barricades against Mr. Nixon's proposal was Americans United for Separation of Church and State, which inserted advertisements in the Washington Post and other newspapers Feb. 21 to urge "Don't Do It, Mr. President."

More recently officials of the Seventh-Day Adventist Church, the American Baptist Convention and the American Lutheran Church rattled out statements of their opposition. Thursday the most potent opponent yet entered the lists, the Baptist joint committee on public affairs, which evaluates public questions for the 20 million adherents of eight U.S. Baptist bodies.

Meanwhile, the mimeograph machine at the United States Catholic conference, speaking in the name of its president, Archbishop John F. Dearden of Detroit, commented demurely:

CHURCH'S VIEW

"It is the responsibility of our government to decide whether it wished representation at the Vatican.

"Presumably, such a judgment would be made on the conviction that this liaison might help to further the cause of world peace.

A White House official said this week that President Nixon's discussion of the issue at his press conference Tuesday had prompted "a lot of mail," much of it expressing opposition to any diplomatic recognition of the Roman Catholic Church's international headquarters.

NOTABLE SILENCE

But there has been a noticeable silence so far at other addresses that are old hands at issuing press releases and position papers. The National Council of Churches, which mounted a nationwide anti-recognition campaign in 1951, major Protestant bodies other than those already named and the nation's principal Jewish groups have not been racing to the nearest mailbox, public statements in hand.

Nigeria Returns Russ Sailor

LAGOS (Reuters) — The Soviet guided missile destroyer Boiky sailed from Lagos Tuesday amid conflicting reports of how a Russian sailor swam to a British freighter and was handed back to Russian authorities by Nigeria.

A Soviet embassy spokesman said the sailor, Constantin Safranov, sailed with the 3,650-ton warship.

The federal government Monday night issued an official statement saying Safranov, a 17-year-old rating, had a quarrel with a senior colleague and jumped overboard to "escape" to the 10,250-ton British freighter Tweedbank, berthed 400 yards away.

After six hours on the Tweedbank he was handed over to Nigerian police and Safranov told the police he was willing to return to the Soviet Union, the statement said.

But at a news conference at the Russian embassy Monday night the sailor told reporters through an embassy interpreter that he was swabbing the Boiky's deck when he became tired and fell overboard.

A strong current carried him to the Tweedbank where he was kept despite pleas to be returned to the Boiky, he said.

Informed sources said Safranov indicated to Captain J. J. Reed of the Tweedbank that he wanted to go to Britain. But no formal request for political asylum was made to the British high commission here.

International Body Planned by Indians

GRAND FORKS, N.D. (AP) — A plan to form an international organization of American and Canadian Indians has been announced by Ralph Wehr of Chicago, chairman of the American Indians United.

He reported the proposal following a closed session of the annual international symposium on the legal rights of Indians.

Two other organizations represented at the meeting were the National Council of American Indians and the Canadian Indian Brotherhood.

Wehr also said that the meeting passed a resolution "that all efforts be made to coordinate information to our Canadian brothers on legal, health, educational and welfare problems," and development of an organization based on the supply and demands of the population."

Saanich to Ban Some Burning

Saanich municipality took the first step Tuesday night towards banning incinerators.

Exceptions would be single-family houses and duplexes, schools, hospitals and similar institutions—if council accepts a public works committee recommendation.

The move to ban commercial incinerators was recommended by planner Tom Loney and "enthusiastically endorsed" by development engineer Joseph Barber-Starkey.

In a report, Starkey said this will reduce fire hazard and air pollution. Private garbage collection rates were low and it was doubtful there would be any hardship.

Ald. Alan Newberry wondered about the litter in municipal parks, and engineer Neville Life said he could see no reason why this couldn't be picked up.

Both Ald. Newberry and Ald. Edith Gunning said it is important that schools burn certain material and not have it carted away.

Ald. Frank Waring, only member of the committee to oppose the move, and Ald. Leslie Pasmore, not a committee member, agreed that the public is getting over-regulated.

Waring said supermarkets in the city of Victoria burn paper in incinerators.

But committee chairman Ald. William Campbell said "I feel the city will tighten up from what I've heard and read."

And Ald. Edith Gunning said "now is the time to move, not when the situation worsens."

Thieves Pilfer Service Stations

Thieves broke into and robbed two city service stations over the weekend.

Police said $200 was taken from a service centre at Speedway Motors, 971 Yates, and $35 from Lone Star Service, 2121 Douglas.

The thieves gained entry to the service centre, a small building at the rear of the main business, by reaching through a letterslot measuring 2 by 7½ inches to release the door lock.

The letter slot cover was torn off and is missing.

The money, half of it in cheques, was in an envelope which was stolen from an unlocked filing cabinet.

Nothing else in the office was touched, police said.

Entry was gained to the Douglas Street gas station by smashing a window on the south side. The culprits took a cash box, containing money, and also opened a soft drink machine, using a key from the box.

Negro Singer In Hospital

PERIGUEUX, France (Reuters)—Josephine Baker was admitted to a hospital here late Tuesday night and ordered a period of complete rest.

The 62-year-old American-born Negro singer was taken to the hospital from the kitchen of her former home at the Chateau des Milandes, which was auctioned earlier this year to pay her debts.

BOATEL INCLUDED IN PLANS

Construction of a "boatel" and restaurant are included in the long-range plans for a marina complex in Sidney.

This was disclosed at a public hearing Monday to consider an application to rezone from non-conforming use to marina a stretch of waterfront property situated north of Beacon Avenue.

Applicant was Cambrian Holdings, a company with headquarters in Vancouver. About 600 feet of waterfront property is involved in the proposed project.

More than 75 property owners were present at the hearing, but few opposed the project.

Donald A. Farquhar, solicitor for the firm, said plans called for about 400 feet of floats to accommodate about 100 small boats. Also under study area a seaside restaurant and a boatel.

Council reserved its decision.

Former Reeve Frustrated in Quest To Compile History of Municipality

MURDOCH
... some success

George Murdoch is having difficulty gathering pictures of the early days of Oak Bay municipality, but has made a small beginning.

Murdoch, 76, of 2240 Beach Drive, was asked by Oak Bay council several weeks ago to begin working on a history of the area.

"So far the pictures haven't been coming in too well," the former reeve said Monday. "I have found that many people apparently have turned their pictures over to the city."

City archivist Ainslie Helmcken is compiling a history of Greater Victoria.

So far Mr. Murdoch has been gathering information and making a list of persons who have historical material.

He acquired a photograph of J. S. Floyd, Oak Bay's first municipal clerk after incorporation of the municipality in 1906, from a descendant now living in Parksville.

And he has found out about a cottage on Victoria Avenue built in 1912 as a summer home for local artist Emily Carr. The cottage was sold, apparently before Miss Carr ever lived in it and has been added to since.

Murdoch is well-suited to become historian for Oak Bay. He was born in Victoria 76 years ago and remembers when the municipality was an unorganized territory "like Langford or Metchosin."

Hunters and sportsmen from the city used to hunt game in the area, which was sparsely settled.

Five attempts to have the area annexed to the city were repulsed by councils over the years and finally Oak Bay was incorporated in 1906.

Murdoch, in the electrical business for many years, was elected to Oak Bay council in 1945 and served for 13 years before becoming reeve from 1958 until 1963.

He doesn't think anyone gave much attention to the history of the area until quite recently.

Much of the detail about development and buildings comes from the field notebooks of municipal engineers.

"But I am gradually picking up things that the average person doesn't know," he said.

ASTRONAUT'S WIFE BIDS FOR DIVORCE

HOUSTON (AP)—Mrs. Don F. Eisele, wife of the astronaut who flew on Apollo 7, filed suit for divorce Monday, charging mental cruelty.

Eisele, an air force lieutenant-colonel, spent 10 days in each orbit on the flight in October. The couple were married in December, 1958, and have three children.

BLEAK OUTLOOK GIVEN FOR CANADA'S FARMERS

EDMONTON (CP) — By 1980, half of Canada's farm population will have to look for jobs in other fields, says the director-general of the economics branch of the federal agriculture department.

"The outlook for Canadian agriculture . . . over the next five years appears somewhat bleak," Dr. Glen Purnell told the Alberta conference on farm income Tuesday.

The farm labor force will drop to four per cent of the total labor force by 1980, he said. It was eight per cent in 1966.

North Viet Troops Hit Laos Airfield

VIENTIANE (AFP) — Authoritative Laotian sources said here today that North Vietnamese forces attacked the airfield at the royal Laotian capital of Luang Prabang during the night.

They said that the area had been closed to all traffic while royal Laotian forces moved in to dislodge the North Vietnamese.

Luang Prabang is the official capital of the king of Laos who is recognized by the Pathet Lao and North Vietnam.

The Laotian government is planning to protest to the International Control Commission on the grounds that the attack was a violaion of the 1962 Geneva agreements guaranteeing the neutrality of Laos.

Canada, India and Poland are the ICC members.

JONES WINS TOP AWARD

LONDON (AP) — Pop singer Tom Jones, a former bricklayer who used to perform atop an orange crate for thruppence a song, was named Britain's top show business personality Tuesday.

The 28-year-old Welshman won the Variety Club of Great Britain Award for "smash hit successes in the media of television, theatre and records." Jones was named Britain's top export earner recently when an American television network made a $12,000,000 deal for his TV series.

Senator Asks N. Brunswick Press Probe

OTTAWA (CP) — A Liberal New Brunswick senator called Tuesday for government investigation of the "reported ownership and control" of all English-language daily newspapers in his province by the K. C. Irving interests.

Senator Charles McElman told the upper house the investigation should be carried out by the consumer and corporate affairs department.

"And if the evidence shows an improper monopoly, then I should hope that the law will be applied to remedy the situation."

Senator McElman, executive secretary to New Brunswick Premier Louis Robichaud until his appointment to the Senate three years

Before the Magistrate

A 25-year-old day parolee from Colquitz Jail on Wilkinson Road pleaded guilty Tuesday to being at large unlawfully.

Graham E. Agate, who Magistrate William Ostler said appeared to be making a mockery of the system, was remanded to March 19 for sentence.

Court was told Agate had been serving a 22-month sentence with a probable release date of March 22. On Feb. 6 he was granted day parole and given a job in a city restaurant owned by his mother.

He left the prison for work about 7 a.m. Saturday and failed to return that night. He surrendered to prison authorities Sunday afternoon.

He was originally sentenced in August 1967 to serve 18 months for possession of stolen property. He also received concurrent terms for theft, failing to remain at the scene of an accident and driving while under suspension.

However, on April 30, 1968, he recieved a four-month term for unlawfully being at large, also while on the day parole program.

Lawyer George Jones said his client was a "neurological epileptic" and had serious mental problems.

A woman who stole a number of sheets and a pillow case from St. Joseph's Hospital while working there as a nurse's aide was given a suspended sentence.

June Schroeder, 29, of 2658 Fernwood, pleaded guilty.

The goods, valued at $29.20, were taken between Sept. 1 and Dec. 31, 1967, and were uncovered after a search of the woman's house Monday.

Court heard she lost her job following her arrest.

"If people take little things from the hospitals costs will spiral," commented Magistrate Ostler.

He ordered the woman to post a $250 one-year good behavior bond.

An 18-year-old youth found wandering on Broad Street with a sleeping bag about 6:30 a.m. Tuesday pleaded guilty to vagrancy.

Brian Offer was remanded a week for sentence.

Court heard he spent part of the night sleeping in a civic parking lot and had slept the previous nights in Beacon Hill Park.

The youth told the magistrate his parents lived in Saanich and he had left home a week ago. He said this had happened about 10 to 15 times before.

In asking for a pre-sentence report Magistrate Ostler said "this might be the time to do something for him."

Clifford Wayne Baker, 23, of 828 Courtney, pleaded guilty to two charges of false pretences.

Det. Tom Smith said Baker received goods from Eatons Jan. 17 and Feb. 21 by writing worthless cheques for $15.62 and $4.18.

Last week Baker pleaded guilty to two charges of uttering and one of attempted uttering.

He will be sentenced on all charges Friday.

Ott Misler, 28, of Ucluelet, was convicted of possession of marijuana and remanded to March 19 for sentence.

The same charge against Wolfgang Nitsch, 24, also of Ucluelet, was dismissed by Magistrate J. A. Byers.

They were charged jointly Nov. 24 last year after five plastic bags containing the drug were found inside the door panel of a car they were in.

A pre-sentence report is being prepared.

Norman Neilly, 57, of no fixed address, sentenced Friday to two years on false pretences charges, was sentenced to three months for obtaining lodgings by false pretences.

Magistrate Ostler ordered the sentence to be concurrent with the first one.

Dennis Poole, 1010 Balmoral, was fined $150 for failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Tracks Dismantled

Commercial Transport Minister Frank Richter Tuesday introduced a bill to dismantle the Great Northern Railway trackage running along Boundary Bay and through White Rock.

The CNR will be routed over the proposed B.C. Hydro rail link to Roberts Bank as part of the compromise routing announced last fall after Premier Bennett held special hearings on the routing controversy.

Residents of the White Rock area have demanded removal of the shoreline tracks for years.

Richter told reporters the legislation would clear the way for assembling land and building the new route.

The bill would turn the existing CNR right of way over to the provincial government while undertaking to ensure B.C. Hydro provides Kaiser Coal Company with an alternative link to the international boundary from its new line.

Negligence Charged in Hydrofoil Fire

OTTAWA (CP) — Government officials were put on a hot griddle Tuesday by MPs who contended they bolted the shipyard door only after the hydrofoil burned.

"As a result of your laxness, the ship caught fire," Lloyd R. Crouse (PC—South Shore) charged at a stormy meeting of the Commons public accounts committee looking into the fire that heavily damaged the experimental craft at Sorel, Que. Nov. 5, 1966.

"An admission of gross negligence," added John Burton (NDP—Regina East) after the committee heard a report on probable causes of the fire and the preventive steps taken in its wake.

"It seems to me the federal government is always the fall guy in these contracts," Tom Lefebvre (L—Pontiac) said in asking how the taxpayer got nicked for the $6,500,000 fire damage although the ship still was in the contractor's hands.

E. A. Armstrong, deputy defence minister, said most of the problems that had cropped up with the hydrofoil resulted from it being experimental, with no precedents for officials to adhere to.

De Havilland of Canada, the prime contractors, was conducting trials of the electrical generators which involved operation of an auxiliary gas turbine.

The report cited a hydraulic fluid leak as the "most probable" cause of the fire. The fluid apparently ignited after splashing on a hot gas turbine duct.

A hose-and-clamp connection was pinpointed as a "prime suspect" for the leak source. Many such connections were used in the low-pressure areas of the hydraulic system, the report said.

"There was evidence to indicate that some of these connections had not been properly installed and there was no record to indicate that certain of these connections had been inspected by company inspectors," the report said.

It was finally decided to repair the fire damage and go ahead with the craft with a number of precautions.

CHEQUE BOOK ATTACK ON IRISH, IRA TARGET

DUBLIN (AP) — The outlawed Irish Republican Army declared war today on foreign settlers in Ireland, saying they were a "new cheque book attack on the rights and property of the Irish people."

A statement issued by IRA activists claimed responsibility for a weekend fire that destroyed an 18th Century mansion owned by Jacobus Wieben Holstein, a German who recently took Irish citizenship. Holstein had intended to turn the house and 400-acre estate into a country club, much to the disgruntlement of County Meath farmers who wanted the land.

New Student Violence Breaks Out in Five U.S. Centres

New violence erupted in two U.S. college towns and the wave of student unrest spread to high schools in three cities.

Two persons were injured and windows were broke in a number of downtown Durham, N.C. stores after a student protest march Tuesday night. Police reported some looting and two buses damaged.

At Harvard in Cambridge, Mass., four men and a woman invaded a classroom and broke up a lecture by shouting and throwing papers around. There was fighting between the demonstrators and police before they were arrested for trespassing.

High schools in Los Angeles, New York City and Paterson, N.J. were the scenes of protests that brought police into play.

Princeton and Howard Universities were the sites of sit-ins and the girls at Briarcliff, a fashionable girl's school outside New York, were staging a protest. Barnard girls went back to their dorms after sleeping in men's dorms at Columbus University.

The violence at Durham came after a rally in a downtown park by students from Duke University and North Carolina College. They were protesting the Duke administration's rejection of Negro students' demands for equal representation with faculty on a committee to establish a black studies program.

Of the five persons arrested at Harvard, three were identified as students at Columbia University in New York City, studying for doctoral degrees in behavioral psychology. The men were held in $5,000 bond each.

There was no immediate explanation as to why the five disrupted the class.

In Los Angeles, Negro teenagers rampaged through or outside 11 public schools on the second day of a protest aimed at paralysing schools until certain demands are met.

At four schools fires broke out. Windows were smashed and tables and desks overturned at another. Twelve persons were arrested on misdemeanor charges.

Leaders of the protest are demanding Negro officials at Negro schools and programs of black studies. The unrest grew after 200 persons were cleared from a junior high school hallway by police last Friday.

Rarity in Festivals—A Canadian Play—Draws Mixed Reaction

Something that is still a rarity in drama festivals — a Canadian play — appeared in the Tuesday evening session of the Victoria Schools Drama Festival.

Johnny Dunn is a play that involves choric speech and is set "in various parts of Alberta over a period of years."

Adjudicator Mrs. Jane Benson described herself as terribly excited over it when she read it and recognized its potential.

It was the second play on the program at S. J. Willis junior secondary school and was preceded by the hosts' entry of a play that had been written in and reflected the 1920s.

THE PATCHWORK QUILT
by Rachel Field

Old Mrs. Willis	Lisa Iwaskow
Anne Wendall	Holly Vickers
Joe Wendall	Charles Miron
Betty	Joan Lett
Molly	Mary Vandenberg
William	David John
Emily	Greta Vanderveen

Director: Christine F. M. McNab

Mrs. Benson criticized the choice of play here on the grounds the script was extremely dated and therefore stilted in its effect.

She felt it either had to be played as a direct period piece or else be given some up-dating treatment.

Visually it had been on the right lines, she said. The set was good.

She was less happy about the costuming, pointing out the costume can help aging when a young person is playing an old one.

She felt the blocking had been quite interesting but that the pace tended to be slow to a point where, at times, the play dragged rather seriously.

The cast in general had done quite well and Lisa Iwaskow had given a very thoughtful performance.

"A capable young actress," Mrs. Benson commented.

The People of Alberta

Director: Mrs. J. MacPhail

"This rather unusual play has tremendous potential," Mrs. Benson remarked.

She had been rather disappointed in this production however. The position of the risers at centre stage and the strangely inadequate lighting were basic faults she found in her adjudication.

"You couldn't have handicapped yourselves more if you had tried," she exclaimed.

"We couldn't see your faces, so of course we found it more difficult to hear you."

She found the costumes good but the furniture too modern and would have preferred, for the music, something other than the piano which she described as "too sophisticated."

Johnny Dunn (Chris White) had plenty of attack, she said. The director had some good ideas but had not let them develop.

"Don't be afraid to move your speaking chorus," she advised. "Break them up into groups — let them illustrate their speech with some action."

ZANORIN by Catherine Brickendon

Miss Betsy Barony	Pam Regan
Mrs. Loomy	Joanne Martin
Liz Barony	Mary Jane Gilbody
Henry Barony	Frank Taylor
Don Loomy	Rock Olivier

Director: Margaret Edmondson

The adjudicator had liked the play which she felt had a contemporary and topical air.

In the blocking there was a tendency to move the characters around without motivation, she said, commenting that there had been some unnecessarily difficult movement.

She felt there had been a good opportunity for using one or two different levels as the action takes place on a patio.

Interpretively the play had been rather heavy and severe. Henry, for instance, needed a light touch. She praised Betsy and Mrs. Loomy.

Mrs. Benson enjoyed both the plays presented at Glenlyon Preparatory School on Tuesday afternoon, but for different reasons.

THE SNAKE by Colin Skinner

Ken	John B. Courtney
Steve	Timothy E. McGee
Robert	Nicholas R. Waterfield
Stanley	John D. Carter
Gordon	Richard C. Wilson
Simon	Wynn Wright

Director: Colin Skinner

The adjudicator's obvious delight at the warm reality of this lively original play for boys was shared by the audience.

Excellently written for this age group (Grade VI), the play set so convincing a situation that the boys did not seem to be acting but spoke with the conversational freshness of improvisation.

Excellent team work caused Mrs. Benson to decline to single out any one actor. Instead she stressed the corporate nature of dramatic production and remarked that a well-directed play has no obtruding performer.

Director: Mrs. Elsbeth Perry

The presentation by Doncaster was praised particularly for the imaginative loveliness of its set and the joyful enthusiasm of the players as a company.

Costumes were declared delightful although a word of warning was issued against using exposed shining white in stage costumes.

With some constructive suggestions about making fuller use of the stage and a warning that no lighting effects at all are better than erratic lighting effects, Mrs. Benson offered her congratulations on a well done performance.

An afternoon program of two plays took place Monday at Frank Hobbs Elementary School.

Polly	April Sponaugle

Director: Mrs. G. P. Black

"This was an excellent choice," said Mrs. Benson.

She found the setting delightful but advised directors that, when the stage is unfamiliar it is better not to attempt any particular effects with the lighting.

Costumes were well done but the adjudicator a little doubtful in regard to the scarecrow which she felt was altogether too clean and tidy.

The production was visually mostly good but she criticized the placing of the scarecrow in a centre-stage position which had caused actors to speak upstage.

Frank Hobbs Elementary School
THE STOLEN PRINCE
by Dan Totheroh

Chorus	Jamie MacLean
Long Fo	Susan Ferne

Hi Tee	Matt Smith
Li Mo	Elizabeth Kurth
Property Man	Gordon Monk
Wing Lee	Colleen Message
First Soldier	John Carr
Executioner	Gayle Day
Second Soldier	Colin Harris
Joy	Steve Glover

Director: K. Ramsay

In general, Mrs. Benson found this a very enjoyable performance. Again she found good team work and a sense of involvement. She also again found it necessary to criticize the placing of the furniture, in this case two chairs which were centred well down stage, cramping the action.

She considered that ordinary wooden chairs or even a box would have been preferable to the contemporary metal chairs which contrasted badly with the antiquity of the tale.

The actors mustn't laugh at their own comedy, she warned but said that the property man had shown a good sense of comedy.

Altogether there had been many imaginative touches and some good clear speech.

Tonight's session takes place at Mount View senior secondary with Colquitz and North Saanich juniors and the hosts providing the program.

On Thursday afternoon there will be a session at the new Blanshard elementary with Blanshard and McKenzie schools participating.

Dozois Raps Deal On Expo Deficit

QUEBEC (CP) — Finance Minister Paul Dozois Tuesday called unacceptable an agreement outlined late last month between the provincial and federal governments to underwrite a deficit this year for Montreal's Man and His World exhibition.

The agreement was to have been the basis for keeping the Expo 67 fair in operation during its second summer.

Mr. Dozois said the provincial government is awaiting word from Ottawa on a counter-proposal drawn up by Quebec cabinet ministers and submitted to Federal industry Minister Jean-Luc Pepin.

He did not elaborate on the counter-proposal.

Under last month's agreement, Quebec would underwrite any deficit of the exhibition in 1969 up to $5,500,000, the money to be deferred at no interest from funds owed by Quebec as its share of the Expo deficit.

The deferred instalments to the federal government would be resumed in 1972.

For its part, Montreal agreed to meet a federal schedule in repaying its share of the deficit.

Book on Pentagon March Wins Mailer Literary Prize

NEW YORK (AP)—Norman Mailer's The Armies of the Night won the prize for arts and letters in the National Book Awards, the National Book Committee has announced.

Published last April by New American Library, it describes Mailer's reactions during four days of October, 1967, when thousands of demonstrators marched on the Pentagon in Washington to protest the Vietnam war.

The history and biography prize went to Winthrop D. Jordan's White Over Black—American Attitudes Toward the Negro, 1550-1812.

Winners were announced in five other categories. Each prize consists of $1,000, contributed by six trade associations in the book publishing industry.

The other winners:

Fiction—Steps by Jerry Kosinski, a Polish-born author who writes only in English, and who now is a fellow of the Centre for Advanced Studies at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn.

Children's Literature — Journey From Peppermint Street by Meindert DeJong of Chapel Hill, N.C., who won the 1962 Hans Christian Andersen medal and the 1966 Newbery Medal.

Poetry—His Toy, His Dream, His Rest by John Berryman of the University of Minnesota, a 1969 winner of the Bollingen Prize. This book completes his sequence of Dream Songs, which began with 77 Dream Songs, winner of the Pulitzer Prize in 1965.

The sciences — Death In Life—Survivors of Hiroshima by Dr. Robert Lifton, who holds the professorship of the Foundation's Fund for Research at Yale University.

Translation—William Weaver, a native of Washington, D.C., who lives most of the time in Italy, for a translation of Cosmi-Comics, a fantasy of the world's creation by the Italian writer Italo Calvino.

SAANICH MAY WIDEN GARBAGE DUMP ROAD

Saanich council will be asked to spend $4,000 widening part of Hartland Road and $1,500 for a sidewalk.

The recommendation was made Tuesday night by the public works committee but the proposed work does not include the last part of the road leading to the garbage dump.

Improvements on the last part of the road are under consideration by Saanich, the private dump operator and other local municipalities.

Theatre Manager Jailed

BOSTON (AP) — A judge found the British movie The Killing of Sister George to be obscene and sentenced a theatre manager to six months in jail Tuesday for showing the picture.

Joseph Sasso of Peabody, manager of the Cheri Theatres, was fined $1,000 in addition to the jail term by Judge Elijah Adlow, who said he viewed the film Monday night. Sasso appealed to Suffolk Superior Court and was released in $1,000 personal recognizance.

Adlow said he would approve the film if the last five minutes were eliminated. Defence lawyers said this could not be done.

"I don't doubt that there are pictures currently showing in Boston that are worse, but so far they haven't been exploited," Adlow said.

". . . Certainly one lesbian scene is unsightly and lewd. That part of the picture is highly objectionable. The rest of the picture, I'll accept the liberal view of it."

"Loving to Live"

Will Rogers used to say, "I never met a man I didn't like." Isn't this a wonderful way to feel!

It's possible for everyone to feel this way. In fact, Christian Science shows that it is as natural for us to love as it is for the sun to shine.

In her free public lecture, Miss Grace Bemis Curtis of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship will explain the spiritual basis of love and its direct relationship to life itself.

You and your friends are most cordially invited to attend.

HOME GARDEN

Pruning Time Has Arrived

By HILDA BEASTALL

Gardeners having a cool, light place indoors for growing-on the plants, can begin work on their hybrid fuchsias. These have been in winter storage, presumably just above freezing but never warm enough to maintain green shoots.

Hilda

Now the first thing to do is to prune back all growths to about two inches from a main branch. This does away with all twiggy parts which would only produce weak new shoots.

As pruning is done, the color of cut pieces tell whether the plants are still alive or have been frozen. Look for a ring of green and a whitish centre under the brown bark color of the twigs. You can tell also by texture—if brittle and snapping there is not likely to be life in them. If they bend and tear, they are alive.

After pruning, plants should be repotted into fresh soil if they are to be kept for flowering this year. If wanted only to produce cuttings for making new plants, there is no need to repot.

Large containers may need only a two-inch top dressing of screened compost and something like seaforest soil conditioner.

See that drainage is good, then water the plants thoroughly and set them in a light place with a mild temperature around 45 to 55 deg. F.

Within a couple of weeks, new growths should be showing. A daily spray with tepid water will help, but do not soak the soil.

If cuttings are wanted, take them when about three inches long and after trimming to below a pair of leaves, insert in a dampened mixture of peat moss and sand. Place the pots of cuttings in a plastic bag with top closed.

For growing on the old plant, pinch out the tip of each new shoot to make it branch, thus producing more flowers during summer. About three pinchings will be needed until May 15 when buds can be allowed to form.

YOUR HEALTH

Debating If Cancer Hereditary

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

A friend just asked me if cancer is hereditary. He worries a bit, because it attacked several members of his family. A few types of cancer are hereditary, but most probably are not. Back around 1920, Dr. Maud Slye of Chicago bred cancer into a strain of mice, so that every mouse in that strain got cancer; and at the same time she bred cancer out of certain mice until she got a strain of mice, none of which ever had cancer. In 1926 I visited her and saw her laboratory and was much impressed.

Alvarez

I remember a young man who some 40 years ago came into my office at the Mayo Clinic and startled me by saying, "Call a surgeon and get him to remove my whole large bowel." When I asked him why, he said that three men in his immediate family had died in their younger days with cancer of the colon, which had started in what we doctors later came to call a "bottle-brush colon," because its inner lining is covered with thin polyps—little thread-like tumors called filliform polyps. When only one or two such polyps appear in a colon, they usually are harmless.

★ ★ ★

My associates and I looked into the man's colon, and sure enough, he did have a weird-looking colon which one of surgeons removed. Ever since that day, when we physicians have seen such a colon, we have advised that it be removed, because it is too dangerous to keep.

There is a cancer of a baby's eye which sometimes in inherited. It is called retinoblastoma, and it must quickly be removed if the baby's life is to be saved.

It is true that sometimes I will see a woman with cancer of the breast who tells me that her mother and her sister had breast cancer, but statisticians say that with so common a disease, it must show up occasionally just by accident, several times in one family. And yet Amran Scheinfeld, in his fine book "Your Heredity and Environment," wrote that the chance of any American white woman's getting a cancer of the breast is about 1 in 100, while if her mother and a sister had cancer of the breast, the woman's chance of getting such a tumor would be 1 in 50—or twice as great.

One of the best ways of telling if a disease is hereditary is to see what happens to the other twin when one of a pair of alike twins (derived from one ovum, or microscopic egg) has the disease. Then one compares this so-called "percentage of concordance" with that of unalike or fraternal twins (who are just brothers and sisters who happened to be born at the same time). For instance, when Prof. Franz Kallmann studied schizophrenia in hundreds of twins, he found concordance in some 86 per cent of alike, one-egg twins, and in perhaps 16 per cent of unalike twins. In the case of cancer, no such striking twin concordance has been found.

It is well for any person over 40 to be examined carefully once a year, having X-ray studies made of lungs, stomach and bowel. Very important and essential is a sigmoidoscopic examination—an examination of the lower end of the large bowel with a lighted tube.

In their splendid, recently published book on "Tumors of the Large Bowel" those two able Mayo surgeons, Drs. Raymond Jackman and Oliver Beahrs, showed that most of the cancers of the bowel appear in the last foot or so where they can easily be found.

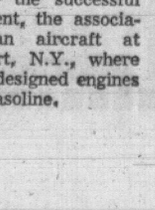
SOLUTION FRIDAY

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Baldwin Was First Canadian to Fly

By BOB BOWMAN

Who was the first Canadian to fly? The answer, like the argument about who drove the first automobile, depends on the definition of flying. J. A. D. McCurdy is usually given the honor because he flew the Silver Dart at Baddeck, Nova Scotia, on February 23, 1909. He certainly was the first to fly a heavier-than-air machine in Canada. However, people began flying in balloons about 1783, although that was in Europe. Many Canadians probably flew in balloons long before 1909.



Bowman

Thomas Selfridge, who was a member of Alexander Graham Bell's Aerial Experimental Association at Baddeck, flew in a kite on December 6, 1907. It took off from the icy water of Bras d'Or Lake, after being towed by a fast boat, and rose to a height of 168 feet with Selfridge lying inside.

When the kite came down and settled on the lake, a deckhand was supposed to cut the rope. In the excitement he forgot to do so, and Selfridge was dragged below the surface of the water. Fortunately the boat got to him in time.

However, the answer to the question "Who was the first Canadian to fly a heavier-than-air machine?" is Fred "Casey" Baldwin who was another member of the association. After the successful kite experiment, the association built an aircraft at Hammondsport, N.Y., where Glenn Curtis designed engines powered by gasoline.

The test flight took place on March 12, 1908, with Baldwin at the controls. The aircraft, called "Red Wing," took off from the frozen surface of Lake Keuka and flew 319 feet before making a successful landing. Baldwin sat on an ordinary kitchen chair. It was the first publicly announced flight in North America although the Wright brothers had flown earlier.

The engine of the Red Wing had eight air-cooled cylinders and developed 40 horsepower at 1,800 revolutions per minute. The successful flight led to the construction of the Silver Dart, which was taken from Hammondsport to Baddeck, and flown by McCurdy the following year.

Other events on March 12:

1613—Marchioness de Guercheville sent colonists to Canada.

1658—Citizens were forbidden to leave Canada without permission.

1664—Charles II gave the Duke of York territory between St. Croix and Kennebac Rivers, now in Maine.

1672—Father de Casson laid out main street in Montreal and named it Notre Dame.

1800—Government took over Jesuit estates.

1857—Sixty people were killed when Great Western Railway train fell from bridge near Hamilton, Ont. It was Canada's worst train wreck to that time.

1878—Sir John A. Macdonald announced his National Policy.

1883—Ship "Duke of Abercorn" landed first rails to Port Moody, B.C., to build CPR through Rockies.

1930—W. G. Barker, Canadian ace who shot down 52 German planes in the First World War, was killed in crash at Ottawa.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Donna Buck age 12, of High Point, North Carolina, for her question:

How do you get down from a weather balloon?

Nowadays, the average weather balloon is not designed to carry human passengers. It carries clever equipment to gather information and relay it back to earth. However, most of us would like to know how a person gets down from any sort of balloon, just in case this information should come in handy.

In the last century, several dare-devil balloonists went aloft and gathered some surprising new data about hurricanes and other weather events. Old style balloons were risky but glamorous, very glamorous. Passengers were willing to take their lives in their hands, and those who returned reported that their exhilarating trips were well worth it. The main part of a balloon, ancient or modern, is a big bag of hydrogen or helium, coal gas or hot air. The filling must be lighter than the air so that the balloon rises buoyantly above the ground.

A basket is fixed below with a network of ropes around the bag. It may be made of wicker or light material. It is loaded with bags of sand or water to act as ballast. At the top of the bag is a valve with a dangling cord. Near the top is a long seam called the ripping panel. Scientists use super balloons with airtight gondolas to go high into the rare air of the stratosphere. However, going up and coming down in any type of balloon calls for more or less the same procedure.

The bag is anchored to the ground while its lighter-than-air gases are pumped in through a valve at the bottom. The ballast and the passengers are in the basket and when all is ready, the anchor lines are cut. Up soars the balloon—until the thinning atmosphere almost equals the density of the gases in the bag. If the passengers wish to go higher, they dump a few bags of ballast overboard. If they wish to float along at a lower level, they pull the cord and dribble a little gas from the valve at the top of the bag. Meantime, the winds are pushing the balloon along. Since winds tends to blow in different directions at different levels, the passengers can rise or sink to seek a breeze blowing where they want to go. But the destinations is at the mercy of the winds and always uncertain.

Gas Released

Finally the passengers need to come down to earth. The trick is to descend slowly and gently. It begins by pulling the cord to dribble more gas from the top of the bag. The balloon loses weight and sags down toward the earth. The risks occur in the moment before the balloon lands. A cord must be pulled to tear open the ripping panel to release all the gas in the balloon. Otherwise the breezes would drag it along, bouncing its passengers over the bumpy ground. Just before landing, all the remaining ballast must be dumped in a hurry. Otherwise the loaded basket would land with a tooth-jarring thud.

Modern weather balloons do much better without passengers, so the returning of passengers to the ground is not a problem. At a certain height, the pressure of gases inside the bag causes the balloon to burst. Its radiosonde instruments, used to gather and relay weather data, are fixed to a parachute. When the balloon bursts, this parachute opens and the equipment floats safely down. It is labeled and if some honest person finds it and returns it to its rightful owners, the meteorological equipment can be used for another trip aloft.

★ ★ ★

Andy sends a World Book Globe to Vickie Philips, age 10, of Tempe, Arizona, for her question:

What is coal tar?

It looks like tar and we get it from coal and this coal tar is one of the most useful substances in the modern world. The recipe for creating it begins with soft black coal and a slow-burning furnace. The coal is sealed in an oven while the heat drives off certain of its chemicals. The roasted coal becomes cindery stuff called coke—but this coke is not related to the cokes or colas used to make refreshing drinks. The materials driven off from the coke are captured and they form the dark, gummy material called coal tar.

The next job is to separate the valuable chemicals in the coal tar. These include benzene and toluene, which are light oils. Benzene is used in making dyes and synthetic rubber, toluene is used to make paints, dyes and TNT explosives. Creosote for protecting telephone poles also is extracted from coal tar. So are carbolic acid and other germ-killing chemicals. Several coal tar products are used to make perfumes, dyes and drugs.

MISS CHEST DISABLED doesn't qualify herself, but she has a licence to pretend. Arriving here today to give blessings to the annual TB and chest disabled veterans' miniature key tag licence plate campaign, Caroline McDermott stopped to give Times photographer Bill Halkett a pretty smile before meeting a sailor at HMC Dockyard. Lucky sailor was Petty Officer Douglas Tanner of HMCS Saskatchewan, who was presented with a miniature duplicate of his number 5 licence.. The TB vets distribute some 600,000 tags to B.C. motorists annually. The proceeds are used for employment of TB vets, scholarships and research into respiratory diseases. Civil Service Used As Shield—Berger

By JOHN SLINGER

The B.C. government was accused Tuesday of hiding behind the civil service in "the Commonwealth Trust fiasco."

Tom Berger (NDP—Vancouver-Burrard) said the civil service prompted the letter to the Times by E. Alan Porter, the provincial trust company inspector who alleged the government "whitewashed" Commonwealth Trust Co. six years ago.

Porter wrote to the newspaper because he felt the inspecting staff was "being unjustly criticized," said Berger.

It was the only way Porter saw "the integrity and respect of the civil service could be preserved.

FORCED TO DO IT

"He was forced to do it because the government refused" to give the house all the facts in its handling of the operations of Commonwealth and its associated companies.

The failure of the government to reveal all documents in its files concerning Commonwealth "placed the civil service under a cloud."

It was trying to make the civil service "carry the can for its own undeniable . . . negligence in the conduct of this affair."

Meanwhile, Porter confirmed to interviewers Tuesday that his purpose in sending the explosive letter to the Times was to defend himself and fellow civil servants exposed to public condemnation by the government's silence in the legislature on why the supervision machinery failed to prevent the Commonwealth Trust crisis.

He told reporters he was just making it clear that the inspectors at least had done their job.

"I mean, with the mounting censure, some people would be saying what were those SOBs doing — just sitting around all the time?" he explained.

He said he did not know if Premier Bennett ever was informed of his adverse reports in 1963 and 1964 "but I imagine that if the matter was treated properly and if it was put through the right channels, the deputy minister or the acting deputy minister must have received them."

REGRETS TERM

Porter said he regretted using the term "whitewash" in his letter to describe the investigation which followed his reports.

"Abortive would probably have been a better word because some people have drawn the wrong conclusions from the term 'whitewash'," he said.

"I'm not laying the blame at anyone's doorstep."

He said the investigation was not sufficiently prepared or coordinated when six men from three agencies "swooped down" on the company.

The poor preparations resulted in the investigation becoming "just a matter of going through the motions to look important," Porter said.

Replying to a comment by Premier Bennett that he should have revealed at the time his concern that his warnings were not being treated satisfactorily, Porter said he did.

He said he wrote his superior C. A. Perry (who now is with

BIAFRA SEEKS MONTH TRUCE

LAGOS (Reuters) — Lt.-Col. Odumegwu Ojukwu, leader of the secessionist Nigerian state of Biafra, has proposed a one-month truce in the Nigerian civil war for the two sides to meet and work out a ceasefire, Radio Biafra reported today.

16 Charged For Sit-in At Dockyard

Charges of mischief have been laid against 16 persons involved in a 2½-hour protest sit-in at HMC Dockyard Sunday.

Esquimalt police chief Earl Sarsiat said today 12 adults and four juveniles have been charged under section 372 of the Criminal Code and will appear in court early next week for their part in closing the main access to Dockyard.

Those charged were part of a group of 30, including four American youths, protesting the Canadian Navy's hospitality to a visiting U.S. Navy submarine over the weekend.

COULD BE DEPORTED

A police official said if the American youths are convicted of the offence — which carries a maximum penalty of 14 years imprisonment — they would be liable to deportation following completion of any sentence they might receive.

One of the protesters, Glen McTaggart, who recently conducted an opinion survey of the Canada Manpower Centre, said today if the American youths are convicted and if Canada subsequently tried to deport them, "the fight would really begin."

He added that the demonstrators, who call themselves the "Peace Action Group," will block the Dockyard gates each time an American warship arrives at Esquimalt.

"But next time it will even be better," he said.

SMALL-ARMS BATTLE ERUPTS ALONG SUEZ

TEL AVIV (AP)—Light arms fire broke out along the Suez Canal today and Israeli and Jordanian forces traded fire in the Jordan Valley. (See story on Page 19).

The Israeli army in Tel Aviv said the Egyptians started the new round of hostilities along the canal with sniper fire. Israeli troops fired back, the army said.

Russia Seeks West Support Against China

By DAN MORGAN
The Washington Post

The Soviet Union has launched an unprecedented campaign for Western support in its dispute with Red China and to give the Russian version of the bloody border clash on March 2.

Official sources reported that Soviet Ambassador Valerian Zorin called at the French foreign ministry Tuesday to tell the French government about the clash. Similar meetings were held in Japan and West Germany.

The Soviet Union, in asking West German support in its dispute with Red China confided in the Bonn leaders that the Chinese are following a chauvinistic policy which has resulted in 2,000 border clashes since 1960 and which could endanger "all Asian peoples."

CHINESE THREAT

Moscow's views on the Chinese threat were conveyed in the 55-minute conversation between Soviet Ambassador Semyon Tsarapkin and Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger.

According to reliable sources, last week's Berlin crisis played only a small role in the unprecedented briefing for the chancellor which had been sought by the Soviet emissary.

In this respect, the Chinese problem and its suspected role in reducing Soviet enthusiasm for adventures in Berlin, appeared to be creating new divisions between the East Germans and the Soviets.

In its Tuesday editions, the East German party paper Neues Deutschland suggested that the Chinese Communists had staged the March 2 border clash just before the West German presidential election convention last week to support the Bonn government's "provocations" in West Berlin.

Observers noted even more curiously, that the lead editorial, entitled "Mao Group Helps Imperialists," was written by deputy editor Dr. Guenther Kietzscher, who is considered to be an East German communist with unusually good connections in the Kremlin.

Sources here said that both the harsh tone of the editorial, and its suggestion of a Bonn-Peking conspiracy last week, were out of tune with Tsarapkin's talk here. According to these sources Tsarapkin gave a relatively straightforward report on the Soviet position and made no substantial warnings to Bonn against taking advantage of the Soviet-Chinese dispute.

One Bonn official in Berlin last week said the border clash had come "as if ordered."

One of the long range Soviet policy nightmares has been the possibility of an eventual American-West German-Chinese "axis" aimed at containing the Soviet Union.

This spectre was certainly not eliminated by remarks over the weekend by foreign minister Willy Brandt, in which he said that "the great Chinese people will play a role (in the future), not only in Asia but in other parts of the world."

ON VERGE OF PACT

In 1964, West German and Chinese negotiators in Bern, Switzerland, were on the verge of reaching agreement on a trade mission exchange when Chancellor Ludwig Erhard torpedoed the idea at Washington's urging.

Also Peking's relations with East Berlin have deteriorated rapidly.

The Chinese claimed Tuesday that the Soviet Union admitted five years ago that Chenpao Island, site of the March 2 clash, was part of China.

Both nations now claim the island in the Ussuri River.

In Russia newspapers reported today that 19 of the 31 Soviet troops killed in the island battle would have survived if the Chinese had not knifed, bayonetted or shot them as they lay wounded on the ground.

Tokyo Crippled By Snowstorm

TOKYO (AP) — A snowstorm dumped 11 inches on Tokyo today, stranding more than 1,000,000 commuters and paralysing all land, sea and air transportation in central Japan.

The fall broke a 59-year-old March snow record in the Japanese capital.

Time Shortens At Peace Talks

By CHALMERS M. ROBERTS

PARIS (WP)—The moment of truth is approaching here at the Vietnam peace talks—the moment when the United States has to decide how to proceed.

The question, which the U.S. delegation here has been searching out with Washington, is whether to put forward new ideas and new proposals either in public or in private or to continue to stick to previous positions.

When President Nixon met with Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge and his top aides here on March 2, the president himself filled a yellow pad with his own notes. Once back in Washington he went through all the questions and answers with Secretary of State William P. Rogers and White House national security assistant Henry Kissinger.

The implication, as understood here, is that Mr. Nixon was trying to get a "feel" of Lodge's view of the talks, not that he was advancing detailed specifics on what tack Lodge should take at the Thursday meetings with the two Communist delegations at the four-delegation conference.

Time, it appears, is running out. The Americans know that they must demonstrate, above all to the American public, that the Nixon administration is trying to break the deadlock, that if the blood-letting in South Vietnam continues the fault lies with the Communists.

A first problem has to do with what Mr. Nixon termed an "appropriate response" to the communist rocketing of Saigon, Danang and Hue, the three cities specifically mentioned by the Americans in the "understanding" of last fall which led to the halt in the bombing of North Vietnam.

While it seems evident that the president is most desirous of avoiding escalatory steps there are good reasons to believe he has considered permitting a strike against North Vietnam in retaliation. Yet he knows, as his envoys here told him, that the effect on the talks would be considerable. It is the judgment here that the communists have been testing the new president, trying to find out how far they can push him short of retaliation. From what information is available here, it appears that the president has yet to decide where the limit may be.

Defence Secretary Melvin Laird's comments before leaving Saigon are taken here as demonstrating the administration's reluctance to make any military move which could or would derail the Paris talks.

The best information here is that as yet there have been no secret talks between the U.S. and North Vietnam which go beyond protests over the rocketing to the substantive issues of how to end the war.

Log Freeze Confirmed

Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston confirmed today that major log exporting firms have agreed to halt shipments to Japan until Sept. 1 because of log shortages at Canadian mills.

Williston identified the firms as Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd., MacMillan Bloedel Ltd., and Pacific Logging Co. Ltd., a subsidiary of Canadian Pacific Railway.

The freeze in exports was announced in Ottawa Tuesday by Federal Forestry Minister Jack Davis. (See story Page 7.)

NIGHT-LONG PROTEST IN FRONT OF EMBASSY

PEKING (AP) — Anti-Soviet demonstrations sparked off by the armed clash on the Sino-Soviet border on March 2 resumed here today as another huge crowd gathered in front of the Soviet embassy.

The demonstrations went on from Monday to Thursday last week and then were resumed Tuesday after a four-day break.

Throughout the night loudspeakers had blared out anti-Soviet slogans in front of the embassy about 100 yards from the buildings where the Soviet diplomats have their quarters.

Mommy, Kiss Me, Were Florenda's First Words

By ARTHUR MAYSE

Her condition listed as "satisfactory," Florenda Joy Dick remains under intensive care at St. Mary's Hospital of Mayo Clinic today.

She is still receiving oxygen, but the plasma that sustained her through an afternoon and part of her first night after open-heart surgery has been discontinued, and this morning she spoke clearly to her mother.

Her words, muffled by the oxygen tent, were, "Mummy, kiss me."

Mrs. David Dick, who had come to the hospital early after a night of little sleep and much worry, glanced at the nursing sister beside her.

The nurse nodded. Sadie Dick lifted the edge of the plastic tent and kissed the six-year-old's cheek.

MORALE HIGH

Florenda's next request — one that won't be fulfilled for a number of days — was for a wheelchair "so I can go for a walk."

Her morale is high, although she is uncomfortable and still suffering pain that can be alleviated only sparingly.

A slight fever that set in Tuesday night has vanished. Feeding is intravenous, and will be for several days. Also, as a guard against the still-present possibility of a heart block a heart-pacer is taped to her skin.

Its wires lead into a heart that now pumps normally, but they are not connected. The operation has removed dangerous pressure from Florenda's right lung and, barring complications, the period of greatest danger will be over Thursday.

NERVE IN PATH

Among the problems confronting surgeons who operated Tuesday was a nerve which stretched directly across the path of the operation.

In a special report to the Times, Ken McCracken, Rochester Post Bulletin medical correspondent, revealed

De Gaulle Speech Angers Union Heads

From Reuters-AP

PARIS (CP) — Union leaders reacted bitterly today to President de Gaulle's tough speech Tuesday night following nationwide strikes and violent police-student clashes.

Political observers said the country faced increased social political tensions after de Gaulle strongly attacked labor leaders in a radio and television broadcast.

Labor unions felt Tuesday's general strike and a big demonstrations in Paris would put pressure on the government into raising its wage increase offer above the four-per-cent limit. The unions are asking for 10 to 12 per cent more.

But de Gaulle stood firm, warning that France is just starting to recover from the crippling effects of last spring's student-labor turmoil. He said strikers would not be allowed to threaten the franc with devaluation and throw the country into chaos again.

The 78-year-old French leader accused the labor leaders of unleashing "a new offensive . . . threatening to bring down the currency the economy and the republic.

"Do I need to declare they will be firmly defended?" he asked.

The wage negotiations deadlocked when the government insisted anything beyond a four-per-cent wage increase would result in inflation and might force devaluation of the franc.

Among the first to reply to de Gaulle was Georges Seguy, leader of the powerful Communist-led Confederation Generale du Travail (CGT), who said that although the unions were still willing to continue wage negotiations with the government "the head of state is hurling ill-willed and gratuitous accusations" against them.

Andre Jeanson, leader of the militant Roman Catholic union grouping, said de Gaulle had "dramatized events to such an outrageous degree as to take away the credibility."

MORE ACTION PLANNED

The militant Catholic unions maintain Tuesday's strikes are only a beginning. And the CGT said further action will be called for but did not specify what form it will take or when.

The 24-hour strikes paralysed almost every branch of industry, reduced public transport to skeleton services and closed many government offices.

There were huge demonstrations for better wages by tens of thousands of workers in provincial cities while in Paris some 200,000 workers marched through the streets to the Place de la Bastille.

The workers dispersed without incident but about 5,000 extremist students then occupied the square and began hurling bottles and stones at riot police.

After a half hour of defending themselves with shields, police charged the students with rubber clubs in a show of violence not seen in Paris since the riots of May and June, 1968.

About two dozen students were pinned to a wall, their hands behind their heads and noses streaming blood. Among them was a middle-aged woman, her face a mass of blood.

De Gaulle devoted much of his speech to stressing the dangers the country faced and linked the present situation with the riots last spring.

Puttin' financial reports on paper is one way t' save 'em. It's also one way t' lose 'em.

All Postal Workers End Wildcat Strikes

By The Canadian Press

A series of wildcat postal strikes ended completely today as the last of the recalcitrant workers returned to their jobs.

The strikes at one time involved 1,100 workers in three provinces. They ended today when 350 members of the Letter Carriers Union of Canada returned to their work in Saskatoon and the Ontario centres of Welland, St. Catharines, Niagara Falls, Stoney Creek, Burlington, Dundas. (See story, Page 3).

City Men Confirm Stand

Mailmen in Greater Victoria confirmed their stand against any unauthorized strike action at a union meeting Tuesday night.

Jack Bell, president of the 178-member Victoria Local of the Letter Carriers of Canada, said today members voted unanimously to follow instructions of their national office.

"Whatever they decide we'll go along with."

In the meantime local postmen will continue to return to the postal stations on company time to wash up and have lunch, he said.

The government maintains that under its new "straight-through" work pattern for letter carriers they must travel to and from lunch on their own time.

Arthur Mayse

Pot luck today, and for a start, here's a mystery story.

It dates back to July of last year when the G. R. Pearkes Clinic for Handicapped Children was still many months away from the longed-for move into fine new quarters off Arbutus Road.

A letter arrived in the mail one sunny day. It contained a $20 bill and this message:

"God bless you in your very fine work."

The note was unsigned, and carried no return address.

Neither did the envelope in which it arrived.

Since then, at least once each month and several times twice, similar blessings have turned up in the Clinic's mail. Each was accompanied by a $20 bill.

Sendings now total 11, and clinic directors who will take possession of a new $650,000 unit on Friday still haven't the slightest clue to the secret benefactor's identity.

However, I have been asked by board president Fred Tanner to pass on a message from Clinic staff and directorate.

It runs like this:

"We don't know who you are, but we greatly appreciate yor help, and wish to expre s our sincere gratitude."

(You got that, mystery person? Thanks and gratitude to one who deserves 'em!)

Here's a highly significant 'Help Wanted' ad, culled from a recent issue of 'Bio Science' and forwarded by Enqual, which translates into British Columbia Association for Environmental Quality.

"A West Coast state college," it reads, "is founding a cluster college for the study of environmental science." Then it goes on to request applications for the position of dean.

This, I'm assured, is but one of many moves aimed at counteracting present misuse of North American resources and bringing about an improved balance between man and the nautral world on which he depends for his very existence.

The proposed new college setup is described as "typical of the growing interest in inter-disciplinary studies of man's environment. Departments, faculties and institutes of environmental studies, environmental science, resource management, regional planning and resource development have been formed at various institutions."

This does seem to indicate that in some quarters at least, thoughtful men and women are probing an area in which the answers to future human existence on our globe may lie.

The conservationist used to walk alone as a figure more derided than heeded. I think that time is passing, but whether pollution, misuse of resources and massive spoilage will be checked this side of the point of no return, I'm less sure.

The telephone that sits on my desk is both friend and enemy.

On Tuesday morning, as deadline edged closer, I waited for it to bring in a long distance call from Rochester, Minn.

If you have followed Florenda Joy Dick's story since I passed it on to you halfway through our meanest January, I'm sure you will understand how hard that waiting was.

The message, when it did come, would be literally one of life or death.

Then the phone rang; and as you know, it brought good news.

I had expected the caller to be Florenda's uncle, Neil Tenner of Morden, Man., Mr. Tenner had gone down to Rochester so that Mrs. David Dick wouldn't have to worry out a tense day alone.

Instead, the voice at the other end was Sadie Dick's. We talked for no longer than a minute ... but that was long enough.

The little blonde snooks on whose behalf you stirred up such a money-storm is not out of the woods yet.

But she is resting easy, the hours of open-heart surgery survived. If all continues to go well, she'll come home to Victoria, and a new life, in early April.

Word Soon On Second New Hotel

Nordal Group Modifies Big Waterfront Project

The announcement of a $25 million Reid Centre development on Wharf Street has revitalized plans for a comparable project just across the street.

Architect John Wade, who unveiled a $10 million hotel-convention centre project last Aug. 2, said the Reid proposal should provide the impetus to get his client's plans off the ground in the near future.

Wade designed the 34-storey hotel and convention centre building on the instructions of the Nordal family and a group of local businessmen.

The project appeared doomed to failure after Victoria city council failed to come to terms with the Nordals on the detailed plans for the convention centre and a clear-cut financing proposal.

But Wade said Tuesday afternoon that the $25 million Reid Centre project was the "best thing that could have happened" for his clients.

"We have known about the Reid development for some time," he said. "It just confirmed our faith in the area. Within the next few weeks we shall be announcing a comparable project on our original site."

OPPOSITE

The first Wade proposal would have located the multi-storey hotel and convention centre between Government and Wharf and Broughton and Courtney Streets, roughly opposite the Reid project which will be located directly on the waterfront.

Wade declined to reveal details of the new plan but said it would be the original proposal "modified." He offered no elaboration on the term, but it is understood that the new proposal will not include a convention centre.

Wade also declined to state where the financing for the new venture would come from other than to say "we have a group keenly interested, very keenly interested and they will be prepared to make an announcement in the near future."

AMERICAN GROUP

He added the interested group was American.

At least two primarily American hotel groups — Western International and Holiday Inn — have been showing recent interest in acquiring hotel sites in Victoria.

Neither have made any public disclosures on their plans although Western did at one time intend to join with the CPR in the htoel operational field in Victoria. The proposed partnership has since fallen by the wayside.

To date the CPR-Empress Hotel convention centre proposal, also to be unveiled in detail within the next few weeks, has a clear field in the city.

Tuesday J. A. Reid, president of Reid Properties Ltd., prime developers of the $25 million project, gave his blessing to the convention centre on the Empress parking lot site.

Privately he said his company could not compete with the CPR's offer to pick up 25 per cent of all operating losses once such a convention centre was built.

BALLROOM

In the plans for the Fort Victoria Inn, a 25-storey 320 room hotel to be built on the Wharf Street waterfront site, there is, however, provision for an 800 seat ballroom and a 500 to 600 seat theatre.

Combined the two could handle the majority of large conventions coming to Victoria.

"But," said Reid, "it is not our intention to compete with a convention centre. We feel the (CPR) proposal is a good one and are delighted to see it moving ahead."

Canadian Firms Urged to Widen Their Horizons

Canadian companies that continue to manufacture primarily for the domestic market are "for the high jump," said industrialist Leonard Hynes today in Victoria.

Hynes, president of Canadian Industries Ltd. and of the Canadian council of the International Chamber of Commerce, said there must be more development in Canadian industry to enable it to compete internationally.

TOO CONTENT

"We are too content to be provincial," he said in an interview before addressing a Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce luncheon. There is too much emphasis on raw exports, he said.

British Columbia would have a greater appreciation of the primary export role than the rest of the country, he said, since forestry and mining are based on foreign markets.

But domestic secondary industry must also thrive.

"Plants to supply the domestic market are no good any more. If we go on doing what we have been doing we're for the high jump. We are just not competitive unless our plants are as big as those in Germany, the U.S. and Japan."

TALENTS

Hynes said there is Canadian talent for this development, but it must be put to work.

As president of the Canadian council on the international chamber Hynes said he had been trying to revive the Canadian role. During May and June he will lead a delegation of some 35 top businessmen to the ICC biennial congress in Istanbul, which will discuss the role, rights and responsibilities of the international corporation.

'No Patient to Feel Cut Off' In Modern, Airy Mental Clinic

By PETE LOUDON

The "most modern, up-to-date, psychiatric building in the world" was the way former provincial health minister Eric Martin today described the building which bears his name.

Due to open in late spring, the Eric Martin Institute of Psychiatry will do more than administer to the mentally ill.

It will have an economic impact on Victoria like the opening of another major shipyard or manufacturing plant in the community payroll it will represent.

This became evident in a preview of the new facility granted the Times and the former minister who came out of retirement for an inspection on the $7 million, six-storey institution east of Royal Jubilee Hospital.

The institution, to be administered by Royal Jubilee will employ a minimum of 400 persons with an estimated payroll of $3 million in caring for 170 bed patients and untold hundreds of day patients and outpatients.

Martin, who retired from politics in 1966, was a guiding force in creating the new mental hospital which will serve all of Vancouver Island.

He said that he and former deputy minister of mental health, Dr. Allen Davidson, now of Ottawa, went to the University of Southern California and to the Clark Institution in Toronto to examine the finest facilities then existent—and they believe they surpassed them in their planning.

IMPOSING new mental hospital peers over Oak Bay through tinted glass. No windows are barred and emphasis in design is on space and light. Building is air conditioned. Each floor has a dining area and each residential area of 25 persons will function as a group. Single, double and four-bed rooms augment larger wards. Site is bounded by Fort, Lee and Trent. Wide drive enters from Trent Street.

Armored Glass, No Bars

Nothing in the new institute is reminiscent of mental hospitals previously seen in this province. There are no bars and the whole emphasis is on light and airy surroundings.

Huge windows of armoured glass which can withstand the running body of a 150-pound man without strain, make the entire unit a part of the community. On every side are views of homes and gardens and people in their normal pursuits.

"No patient," said the inspecting officials, "need ever feel cut off."

There is a roof garden open to the sun above a two-storey wing and another open exercise area on the sixth floor. There is a second floor balcony surrounding the 400 by 400 by 100 foot perimeter of the building. (Eight laps is a mile of exercise.)

The hospital features four-bed wards, and some larger, the beds separated by closets and thus becoming private cubicles. There are spacious activity and therapy areas—some of them with sliding dividing walls which can be opened for dances or closed for intimate dining.

Each floor has dining spaces and distribution kitchens served by mobile steam tables which return to the main lower floor kitchens. Tubs for trees and shrubs decorate all outdoor areas.

The present Mental Health Centre on the Fort Street end of the building will be moved into the institute and then that building will be demolished, said project inspector Ralph Lindblad of the department of public works. The new building was designed and supervised entirely by the department.

Difficult to Find Staff

Official opening will be announced by the present Health Minister Ralph Loffmark or his deputy Dr. F. G. Tucker. Before then furnishing must be completed and staff recruited.

There will be three shifts each day of staff and attendants.

At one point Mr. Martin said "It's going to be a job getting staff."

Later a department spokesman said there will be an active recruitment and already there have been many enquiries from persons who wish to work there.

It is anticipated that although nursing staff will be drawn from the Riverview Training School, many ward positions will be filled locally and a measure of staff training will be undertaken here.

Twenty of the new beds are reserved for children who are acutely psychotic—who have lost contact with their surroundings and emotionally disturbed children also will be treated.

Those who require physical care and extended treatment will be treated mainly at the $4.9 million Glendale Hospital for which a contract was recently awarded. It will rise near the Wilkinson Road Institute and will contain 300 beds.

The emphasis on the Eric Martin Institute will be on short, intensive treatment.

The whole building is of reinforced concrete construction using materials equal to those of 300 homes. The reinforcing steel would have been sufficient to build 425 cars. The building is air conditioned throughout.

Tender Call Soon On Widening Job

Tenders will be called for widening Patricia Bay Highway "as soon as we possibly can," Highways Minister Wesley Black said Tuesday.

He was replying to a question from John Tisdalle, member of the legislature for Saanich and The Islands constituency.

A delay in starting work resulted from bad winter weather which slowed survey work.

Announcement of the widening program, which will see four lanes built almost all the way from Patricia Bay Airport to Town and Country Shopping Centre, was made late last year. Cost was estimated at $5 million.

Work has started on several stretches of the highway where the department is using day labor.

Stretches which are to go to tender are between Telegraph Bay Road and Ardwell Road, 6.8 miles, and Chesterlea subdivision to Viewmont, 1.5 miles.

Day labor will be used between Carey Road and Chesterlea, 1.75 miles, and Viewmont to Telepgraph Bay Road, five miles.

Specific plans have not been announced for the junction of Trans-Canada Highway and Pat Bay near Town and Counctry Shopping Centre.

QUADRA WIDENING

Tisdalle also asked whether the department had plans to widen Quadra Street since the route will be "an important detour" when work on the highway begins.

"The answer is yes," said Black.

However, Saanich engineer Nevill Life said this morning he knows of no plans beyond the presently-contemplated work.

Quadra has already been widened to four lanes from MacKenzie Avenue to Kenneth and the strip from Kenneth to Nicholson is expected to be added soon. The total distance for this combined strip on Quadra is half a mile.

From there to the junction with Patricia Bay Highway, about one mile, is two lanes.

"We don't have the money or the intention to go further this year," said Life.

TWO YEARS

Asked if he thinks Quadra Street will become an alternative entrance to Pay Bay for Victoria, he said "our view has always been that Quadra will become a very important street. We are thinking in terms of at least a two-year program for the balance. It's (action) is up to next year's council."

Cost of four-laning Quadra right to Pat Bay, with all the extras like curbs and gutters and storm drainage, would be over $200,000.

Life said it could be four-laned for "a great deal less" without the extras.

"I think the next stage should be two lanes with two gravel shoulders as the next economical stage," he said.

Visitor Bureau Officers Headed By Pat Frumento

Marine transport manager Pat Frumento today was elected president of Victoria Visitors' Bureau at its annual meeting.

Frumento, who takes over from Stan Booker, has as his vice-president hotel operator Sam Lane.

Directors are W. F. Armson, C. E. Blaney, L. J. Finamore, Howard Hill, Jack Lee, Ian McCaul, Keith Olson, Charles White, Frank Norton and Alf Pettersen.

Saanich to Save Some Trees Along Separated Shelbourne

Saanich intends to preserve at least some of the memorial trees lining Shelbourne Street in the face of demands by increasing traffic.

The trees were planted after the First World War as a memorial to those who were killed.

The municipal public works committee recommended Tuesday night that Saanich buy a 25-foot strip on the west side of Shelbourne to permit a dual carriageway for the last half mile from Kenmore to Mount Douglas Park, leaving a line of trees on the central median.

There would be four lanes of traffic, two on each side.

Engineer Neville Life pointed out the proposal at this time, which requires council approval, is to buy the land. There was no intention to do the work for five years or so.

South of Kenmore will eventually see the memorial trees go.

"I would assume that traffic will demand a four-lane highway and then regrettably the trees will have to go," said Life.

But small trees Saanich has planted behind the memorial trees would remain.

Protester To Become Gift-Giver

Glen McTaggart has found himself a job.

McTaggart, the 22-year-old unemployed student, met with Canada Manpower officials Tuesday for a second interview on the findings of an outdoor survey he made, primed on Manpower's inability to place him in employment.

He now says that "they (Manpower officials) are good people but need more power."

He reports that he will not need Manpower's help.

"I'm going to help start a 'free shop' where customers will be given gifts.

"There's no giving in the world today. We've got to start somewhere. I do carving, lots of the girls are making purses, beaded things, vests and attractive clothes."

McTaggart has no qualms about financing.

"My wife is working. As long as I and my friends have something to give we'll be in business."

CONTEST WINNER in the provincial Cancer Fund essay competition is Sheri Robertson, a 12-year-old Grade 7 student at Macaulay School, who received $25 and a plaque from campaign chairman Stan Moore this morning. Campaign officially gets under way April 1.

Ask The Times

Q. I would like to know what became of Della Street and Paul Drake of the Perry Mason show now that the shows are all repeats. I do not remember their real names.—J. R.

A. Barbara Hale (Della Street in the show) is now a housewife, living in Los Angeles with her ex-actor husband, Bill Williams. William Hopper, better known as Paul Drake, is appearing in stock shows.

Q. On June 14 of this year my parents will celebrate the 50th anniversary of their wedding. How do I arrange to have a telegram of congratulations sent to them from Her Majesty the Queen and also the Prime Minister of Canada?—R. W. C.

A. Congratuatory telegrams can be arranged by contacting Cmdr. Garfield Dixon, secretary to the Lieutenant-Governor, at Government House, Victoria. If your parents live in Victoria they would receive telegrams from Prime Minister Trudeau, the lieutenant-governor, Premier W. A. C. Bennett and Mayor Hugh Stephen. Congratulatory messages from the Queen are only received on the occasion of a 60th wedding anniversary.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Tourist Men Breathing Easier As American Travel Unhampered

Travel bureau and hotelmen here were relieved today by assurances the new administration in the U.S. will not impede foreign travel.

They said an anticipated bumper year for tourism here is almost certain.

U.S. Secretary of Commerce Maurice H. Stans said in Washington Tuesday the Nixon administration "will not tax or propose any other inhibitions on travel by American citizens in foreign countries."

Former president Lyndon B. Johnson had proposed a tax on foreign travel and overseas spending. While the tax was never affected and countries in the western hemisphere were exempted, some travel authorities feared the idea might gain strength.

Local travel bureau operator C. E. Blaney said, "This removes all doubt." He said he participates in arrangements for tour groups and individuals coming here from the U.S. on vacation trips. The service is increasing every year.

At the Empress Hotel where most U.S. tour groups register during the peak three-month tour season, manager Louis Finamore said, "We are expecting the best summer since the hotel opened.

"Tour groups have been holding up very well indeed."

He agreed the assurance from Washington was comforting to the hotel's long-range planning.

Trailor Court 'Ignores' Board

The Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health voted Tuesday to seek legal advice in a health-sewage dispute over a new trailer court on the Songhees Indian reserve on Craigflower Road.

The board will also write to the federal minister responsible for Indian affairs.

Board chairman Roy Elphick, an Esquimalt alderman, said the trailer park is not supposed to be occupied until health board approval is given.

17 TRAILERS

As of late last week, there were 17 trailers. Sewerage had not been approved by the health board, the provincial government or Esquimalt municipality, he said.

"We did receive a blunt letter that the lessee (Glenkey Mobile Homes Limited) would proceed regardless, which perhaps indicates they have no consideration for rules and regulations," he said.

The board had contacted the regional supervisor of Indian affairs and "it doesn't seem that even that department is concerned about health regulations for this particular park."

Asked about board jurisdiction over Indian lands, senior medical health officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread said there have been cases elsewhere where lessees of Indian land have been taken to court by health boards and the case won.

"The Victoria prosecutor is quite prepared to take action," he added.

Elphick said in addition to not complying with provincial health regulations, there was a threat the project will overload sewage facilities on Craigflower Road which could backup sewage in basements.

He said the development is in the process of connecting sewers to existing trailers which in turn feed into the Esquimalt sewage system.

Existing sewer facilities were designed for 40 persons and at present there are 40 trailers or about 80 persons plus nearby houses plus the new trailers.

Elphick also said Songhees Chief John Albany is "very anxious" that the project be done properly.

"He has a three-year agreement and doesn't want to be stuck with a white elephant when the lease is up," he said.

Police to End Safe-Driving Showings

The Saanich police safe-driving show will end this months.

Sgt. William Chisholm said Monday that crowds have dropped at recent showings and police feel that after two years and more than 14,000 spectators the show has just about run out of audience.

A program Wednesday and another on March 25 will be the last.

The 90-minute free program is built around two moves, Mechanized Death and The David Hall Story. W. C. Fields stars in a short film called Hurry, Hurry, Hurry.

Anyone interested in seeing either of the last two showings is asked to phone 388-4321 and reserve a seat. The program is held at the Saanich Police and Fire building, Vernon Avenue at Douglas. Wednesday's show begins at 8 p.m.

Hasp, Padlock Knocked Off Door

Thieves who attacked an iron door with a wrecking bar stole $15 from McMaster's Clothing, 1012 Fort Street overnight Monday.

Police said a hasp and padlock were broken from the door, measuring 34 inches by 14 and a half inches. The door was at the rear of the premises and was used for fuel deliveries.

The money, in bills and silver, was taken from a till but thieves missed a similar amount in another till.

They left the way they came in after an unsuccessful attempt to pry open another rear door.

Seven Areas Back College Construction

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Ratepayers in seven British Columbia lower mainland school districts voted overwhelmingly in favor over the weekend of establishing Fraser Valley West Regional College.

A light turnout of 12.02 per cent of the 176,000 eligible voters approved the plebiscite by 70.23 per cent. A simple majority was required.

All seven districts voted in favor of the plebiscite which will establish the seventh of a slowly developing chain of junior colleges which were first proposed by the Macdonald report on higher education in 1962.

The over-all vote approved the college by 14,847 to 6,294.

Langley had the highest percentage of yes votes — 75.2 per cent — and New Westminster the lowest with 66 per cent.

Burnaby recorded a 66;9 per cent vote. Coquitlam voted 73.2 per cent, Delta 70.4, Richmond 67 and Surrey 70 per cent in favor.

The participating districts will share an annual cost estimated at $500,000 a year. The college will cost an estimated $2,000,000 to operate in its initial year, 60 per cent of which will come from the provincial government.

Second Man Charged In Burnaby Shooting

BURNABY (CP) — Two men were charged Monday with non-capital murder after shooting deaths occurred in two different Vancouver suburbs Saturday.

Ronald Lawrence Swanson, 24, was charged here in the death of Ernest Reddeman, 37, a bystander hit by a bullet during a shooting affray at the Burnaby hotel.

James Lawrence Cummings, 21, was charged in New Westminster with the death of Stanford Roy Settee, 27, who was shot four times in a home in New Westminster.

Police said Swanson and Cummings both live at the same address in New Westminster.

Two men were wounded in the hotel shooting. They were James Sauve, 20, of New Westminster, who was shot in the lower back, and Joseph Diagle, 25, shot in the abdomen as he ran out of the beer parlor.

Police have so far revealed no motives in the shootings.

Cummings appeared in New Westminster court and was remanded without bail to March 17, Swanson was due to appear later.

BLEAK OUTLOOK GIVEN FOR CANADA'S FARMERS

EDMONTON (CP) — By 1980, half of Canada's farm population will have to look for jobs in other fields, says the director-general of the economics branch of the federal agriculture department.

"The outlook for Canadian agriculture . . . over the next five years appears somewhat bleak," Dr. Glen Purnell told the Alberta conference on farm income Tuesday.

The farm labor force will drop to four per cent of the total labor force by 1980, he said. It was eight per cent in 1966.

North Viet Troops Hit Laos Airfield

VIENTIANE (AFP) — Authoritative Laotian sources said here today that North Vietnamese forces attacked the airfield at the royal Laotian capital of Luang Prabang during the night.

They said that the area had been closed to all traffic while royal Laotian forces moved in to dislodge the North Vietnamese.

The Laotian government is planning to protest to the International Control Commission on the grounds that the attack was a violaion of the 1962 Geneva agreements guaranteeing the neutrality of Laos.

Canada, India and Poland are the ICC members.

Senator Charles McElman told the upper house the investigation should be carried out by the consumer and corporate affairs department.

"And if the evidence shows an improper monopoly, then I should hope that the law will be applied to remedy the situation."

Senator McElman, executive secretary to New Brunswick Premier Louis Robichaud until his appointment to the Senate three years ago, was supporting a motion by
